KITCHEN KINKS

It takes longer to beat egg whites if the kitchen is hot or steamy. It is best to beat egg whites in front of an open window or outdoors.

When using an aluminum saucepan for boiling eggs, add a few drops of vinegar to prevent the pan from becoming discolored.

Barkley's Re-election Is Urged By Lexington Group

The following letter to the Lexington Herald was published Tuesday. It is reprinted here in full:

Editor, Lexington Herald:

In every speech Chandler makes he insults the intelligence of his audience and demonstrates his qualifications for a circus clownship instead of a senatorial toga.

This self-styled boy from Corydon gives repeated evidence that his mental progress has been downward since he forsook his early geographical environment.

If this fair-haired boy of the American Liberty League doesn't show more respect for the intelligence of the public and learn to speak less boastfully of his own imaginary greatness, Corydon, which for political purposes only he mentions as the town of his nativity, may disown him.

Among Chandler's latest deliverances is the pop-gun pronouncement that Senator Barkley, to whose ably filled post he presumes to aspire, is an absentee landlord who only comes to Kentucky when voters are about to declare election dividends.

If Senator Barkley's visits to Kentucky have been infrequent according to Chandler's standards it is because Washington, D. C., is the field of his official duties which he could not perform by grass-oppering around this state as our present itinerant govern-in-name is doing.

Being one of the nation's outstanding orators and one of Democracy's ablest living exponents, Senator Barkley has generously responded to appeals for aid from his party in politically pivotal states during election years when Democracy's interests in Kentucky were not in jeopardy. His brilliant efforts in this respect have contributed most substantially toward welding his party into a progressive, militant organization that has rescued the nation from the strangle-hold of the plunder-bund. This attitude on the senator's part brought in position to contribute in many ways to the state's material benefit, which he has amply done. The hard work and sacrifice of personal comfort thus entailed upon the senator is highly creditable to him.

Chandler and his crowd with the aid of Boake Carter, Frank Kent, the Cincinnati Enquirer, the American Liberty League, the Republican press and the lungs and "voluntary contributions" of the Bread-and-Butter brigade, hope, through mis-representation, appeal to ignorance, prejudice, and selfishness, through glorification of youth and disparagement of middle-age, wisdom and experience, and in disregard of party welfare and public interest to elevate a pleasure-seeking, job-deserting, play-boy politician, who, if by some miracle he could be induced to stick to his job, could not in 25 years of congressional service end where Barkley began. Chandler, if successful in his endavor, would have but one claim to fame —that of being a successor to Alben W. Barkley.

Mr. Barkley is a statesmen and not a build-up. His character, courage and capacity have placed him conspiciously before the country. His tact, courtesy and ready wit, his resourcefulness in debate, and familiarity with Senate procedure, his reservoir of knowledge concerning our history, our laws and our law-making machinery, his acquaintance with the various governmental departments and independent establishments and their respective function, have brought the mantle of formal senatorial leadership to the broad soulders of this big Kentuckian.

Senator Barkley's brilliant oratory in national Democratic conventions has made of him a party idol second only to our great President. His powerful championship of the under-privileged classes, without antagonizing thrift and legitimate enterprise, have endeared him to the hearts of all informed men and women whose normal means of support have disappeared or minished through no fault of their own, and to all others who believe in a square deal and fair play.

Who is this play-boy, who is hopping about the state, slinging mud right and left, who praises himself to the skies, forgets to mention Jefferson, Jackson, Tilden, Cleveland and Bryan in his so-called Democratic speeches, and disparages Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt and slurs Alben W. Barkley, who thinks that a smile and a song, however discordant, are essential qualifications for a U. S. senator and supposes that the important part of a senator's duties consist in attending horse races, athletic conteas in his home state, who teas in his home state, who claims claims credit for the work of a ghost government composed of Beckham, Wallis and Martin—not to mention Dan Talbott, who is becoming known as Ed Bergen? Who is this "superficial paddler on the sea of knowledge," this would be senator who has not learned that seniority in the "greatest deliberative body" is a force so powerful that comparatively few laymen are able to comprehend it? Is he a loyal Democrat or a typical Kentuckian? Is he suitable senatorial timber?

Chandler went into the lieutenant governorship clinging to Laffoon's coat-tails. His nomination was designed to reduce the age-average of the ticket. He surprised his chief, when the latter was in Washington seeking federal aid for starving Kentuckians, by assembling the legislature to enact a primary law, public sentiment for which Senator Barkley had previously vitalized, crystalized and rendered irresistible.

Chandler is already honored beyond his ability. He is willing to place Kentucky in a ridiculous light before the nation at a time when its prestige was never higher since the days of Breckinridge, Clay and Crittenden. He is willing to humiliate the President by defeating his ablest and most dependable co-worker, and split the Democratic party wide open right on the heels of its greatest victory in history and at a time in the world's affairs when united democracies are most urgently needed.

He entered the senatorial race, not because the present incumbent is an unworthy or unsatisfactory representative, not because a large element of the Democratic voters want a change, not because he is a logical deserving or qualified successor if a change were in order, but solely because he wants the job and thinks he has the requisite power and backing to put him over. His real platform is "attend everything, promise everything and claim everything." Success on his part would bring contempt and ridicule on the state and cause rejoicing in the camp of the enemy.

My hope and my prediction is that Kentucky is preparing to get rid of its problem child by the shortest and quickest way—the overwhelming renomination and re-election of Senator Alben W. Barkley.

HOW FOOT TROUBLES AFFECT THE WHOLE BODY

BY N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at Peoples' Foot Comfort
9th and Madison Ave., Cov., Ky.

Unless one is, or has been, a sufferer from foot troubles, it is rather hard for him to understand the far reaching effects which such conditions produce. In our school days, we received at least a superficial education in physiology which included the nervous system.

It may be compared with an intricate and comprehensive electric system. Messages are instantly transmitted from one part of the system to every other part. So it is with the human nervous network that reaches every part of the body.

It is a demonstrated fact that the pains produced by foot troubles can and do travel to and seriously affect other parts of the body far removed from the feet. Sometime ago a Chicago School had occasion to serve a man who had both ARCH and EYE trouble. While no one suspected that there was any connection betwee nthe two, it developed that when his Foot Troubles were relieved his eyes showed a marked improvement.

Headaches are almost invariably traced to the stomach, eyes, liver or some other part of the body. The feet can and do produce the same condition. No one suffering from intense foot pain can conceal it in his or her facial expression.

The palatial home, a mixture of authentic Colonial and Victorian architecture combining the best points of each, gleams white in its emerald setting of trees and rolling lawns. Standing on the brink of the hill which slopes downward a few feet from the Western side of the house, one is awed by the grandeur and scope of the scene. Ten miles of the beautiful Ohio River curve around the peaceful village of Petersburg and its surrounding fields. Across the river rise the Indiana hills and the spires and roofs of prosperous little towns. One has never seen a sunset until he has seen it, its glory unobtructed by man-made things from Prospect Hill. One has never seen the moonlight until he has seen it silvering the Ohio valley.

Trees, meadows, mountains, groves and streams!
Blue sky and clouds, and sunny gleams.

Plain Talk

I'm not trying to start an argument with any Barkley men. I've no relations on either the State or National pay roll. I want no job for myself or any of my kinfolk. I have not sold the State Government a stick of timber, a single brick or any merchandise whatsoever. I am not angry with anyone. I am not going to receive any special privilege at the hands of Governor Chadler. He doesn't put out any, and that is what is the matter with some folks I know, who think because they happened to vote for Chandler in the 1935 election they should be entitled to a big slice of some kind of political pie. There are not political pies when you are making a heoric effort to pay off a $26,000,000.00 debt. They will rear and curse and tell lies about a warm human character, whose very honesty makes them feel mean and despicable. They rail against Governor Chandler because he hasn't gotten around to them in two years, when the man who they praise to high heaven hasn't gotten around to them in 26 years.

My sole interest lies in Grant County. My assessment was raised this spring $2,000.00, and only 5 cents of each hundred dollars goes to the State. It had to be done to prevent the county from going bankrupt. And even now, we are not so sure that that will not happen. The county officers received no salary last month because the treasury was empty. They are just as anxious to make a good record as Governor Chandler was, and unfortunately they have no whiskey or tobacco taxes to levy and they must depend on the State to lend a helping hand.

Sure, I'm interested in Highway 25, but I am also interested in that $135,000 worth of bonds that we owe on it. The road is worn out, but the bonds are not, and they cost the county $2,000.00 interest every year. This is a Federal Highway and should be paid for by the Federal Government. It is worn out by busses, trucks, and and by people traveling from Michigan to Florida. I am interested in the Senator who knows what we need, and will attend to it.... $135,000.00 is only a drop in the bucket to the Federal Government, but it is darn nigh ruining us.

I am really more interested in the roads that bring me customers than those that take them away from me. Some roads in this county are in a deplorable condition, and others will be shortly. The county cannot even repair these roads, let alone build them. The State not only designates where the gasoline tax shall be spent, but it also designates where Federal roads shall be built. The Cordova road is one of the best roads in the county and was an election promise of Governor Chandler in 1935. That promise was kept despite the fact that Grant County opposed the State Administration in the last two elecions. The overpass could have been put anywhere in Kentucky, but Governor Chandler designated Williamstown, because he thought it would serve the greater need, an in doing so, he proved himself a Christian by returning good for evil.

They say that I am an "in and outer." But I am always either in or out and never try to straddle the issue. I am always on the side I think will be of the best interest to the county in which I live and affords me a living. The State Government is composed of individuals that are human just like you and me. They hold the purse strings, and being human, they naturally lean toward the places where their friends are. No, they are not trying to buy you. It is just a little lesson in human nature. And you and I, by supporting our State Government and our County Government and using a little common sense, can lift Grant County out of this SLOUGH of DESPOND.

LOCAL MEN REPRESENT NORTHERN KENTUCKY CREDIT ASSOCIATION

A. Threlkeld, President of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association, and directors C. Liston Hempfling, H. W. Webb and C. A. Kelly, accompanied by A. T. Mills, Secretary-Treasurer, represented the organization at the annual conference of association directors at Berea June 30, and July 1. Other credit associations represented were: Big Sandy, Paintsville; Central Kentucky, Lexington; Cumberland, London; Danville District, Danville; and Flemingsburg.

"This directors conference was called for the study of current farm credit conditions by those directing the lending policies of our credit cooperatives and for round table discussion of the livestock and crop outlook in relation to the sound extension of credit this fall," President Threlkeld stated. "Consideration also was given to the future possibilities of conducting training in credit for association personnel."

The six production credit associations represented at the conference reported a combined volume of $744,000 of closed loans for the first five months of 1938 as compared with $604,000 by the same organizations during the corresponding period last year. "Farmers are financing their operations more and more through production credit associations as the permanent and dependable character of these strictly farm cooperative lending association is better understood," Mr. Threlkeld said. "At present the 43 associations serving farmers in the Ohio-Indiana-Kentucky-Tennessee farm credit district have more than 33,000 members and stockholders."

$13,559 LOST UNDER ACP

LOCAL FARMERS EARN ONLY 69.6% OF SOIL BUILDING ALLOWANCE—$60,890.000 IS ALLOWANCE THIS YEAR.

Boone County farmers the past year lost $13,559 in failure to earn 100 percent of their 1937 agricultural conservation program soil building allowance, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The 1937 soil building allowance was approximately $44,600 of which the farmers earned only $31,041.00 or 69.6 percent. The state as a whole earned 76.1 percent.

The soil building allowance this year has been increased from $44-600 to approximately $60,890.00. This means that farmers will have to earn $29,849.00 through seeding of grass and legume seeds, turning under of green manure crops, using limestone and phosphate and other important soil building practices to earn 100 percent of their allowances.

The best way to increase the profitable returns from the farm is to increase the ability of the soil to produce. When the great need for soil improvement in Boone County is seen, certainly our farmers can not afford to lose $29,849.00 again this year.

Few farmers can earn 100 percent of their ACP soil building allowance by the sowing of seeds alone. Phosphate and agricultural limestone are the greatest soil fertilizers needed for better crops. Boone County farmers this year should use at least 8000 tons of agricultural limestone. The ACP program pays $1.50 per ton for limestone used on the soil building allowance. Farmers may secure their agricultural stone at $2 per ton delivered to the farm in most instances, or may have it crushed on the farm at prices ranging from 75 cents to 85 cents per ton. Limestone can not always be secured when needed, so farmers are urged to get their supply now. Limestone dealers who have notified the county office they will deliver agricultural limestone to the farm are: R. W. Auton, Demossville, Ky.; Orville Kelly, Burlington, R. 2; Stanley Graves Hebron; Charles Kraft, Ludlow, R. 2; Dance Bros., Crittenden, Ky. The following pulverizer operators will crush stone on your farm: Orville Y. Kelly, Burlington; W. Auton, Demossville and Charles Kraft, Ludlow, Ky.

You have until October 31st to earn 100 percent of your allowance. Don't wait. Begin now. Make your 1938 soil building program not just 100 percent of your ACP allowance but 100 percent of your allowance plus what regular seeding, liming, phosphating, etc., you would do anyhow. Call on the county office at any time they can be of help. Don't wait—act now. Procrastination is the thief of time.

Isn't this the real problem of Beer —and almost its only problem?

THERE ARE people, of course, who steadfastly and sincerely believe beer to be intoxicating, or its use sinful, harmful, or a first step toward use of "hard liquor."

Just as sincerely we hold that the weight of the evidence is overwhelmingly against them...that beer is a mild, wholesome food beverage...and that "there is nothing more promising to combat the evil of too much alcohol than the opportunity of drinking good beer."

No...it is not in beer itself, we believe, that its gravest problem lies, but in those conditions, undesirable to us all, which sometimes surround its sale.

How should that problem be handled ... by brewers, by retailers, by consumers, and by the public authorities? On its handling, we believe, depends the ultimate success or failure of the art and science of brewing, with all its manifold contributions to human pleasure and happiness and to the farm and industrial welfare of this country.

* * *

In that belief, a short time ago the Brewers Foundation was organized ... to align the brewing industry with forces working for the public good in this country.

Our underlying motive ... to perpetuate and promote our industry ... is of course obvious. But equally obvious, we hope, is the fact that our interests coincide with the public interest.

Important progress has been made. Brewer-members of the Foundation already represent nearly half the production of beer and ale in the United States; and these members are pledged, individually and collectively, to the Brewers Code, one significant clause of which is as follows:

"We pledge our support to the duly constituted authorities for the elimination of anti-social conditions wherever they may surround the sale of beer to the consumer."

Being practical men, we promise no miracles. We cannot immediately or effectively "police" the quarter-million points where beer is sold (nor, to be fair, have we legal authority in many cases to do so). Nor can we, immediately, bring about full compliance with the law among all retailers, nor honest enforcement by all authorities.

But a beginning has been made...and we do promise that you will see results from it.

* * *

How far we can go, and how soon, depends very much on ourselves...but partly also on you.

Public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about honest enforcement of existing laws. Restriction of your patronage only to legal, respectable retail outlets can and will operate to raise retailing standards. Public preference for the products of Foundation members* will bear witness of your approval both to members and to cooperating retailers, and will encourage them to renewed efforts.

* * *

This is, therefore, at once a statement of our objectives and an appeal for your support, without which we must fall short of our high hopes. We urgently invite your full and sympathetic cooperation.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Double Danger." Sunday and Monday—"Judge Hardy's Children." Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 20, 21, 22—"Test Pilot.

Mickey Rooney turned dancing teacher and taught Jacqueline Laurent, French soubrette recently signed in Paris by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the "Big Apple" dance in a comedy secene in "Judge Hard's Children," to be shown at the Gayety Theatre, Sunday and Monday. But Mickey wasn't as expert as he hoped to be. Both he and Jacqueline practiced three weeks to master the dance. Miss Laurent said she once saw an Apache dance in Paris that was similar to the "Big Apple."

Acclaimed by aviation experts the most authentic aviation story ever filmed, "Test Pilot," starring Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy comes to the Gayety Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 20th, 21st, and 22nd.

Based on an original story by Lieutenant - Commander Frank Wead, the story is steeped in colorful traditions of the men who are building the future of aviation, test pilots who try new ships before they are approved.

Thrilling flying sequences, filmed with nine ground cameras and nine aerial cameras, provide the background for a new type triangle. Clark Gable, in the title role, is divided between his love for Myrna Loy and his love of flying. The conflict between his wife and his job is the basis of a plot which incorporates scenes from national air races, testing of new planes, riotous night club sequences and touching romantic scenes between Gable and Miss Loy.

THOS. LOGAN RESIGNS POST

TO SUPPORT ALBEN W. BARKLEY—WAS PRESIDENT OF YOUNG MEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB OF KENTUCKY.

The following is a letter of resignation, signed by Thos. M. Logan:

July 5, 1938

"Hon. Albert B. Chandler, Governor
"Frankfort, Kentucky
"Dear Governor Chandler:—

"I have been a member of your official family since you were inaugurated Governor. I aided and assisted in electing you Governor of this Commonwealth and hoped that it would be possible for you to continue as chief executive of this Commonwealth during your term without becoming a candidate for another office.

"However, you have seen fit to become a candidate for the United States Senate against the advice of some of your best friends and well-wishers. In so doing, it has become necessary for you to take a stand against the President of the United States and one of his ardent supporters, Senator Alben W. Barkley. The issues of the campaign are so drawn that any democrat supporting you will be anti-Roosevelt.

"As a Democrat, I believe in the policies of the Democratic Party as advanced by President Roosevelt. This is to advise you that I cannot turn down the President of the United States in his constructive program and it becomes necessary to make a choice between you and Senator Barkley in his candidacy for renomination and re-election.

"In order that there may be no embarrassment between you and I, I herewith tender my resignation, to become effective at any time fixed by you.

I remain,

"Respectfully yours,
"THOS. M. LOGAN."

Mrs. Mary Wilson, 1031 Brighton St., Newport, who was with Butts and Douba, was not injured. She gave the license number of the car that struck the two men to Sheriff F. M. Walton. However, the license number given the authorities was not that of the car which struck the men.

Monday, Harold Presser, of Union reported the accident to Frank M. Walton, and stated that he was the driver of the car which struck the men. He stated that the two men were locked in each others arms and staggered in front of his car, and that the accident was unavoidable. Other witnesses verified Mr. Presser's story.

Tomatoes Grow On Potato Vines In Boone County

According to Ben Michels, he has a tomato growing on a potato vine in his garden, located east of Burlington. Mr. Michels stated Wednesday morning that he is sure that it is a tomato and invites anyone who doubts his word to inspect the freak.

We have not viewed the potato-tomato, but Mr. Michels seems to be very sincere.

He also stated that he drilled a hole in the ground twenty-seven feet with a posthole digger. We accused him of being a member of the tall story club, but he also invited us to inspect the hole.

Constance Leads Sunday School Softball League

The Boone County Sunday School softball league is having a good season with a close race among the well matched teams. So far, due to the exceptionally fine pitching of Clarence Peeno with manager Red Lane behind the bat, Constance has held its place at the top of the league standing. This team, in the league for the first time, has cracked up only once, being defeated by the strong Hebron boys, who hold third place. Bullittsville runs a close second with Sand Run, Petersburg and Burlington telling us that it isn't all over yet.

Although the boys of the last three named teams are in the lower division, they are playing good ball and can, by all means upset things if the top teams aren't careful. Some of Boone County's best athletes are participating in in these games.

How They Stand

	Won	Lost
Constance	6	1
Bullittsville	6	2
Hebron	5	3
Sand Run	3	5
Petersburg	2	6
Burlington	1	6

Utopians Inspect Project Work

The Boone County Utopia Club held its annual tour of outstanding projects last Wednesday, according to Jack Dye, assistant county agent. Mr. Carl Jones, State Utopia Club Leader, attended and praised the high type of work done by the local club.

Most interesting of the projects were those producing hybrid seed corn. Wilton Stephens, Bill Moore Bennie Stephens, John Crigler and Lloyd Siekman are each growing one acre or more. Wilton's corn was tasselling Wednesday and he began pulling tassels later in the day. These boys keep the tassels pulled out of three rows of every four, leaving one row to pollinate the crop.

James Edward Stephens' landscaping project showed the results of careful planning and regular attention.

Mrs. Bob Graves served refreshments to the group on arrival at her home.

The Sunbeams will meet at the Baptist church on Friday afternoon at 2:30.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Night Spot"
Sun., Mon., Tues., and Wednesday Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs
Thursday and Friday—July 28-29 —"Joy of Living."

Walt Disney introduces an entirely new set of characters in his first feature-length production, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Snow White is the first Disney character entirely devoid of caricature. Snow White is a sweet, natural, graceful young girl. The handsome young Prince who seeks Snow White's hand is, like the heroine, a human character without any exaggeration.

In addition, those who have worked on the feature predict that the seven little dwarfs are due to steal many a scene with their high comedy.

The other new Disney characters include the wicked beautiful Queen who turns herself into an old hag to trick Snow White into eating the poisoned apple, and the huntsman who is delegated by the queen to take Snow White into the woods and kill her, but who turns her loose instead. This picture will be shown Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Thursday and Friday

A unique romance between a debt-harassed actress and a carefree playboy who believes in having a good time, forms the basis of "Joy of Living," RKO Radio's new musical comedy with Irene Dunne and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Miss Dunne sings new Jerome Kern melodies. Fairbanks' efforts to persuade Miss Dunne that all her troubles lie in her devotion to her leech-like family, make for most of the hilarious plot complications. Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee, Jean Dixon, Eric Blore, Lucille Ball and Warren Hymer are in the cast.

Mary Louise Walton is visiting Mary Jane Pettit for a few days.

WHEN FARMS GET POWER

Eventually, when this TVA cat and dog fight is over, and the personal grievances of a few men who are anxious to loom as big leaders in the movement, pass on and are forgotten—as they will be—it is going to be a poor farm and poor farmer indeed who will not have the economic benefits as well as the social blessings such power brings. To such blessing every rural resident is entitled, just as much as those residing in the cities and towns; those who not only live in the valley where the blessing originates, but those who live on the hill where it is as greatly needed.

Whether the large power companies will have some soiled linen to wash later on remains to be seen. But this much can be said for them, just at a time when someone has turned loose the dogs of a few private political kennels upon them—the praise the power companies have received for developing the benefits of electric energy on the farm in and in the small town communities, up to this time, has been generally deserved. Especially is this true when you compare the small amount of praise and the enormous amount of criticism to be compared.

One pleasing thing about such incidents as the TVA squabble is that they soon die out. They soon die out, and leave no serious results. On the other hand, they tend to leave rural residents and hundred upon hundred of towns cause for thankfulness that they were in the field ahead of the government and the politicians who, as the TVA fight indicates, have just awakened to the big money that is in all these projects for those who make the pendulum swing the right way.

THE FIRST SIX MONTHS

Business has just turned the pages of its big ledger past the first half of the year, and while more red ink was used on these pages than one cares to see, it's somewhat unpleasant aspect is partially overcome by announcements from those in position to know, that an upturn is now about due. They say there will be more black ink used in these next six months, the last half of the year.

Sec. of Commerce Roper is prominent among those to make such a prediction. "Economic skies are definitely clearing," he said recently in a prepared statement to the press. "Many wise business leaders are now taking, and should take, advantage of the summer season to implement their plans and methods for participation in the inevitable and now forming forward movement. Large sums are being spent for factory expansion. Orders for much new factory and transportation equipment are being let. Bumper crops are beginning to move, as reflected by rising demands on transportation. Credit is abundant and available."

No business man is in position to see in advance the indications for future business so well as Roper, because no one has the means, of course, of gathering nation-wide reports. But they are, as a rule, pretty safe in accepting his advice. So from the statement he has given out and quoted above, they would seem more or less warranted in doing all they can to accelerate the coming of the fall upturn, which Sec. Roper asserts is now well on its way.

CIRCUS STRIKES

As far as the small boy is concerned, all this talk about strikes and "sit downs" never amounted to a thing, up to a few weeks ago. The argument of interfering with one's "personal liberties" got nowhere with the youth of America. There's a different tale to tell and the young ones are joining their protests in denouncing strikes, all because the C. I. O. stepped in to say what the circus should not do. These protests concerning labor and between unions did not mean much as long as they were confined to the industrial world, but when they enter the circus arena they are trifling with a tender part of a boy's heart. Any circus, no matter where it is booked to show, that has to take order from unsentimental labor agitators, gets the small boy's vote—he casts it against any such move. Looking back to boyhood days and the part the circus played in those days we are not so sure but that we would vote right along with the lad.

SENSIBLE STAMPS

The fact that frequent changes in the postage stamps of the U. S. has been profitable during the past few years, seems to meet with general approval. You seldom, if ever, hear a taxpayer complaining that it is an unnecessary waste of money. Now that it has been decided to make some of the future issues of educational and safety value to the public will preclude the possibility of such a protest altogether. One of the first issues seemingly to appear in the very near future will be a stamp emphasizing the dangers of "Fire Prevention Week," national observance of which will fall this year on Oct. 9th to 15th. Other new stamps intended to preserve human life and natural resources are being worked out. When complete this can be referred to as our series of "sensible stamps," since they will serve a double purpose.

WATCH THIS LAW

Newspapers throughout the country recently carried the story from a neighboring state of a young man who invited his mother for an auto ride and suffered an accident in which she was injured. Her attorney promptly sued the son for damages and it developed that the insurance company, in which the son had a policy covering personal injuries to others, had to settle. Of course, it was a frameup, but it was legitimate in the eyes of that state. Under this law, that so many motorists know nothing about, it doesn't make any difference whom you invite into your car or to whom you extend the hospitality of a ride, you are running the risk of a damage suit in case they may be injured. The lowliest hobo has a claim if he happens to be your guest rider, as has any hitch-hiker you pick up. Right now as motorists are starting on vacations in states whose laws are unknown to them, is the time to get posted. Ask yourself, before you start out, if it pays to take a chance.

KENTUCKY DAIRYING SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

The annual report of Kentucky dairy herd improvement associations shows increased production among the cooperating farmers last year. Gross income from dairy products produced in the seven associations was $452,912, and income above feed costs was $241,325. Much of the feed was home-grown.

Members of the associations owned on an average 21 cows, sold $1,700 worth of feed through their herds, received a gross income of $3,621, and made above feed cost $1,930.

Average production per cow was 332 pounds of butterfat, the highest in the history of the testing program in Kentucky. A total of 1,382 cows produced 300 pounds or more; 417 cows produced 400 to 500 pounds; 74 cows, 500 to 600 pounds, and five cows, 600 to 700 pounds. Thirteen herds averaged over 400 pounds.

Registered bulls were used in 119 of the 125 herds. Better feeding was in evidence everywhere, practically all herds receiving legume hay and 60 percent of them alfalfa. Many dairymen also fed grain and silage.

The dairy improvement work in the state has been greatly enlarged, according to a report of the College of Agriculture at Lexington. There now are 14 herd improvement associations containing 320 herds and 6,610 cows. Thus the number of associations has doubled in the last year, and the number of cows on test more than doubled.

KITCHEN KINKS

Approximately two cups of stuffing are required for a two-pound shoulder of ham, veal or pork . . . Try mixing the dough for ginger cookies with cold coffee instead of water . . . For variety, sprinkle grated cheese over the top of raisin, mince meat or apple pit and heat for five minutes in a moderate oven. Serve at once.

Lesson for July 24

GIDEON: FOLLOWING GOD'S PLAN

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:4-7, 15-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage. Joshua 1:9.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Gideon Won.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Gideon's Band.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Three Hundred.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Wise General.

Who is he? What are his connections? How large an organization does he represent? These are the measures of the greatness of a man which are common in the world. Even in religious circles there is a seeking for the men with "big names" when something is to be done. Our lesson for today reiterates the principle which we all know but which we practice so little, namely, that whatever is accomplished that is really worth while is done by God and that He uses only humble instruments—the "foolish things," the "weak things," the "base things," and "things which are despised" (I Cor. 1:26-29). No flesh is to have any opportunity to glory in His presence. If men who are accounted great by this world are useful to God it is only because they are themselves humble in spirit and service.

Gideon came from an obscure family in a small tribe in Israel—and was astonished when God called him (Judges 6:15). He asked God for several signs to assure him that he was the chosen instrument of the Lord (read Judges 6), but once he was certain he went forward, nothing doubting.

I. An Insignificant Army (vv. 4-7).

At first thought it seems almost foolish to comment on this story of repeated reductions in the size of Gideon's army in these hectic days when the nations of the earth are living for but one objective—to create a fighting machine bigger and more fully manned than that of any other nation.

But on second thought it is just the time for such comment, because what the nations are doing is a perfect example of the hopeless philosophy of men, while what Gideon did is a presentation of God's way. These notes are being prepared in a city distant from the writer's home, where he is attending a conference of national leaders in a field of great and international importance. A long session just concluded was addressed by a number of brilliant and capable men and women—and the conclusion they reached was that America was a badly befuddled nation, lost without a sense of direction in a wilderness of incoherent and inherently contradictory theories and about to lose its dearly bought freedom, unless someone points the way out. The only solutions offered were bigger and better human programs, and when a suggestion was made that our need might be spiritual the discussion was promptly directed in another direction.

We need the lesson today that it is, by the seemingly insignificant Gideon's band that victory is to be obtained. Take courage, ye 300, rid yourselves of the 22,000 fearful ones, let God sift out the 9,700 who are not alert to the danger of the enemy, and then, under some Gideon who is obedient to the command of God, go forward to victory. You are the hope, and the only hope of our nation. Do not fail God in this crucial hour.

II. Obedience to God's Command (vv. 15-23).

After the Lord had encouraged the heart of Gideon by the account of the dream of the Midianite (vv. 8-14), he and his band are sent forward with strange weapons and even stranger instructions.

It is not ours to question "Why?" when God tells us to move forward. When will we learn that He knows more than we do, and that obedience is all we need to render unto Him? "Behold, to obey is better than to sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams" (I Sam. 15:22).

III. The Sword of the Lord and of Gideon (vv. 18, 20).

While some folk err in counting the Lord out and making everything depend on man, there are a few who make the opposite error and become fatalistic in spirit and relatively useless to both God and man—because they hold an improper view of the manner in which the Lord works through human agencies.

A man who objected to soul-winning efforts, and especially personal work, said that he believed "God could save a man if he were alone on the top of the Alps." Of course He could, but God does not ordinarily work that way. It is the "sword of the Lord"—yes, but do not forget that it is "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon." God has graciously condescended to do His work on earth through human agencies. Let us be ready and subservient instruments for His use, but let us at the same time be alert and active in His service. The two are not at all inconsistent, in fact the one whom God chooses to use is usually the one who is already busy about His work.

"BARKLEY FOR SENATOR NOTES"

Sponsored by BARKLEY CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

By Henry Ward

Louisville, Ky., July 19—Governor Albert Benjamin Chandler, in his campaign for the United States Senate, is trying to create a false impression about the amount of taxes that Kentucky citizens pay to the United States government.

Chandler insists that Kentucky stands fifth among the tax-paying states of the nation, but does not receive the same proportion of benefits from the federal government. He seeks to have Kentuckians believe that they are contributing to the federal government far more than the benefits they receive amount to.

The fallacy of his argument is seen easily when one studies the type of taxes that Kentuckians pay the federal government. One cannot accept at a glance a report of the amount of money that the federal treasury receives from Kentucky as representing taxes actually paid by Kentuckians, because the greatest revenue comes from U. S. levies on whiskey and cigarettes. Those taxes are paid by the manufacturers to the federal treasury, but they are stamp taxes and ultimately are paid by the consumers.

In 1937, the federal treasury collected $83,943,000 from Kentucky manufacturers of whiskey and cigarettes. The federal income tax produced $15,487,000 and miscellaneous taxes brought $10,995 into the U. S. coffers. Of the total, collections from whiskey and cigarettes taxes represented 76.3 per cent, income taxes 13.6 per cent and the miscellaneous levies 10.1 percent.

In round numbers, three-fourths of the federal taxes paid in Kentucky are on whiskey and cigarettes. As is well known, these two commodities are sold with the taxes included in the selling price, which the consumer, wherever he is, has to pay. The consumers of our two principal tax producing commodities are all over the United States and all over the world. Since the population of Kentucky is only two per cent of the entire United States, it is obvious that 98 per cent of the whiskey and cigarettes produced in Kentucky is consumed elsewhere and the tax is actually paid by people living outside Kentucky. Therefore, the contributions of Kentucky people in taxes paid the federal government is only about 25 per cent of the total federal taxes paid and credited to Kentucky.

The income, whiskey and cigarettes and miscellaneous taxes paid the federal government from Kentucky sources in 1937 amounted to $110,425,000. The 25 per cent of that amount actually paid by Kentucky consumers and taxpayers would be $27,606,250. Multiplying that figure by the five years President Roosevelt has been in office produces the total figure of $138,031,250.

During the five years of the Roosevelt administration Kentucky has received $237,294,171 in new and emergency federal appropriations. That amount does not include more than $25,000,000 the United States spent in Kentucky on regular federal aid for highway construction, or amounts for education, public health and many other benefits that come from the national government.

So, it is evident that benefits received by Kentucky from the federal government have been far in excess of the amount of taxes paid. As a matter of fact, the difference in taxes and benefits is even greater than the figures presented as examples, because the federal revenue from Kentucky from the three sources listed amounted to only $86,498,000 in 1934, $92,932,000 in 1935, and $102,242,000 in 1936.

Governor Chandler's woman campaign chairman in Fayette county is Mrs. Mary Frazer LeBus Breckinridge. She is the widow of the late Desha Breckinridge, publisher of the Lexington Herald, who was one of the leaders in the "Stop Roosevelt" drive in 1932 to prevent him from winning the Democratic nomination for President.

Mrs. Breckinridge is not a registered voter in Fayette county. She came from her home in the society center, Nantucket, Mass., to engage in the campaign. One of her sons, Frazer LeBus, is the Republican member of the Fayette county registration and purgation board. She said she is supporting Chandler for Senator because of her tobacco and horse racing interests.

High spot of last week's Senatorial election news was the arrest of three chandler supports in Lyon county, charging with intimidating another state employe, forcing him to contribute to Chandler's campaign fund, and then bringing about his dismissal. The Social Security Board also entered the news at Washington by announcing that it will investigate reports that state old age pension agents are attempting to coerce recipients of old age pensions in Kentucky into voting for Chandler.

FINE QUAIL HATCHING SEASON FOR THIS YEAR

Steve Wakefield, field representative for the Division of Game and Fish, after making a survey of two thirds of the counties in the state to check the results of the quail distribution, reports this is the best quail hatching season the Commonwealth has enjoyed in years.

The indications are that there will be more quail this fall than has been noted for the past 25 years. This is proof, Wakefield stated, that the Division of Game and Fish is right in planting quail in pairs in the spring of the year.

Heretofore quail were placed in the fields in coveys in the fall of the year at about ten weeks old, but did not show very good results. After experimentation, the Department found that adult quail distributed in pairs in the early spring, are better able to take care of themselves; hatch a larger number of young, and protect them better than was formerly the case with young coveys planted in the fall.

COOKING LIVER

It is not necessary to dip liver into boiling water to make the meat firm and easier to handle. If dipped in seasoned flour and panbroiled in a little bacon fat it is tender and delicious. It takes but a few minutes to cook it through.

AN INSPIRATION

So many paths that wind and wind
When just the art of being kind
Is all this old world needs."

"CHANDLER FOR SENATOR NOTES"

Sponsored By CHANDLER CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

THINK ABOUT IT

(From Falmouth Outlook)

We have always given Senator Barkley credit for being one of the shrewdest politicians in the State, but after reading his opening speech at Lexington we will have to take it back. He razzed Governor Chandler for not providing a $30 old age pension when it is known that there are 40,000 worthy old people drawing an average of $8 per month and 50,000 on the waiting list.

Barkley comes to us from Washington where they talk in the high brackets, and lend, spend and give away billions with no regard for future generation. He chastises Governor Chandler for not wrecking the State financially to provide a $30 old age pension when it is impossible to provide all with $8. Any senator, Governor or politician who tries to capitalize upon relief and old age pension funds which the taxpayers provide is not making much of a hit. It is disgusting to say the least to hear these politicians mount the stump and announce, "Elect me and I will provide higher old age pensions, better relief wages and a more abundant life for all." He is a demagogue waving a red flag in the face of the unfortunates. He is a man who will not carry any of this burden, bot is willing to place it on the bahks of the taxpayers, whether they are able to tote it or not. He is willing to wreck his State or nation for the sake of the emolument of office

BARKLEY BUSY SPEECH-MAKING

VISITS FAR EASTERN AND WESTERN SECTIONS OF STATE — WILL ALSO VISIT SOUTH CENTRAL SECTION.

Louisville, Ky., July 19—With only three weks to go before the August 6 election, Senator Alben W. Barkley this week plunged into a speaking schedule that would carry him into far Eastern and far Western sections of the state and into South Central Kentucky.

Also on the stump speaking for him were several political leaders of the state who were enthusiastic supporters of Albert Benjamin Chandler in th egubernatorial race Chandler in the gubernatorial race Young Brown, original sales tax opponent and former Congressman, State Senator Ralph Gilbert, of Shelbyville, who was the Chandler majority leader in the state Senate until he announced his support for Barkley, State Senator J. E. Wise, of Elizabethtown, running-mate with Chandler as a candidate for lieutenant-Governor in 1935, and Tom Logan, of Covington, who won the presidency of the Kentucky Young Democratic Clubs as a Chandler candidate, and who resigned a position in the state insurance department two weeks ago because he believed Chandler is running for Senator as an anti-Roosevelt candidate. Ben John, of Bardstown, known as the man who gave Chandler his start in politics, who got the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor for him in 1931 and who helped him as much as any man win the Governorship in 1935, also has made some speeches for Barkley.

As Barkley started into the closing weeks of the campaign, he carried with him the knowledge that the Gallup poll revealed that he still is leading Chandler by 2 to 1, and was reassured by tremendous crowds wherever he went that he has not lost his popularity or his punch as a campaign speaker. In every speech he tore into Chandler's record as Governor, attacked the state political machine, and denounced assessment of state employes and coercion of old age pension recipients. At his request, the U. S. Social Security Board has started an investigation of reports that pension agents told many old people that they would lose their pensions if they did not vote for Chandler.

Monday the Senator spoke in Northeastern Kentucky at Paintsville, Louisa, Grayson, and Ashland. Tuesday his schedule took him to Sandy Hook, West Liberty, Frenchburg, and Richmond. The itinerary for the rest of the week and the following week follows: Wednesday, July 20 Calhoun, Marion, McCracken County, Benton; Thursday, July 21 Clinton, Bardwell, McCracken County, Hopkinsville; Friday 22 Columbia, Jamestown, Monticello, Somerset; Saturday, July 23 Middelsboro, Pineville, Williamsburg, Corbin; July 25, Barbourville, London, Mt. Vernon, Standford; July 26, Bardstown, Shelbyville, Bagdad; July 27 Holy Cross, Nicholasville, Winchester, Covington; July 28, Owingsville, Morehead, Flemingsburg, Louisville.

THE SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

The second of a series of four newspaper articles dealing with the services of the Soil Conservation Service, Walton, Ky., on the the farms in Boone and Kenton Counties, deals primarily with a short description of the contents of the agreement entered into by the United States Department of Agriculture and the respective cooperators in a particular camp area; through the Soil Conservation Service.

After contacting a prsopective cooperator and explaining what the Soil Conservation Service is trying to accomplish in soil erosion on his farm, through demonstrational practices to be carried out by him for his and his neighbors benefit in years to come, we are ready to make a conservation map, if a basis for cooperation is fairly definite.

The "Conservation Survey Map," is a map, drawn to scale, of the entire farm. On this map will be located such facts as all existing fences, natural draws and waterways, degree of erosion, type of present crops, average slopes, and type of soil in each field on the farm. This map gives a little history of each field and is very valuable in making the second map, the "Land Use Map." This map is developed or planned by a representative of the Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with the landowners experience and knowledge.

The Land Use Map is a visual picture of the whole farm, field by field, as it is t obe for the duration of the greement—five years. Any new fences built with camp labor and all central practices will be placed upon this map.

Another sheet has such pertinent facts as to how much livestock is carried on the farms and the hay, corn and pasture requirements for the stock. All this must be carried in the working out of a sound agreement from the standpoint of making a living on the farm as well as controlling soil erosion.

Still another section of the agreement has a history of each field and just what is to be done by the cooperator and the SCS. This part is known as the "Plan of Conservation Operations."

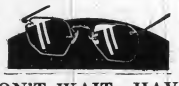
The last section of any great importance is the "Cropping Sheet." In this sheet each field and acreage is listed showing the cropping plan for the five-year period.

Each cooperator signs the agreement and it must be approved by SCS Officials and one copy returned to the cooperator before any work can be done on his farm.

It isn't the intention of the SCS to radically change your farming methods during any one year, but they have the right to assume and expect that, with their assistance, you should have a working knowledge of your agreement the first year.

The third article will deal with land classification, crop rotations, land treatments and types of work the SCS can do in a farm.

No matter how disreputable a man looks, he never appears quite so horrible as just before he fixes himself up before breakfast.



Another thing you can't make children understand, is how grown-up people can get up in the morning without being called.

Nothing can defeat a man who believes in himself and who cannot be rediculed, talked down or written down.

To The Farmer--

You have dealt, man to man, with "Happy Chandler." Have you ever had any dealing with Barkley? Do you believe Barkley was responsible, either directly or indirectly, for the "Cut Out" checks you received from the Government? He was NOT.

Happy Chandler gave you good rural roads, lowest land taxes in history, better schools, lower truck fees and relieved you of theSales Tax . . . Barkley voted AGAINST continuation of low interest rates at Farm Loan Banks; AGAINST low rate for refinancing farm mortgages; he failed to protect the Kentucky Farmer in the acreage allotment and allowed higher percentages be given competing states. And Barkley joined hands with the sales tax crowd and made them his campaign managers.

To The Laborer--

Happy Chandler caused a real Labor Department to be created; doubled medical, hospitalization and burial benefits; abolished waiting period for Workman's Compensation; caused State Unemployment Compensation Law to be enacted; created Free Employment Service; outlawed sale of prison-made goods; ratified Child Labor Amendment; enacted minimum wage law for women and children; outlawed company-paid deputy sheriffs.

Barkley Failed to make an attempt to relieve Kentucky of the 35c freight rate differential on coal.. Barkley said, "The day of railroad expansion is over." "We must foster the return of shipping to the American Rivers."

To The Businessman—

You are no longer a collector of State sales taxes. You are now doing business in the most business-like State in the United States. You do not have to bow to the discrimination of a bipartisan combine. Your business is safe from a mortgage to pay a State debt Because Governor Chandler has safeguarded your interest.

To MOM and DAD and ALL OF THE FOLK

Governor Chandler has pledged you that when elected he wil lNEVER cast a vote to send your sons to fight a war on foreign soil. Senator Barkley did that. You believe in the future of your children. You, as a parent, want to see youth advance and take its place in the social and economic structure of the Nation . . . . A vote for "Happy" Chandler is a vote for the future of your children . . . He pledges to prevent further discrimination against Kentucky in Federal enactments. His heart is in Kentucky and with Kentuckians. Senator Barkley, who refuses to stand on his own record as a public servant, knows Kentucky only when it is necessary for him to seek office again.

To The Veteran—

"Happy" Chandler has supported you 100% because he is one of you and knows your problems.

Alben Barkley voted to cut the compensation of Kentucky veterans disabled in service 25% and voted to cut 18,000 Kentucky World War Veterans entirely off the Federal Pension rolls.

KENTUCKY EGGS WORTH MILLIONS

The 11 milloin chickens on Kentucky farms produce nearly 40 million dozen eggs a year, worth almost $6,000,000, according to figures presented at the 14th annual short course for poultry raisers at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. The course offered a week's intensive training in poultry breeding, feeding, control of diseases and parasites, the operation of hatcheries, judging, exhibition, and the marketing of poultry products. The attendance this year included 128 men and women from 38 Kentucky counties and from Ohio, Illinois, Tennessee and Arkansas.

THE HOME GARDENER

Liquid weed killers are not expensive and one or two applications a season will be sufficient to eliminate all weeds or grass in walks and drives. These weed killers can be applied with a sprinkling can, and in a few days the weeds and grass turn brown, soon disappearing. Oil, such as is used in heating homes, is also effective. It is important, of course, to avoid allowing either the weed killer or the oil to fall upon the grass, as it will burn out the grass in a lawn as quickly as that in a driveway.

KENTUCKY NEEDS BARKLEY

KENTUCKY FARMERS REMINDED OF WHY THEY SHOULD SUPPORT SEN. BARKLEY

Since President Roosevelt came to Kentucky for the sole purpose of endorsing Senator Alben W. Barkley and did, Governor Chandler has been using certain excerpts of the President's speech with which he hopes to delude the people of Kentucky into believeing that he is a friend of the President and that the president is a friend of his. All of which brings to mind a certain passage from Kipling that reads "If you can bear to hear the truths you have spoken; twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools . . . ."

Does Governor Chandler think he is an all powerful super-man that he can take parts of the President's speech and twist it to his own use; does he think that the audiences that he addresses are so dumb and ignorant that they did not know the objects of the President's visit to Kentucky and did not read or hear what the President had to say on that visit and know exactly what the President said and meant? If he does, his conclusions are an insult to every gathering that he addresses. If he thinks that he has such powers as to cram these half-truths down the throats of Kentucky voters, then he is of the same stripe as Hitler, Il Due and Huey Long. Such men are dangerous to the principles of Democracy such as layed down by Thomas Jefferson and carried on by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A leader of American farmers—Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation—has declared that Kentucky farmers should not permit the defeat for re-election of Senator Alben W. Barkley, whom he described in an address July 4 at Hardinsburg as "(the friend of the Kentucky farmer."

Mr. O'Neal also struck at Governor A. B. Chandler's effort to divide the support of the farmers for Senator Barkley by charging that the 1938 farm legislation betrayed Kentucky farmers. Pertinent excerpts from his speech, which is of interest to every farmer, follow:

"I am informed that an effort is being made to array tobacco tenants against tobacco land-owners with the fallacious assertion that the national farm program forgot the tenants. Then I am advised that accusations are being circulated that the Kentucky tobacco growers were betrayed in the Triple A of 1938 through preferential treatment to tobacco growers in other states. Nothing is farther from the truth.

"The combined efforts of the leaders of the Roosevelt administration and the Farm Bureau leaders were concentrated on making the farm program fair to the small, family-sized farm and to the tenant. At every possible place in the bill and in administrative rulings preferential treatment is given to tenants and small farmers.

"The act sets aside $50,000,000, or 10 percent of the $500,000,000 appropriated to make the act effective, to graduate upward payments to tenants and small farmers which are below $200.00.

"The farm program of the Roosevelt administration has literally resurrected tobacco growers from the depths of despair, tenants and landlords alike, small farmers and large farmers, of all tobacco growing states.

"In 1932, the total tobacco income to all tobacco growers was $107,000,000. In 1937, it was $330,000,000. Did tenants fare better in 1932 or 1937? Did Kentucky landowners secure more in 1932 or 1937?

"In 1932, Kentucky Burley growers had $26,500,000 to divide. In 1937, their gross Burley income was $59,500,000.

"The same story is true for Kentucky dark types. In 1932, dark tobacco types brought Kentucky growers $4,100,000. In 1937, $8,900,000.

"In 1933, before the A.A.A. of the 1933 had time to take effect, Kentucky's total farm income was $69,200,000. In 1937, under the improved farm programs, Kentucky farmers received a total farm income of $168,500.00.

"Shame on the farmers of a state who are allowed to write their own ticket and who fail to loyally support those who give them this unprecedented privilege. I am confident they will not fail themselves nor their farm neighbors of the South and Middle West who are depending upon the liberal and sympathetic leadership of President Roosevelt's majority leader in the solution of her complex farm problems in the future."

The Man To Elect

ALBEN W. BARKLEY

NOTED WRITER AVERS CHANDLER IS ANTI-ROOSEVELT CANDIDATE

By Herbert Agar

The big fight for control of the Democratic Party has begun. The fight will determine whether the party is to remain a New Deal party, or whether it is to become a feeble imitation of the Republican Party under the leadership of such men as Garner, Byrd, Glass Bailey, Tydings.

Those of us who want the party to remain New Deal are in a majority, and that if we fail to use our strength at the primaries this summer we shall betray our principles. There are many petty reasons why the full New Deal strength may not be displayed.

One of these reasons is the fight within the labor camp between C.I.O. and A.F.L. Kentucky politics are an example of the way this fight may work to harm the New Deal—and thus to set back the cause of labor indefinitely.

* * *

Alben Barkley, Senate leader for the New Deal in Washington, is seeking renomination in the Kentucky primaries. Opposed to him is Governor "Happy" Chandler, who has become an anti-New Deal symbol throughout the Nation.

Governor Chandler says he is a friend of the New Deal. But the country does not think so. In Washington, Chandler is praised and befriended by Senator Tydings and Senator Byrd—both of whom detest the New Deal.

In New York we find that Wall Street and Long Islanders—many of whom have never noticed Kentucky politics before—are rooting for Chandler. They see in Chandler a chance to hurt the President by beating the New Deal's chosen leader in the Senate. In Kentucky we have not found a single violent enemy of Mr. Roosevelt who is not hoping for a Chandler victory.

If all this feeling is based on a mistake, it is too bad for Governor Chandler. No man can avoid being judged by his friends. In spite of what the Governor may say, his friends have made the issue clear: a vote for Chandler is a vote against the New Deal; a vote for Barkley is a vote to uphold the President.

Yet one of the most intelligent labor leaders in Kentucky tells me he does not know whether A.F.L. workers will feel they can vote for Barkley, because Barkley has C.I.O. support. And this in spite of the fact that Barkley has a long consistent pro-labor record—while Governor Chandler, to put it mildly, has not.

* * *

Labor, in other words, is threatening to destroy itself rather than postpone its family row until after the primaries. Every anti-New Deal paper in America will splurge a Chandler victory as a slap in the face for the President.

We shall be told, if Chandler wins, that at last the American people have seen through the hoax at Washington, that at last they are sick of the extravagance, the unfairness toward business, the "unrealistic" zeal for reform, and all the rest of it. If Governor Chandler beats Senate Leader Barkley, a long step will have been taken toward handing the Democratic Party over to people like Byrd and Bailey and Garner.

Does Labor want such a result? These men are the enemies of the Wagner Act of Work Relief of W.P.A., of the attempt to regulate Wall Street, of all the social legislation of the past five years. Is Labor so interested in its private war that it would hand the country to Labor's enemies rather than have an armistice in that war until Labor's friends are reelected?

The New Deal has done more for Labor than any other administration in our history. If labor does not respond by supporting New Deal candidates, it will be a long time before another administration does as much.

1,000,000TH LOAN MADE BY CREDIT ASSOCIATION

The closing of a loan to Harley M. Moore, corn belt farmer of Cass County, Indiana, by the Peru Production Credit Association, one of the 535 cooperative credit organizations that makes loans to farmers in all parts of the country, marks the millionth loan made by these Associations, according to word received today by A. T. Mills, Secretary-Treasurer of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association.

Mr. Moore, a member of the Peru Association since 1934, has used his Association's services four times since that spring. His fifth loan, just closed, was made to pay taxes, finance his feed operations, and pay current farm expenses. He obtained part of his loan now and will receive the balance as he needs it during the year. Mr. Moore expects to repay his loan from the sale of hogs and fat cattle. He also bought his long-term mortgage credit cooperatively when he financed the purchase of the farm he was renting four years ago with a loan from the Federal Land Bank, of Louisville, through the Cass County National Farm Loan Association of Logansport.

Mr. Mills pointed out that the Northern Kentucky Association, like the 534 others, has been making steady growth since its organization in 1934. Its members own stock amounting to $12,790.00. They have also built up a reserve amounting to $7,740.26 to protect their investment and assure the permance of their organization.

When asked how this Association is progressing, Mr. Mills answered that it has made 326 loans amounting to $137,991.00 through the first six months of this year. He expects the Association will surpass last year's record-breaking volume of business by the time the end of the year comes around.

W. M. U. NOTES

The Union Baptist W. M. U. held a lovely Golden Jubilee service at their church on last Wednesday evening, celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the W. M. U.. A large group was present and an enjoyable program was made possible by our program leader, Mrs. Myrtie Marshall.

Mrs. Jas. A. Huey, a charter member gave us an interesting history of our early W. M. U., telling of many discouraging things in their work then, as well as many beautiful experiences. Our President, Mrs. Marie Gschwind gave our devotional in a beautiful and impressive way. Mrs. Marshall then introduced each leader of our various organizations and they in turn brought us a message of their work.

Mr. G. M. Kearns, leader of our Royal Ambassador, gave us a vivid picture of his boys and the wonderful way they are responding to the work, surely they are Ambassadors for the King.

Mrs. Emerson Smith, leader of the Girl's Auxiliary gave a beautiful reading, bringing out the love and unselfish devotion of her work.

Mrs. Mason, our Sunbeam leader set for the Golden Goals of our work to reach the standard of excellence.

Mrs. Sallie K. Hicks, leader of the Y. W. A. represented her work by an inspiring talk and special music by her girls. Special music was rendered thru-out program.

At the close of the meeting all passed out on the lawn, where lovely refreshments were served by our W. M. U. members.

There is nothing a man likes more than having a woman make over him, and nothing he likes less tan aving her make him over.

They arrested a Toledo, Ohio man for driving recklessly, charging that he was kissing his wife. Fact is, that sort of recklessness should be encouraged.

Nothing is more annoying to a motorist than to drive ten miles into the country on Sunday to see a friend and then find his spring chickens are not large enough to fry.

FOOT TEST

By N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist
People's Foot Comfort, Cov., Ky.

Now friends I am going to ask you to do something which I think will give you the answer to the trouble you are having with your feet.

No, you must do just as I say, so you will understand what is meant when I say . . . Most All Weak Feet Roll Inward. Now, friends take off both shoes right now. Please stand up, both feet side by side about six to eight inches apart with the same amount of weight on each foot. Now, this is important! Relax all muscles in your feet and legs. About 7 out of 10 of you will find that your feet roll inward. In other words, your feet go down on the inside, some of them all the way down to the floor. You probably have one of the four stages of weak feet . . . first degrees, about ¼ of the way down; second degree about ½ way down; third degree, 3-4 of the way down; and fourth degree, all the way down on what is commonly known as flat foot.

But, here's the important think to remember, two important things in fact! when your feet roll inward and go down, you are shutting off the nerve and blood supply going into the bottom of your feet. The result is poor blood circulation which often lets chemical deposits or waste matter form at the points of your feet and lower limbs.

Now, the second important thing is this, weak, inrolling feet also cramp nerves, then through nerve relaxes, some weaker part of the body is usually effected. Remember, when you cramp the nerves in your feet, you cause reflexes to be sent to some other part of the body that is more sensitive and has less resistance. Then old mother nature comes right back at you with backaches, headaches, or something worse.

TO THE LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS OF BOONE COUNTY:

Whereas, the Kentucky Legislature has passed recently a New Liquor Control Law which greatly affects the moral and religious life of the citizens of Boone County. And

Whereas, the present enforcement officers of our county have to our knowledge satisfactorily enforced previous laws, we the Ministerial Association of Boone County encourage and pledge our support of the aforesaid liquor control law. And

Whereas, the New Liquor Control Law provides that distilled spirits are not to be sold on Sunday, that distilled spirits are not to be sold to minors, and that persons under twenty-one years of age are not to be employed in places dealing with distilled spirits, that females are not to serve or to be served at bars, that distilled spirits are not to be sold to habitual drunkards, that drunkenness is not to be tolerated in places where distilled spirits are sold, and whatsoever else is contained in the law that pertains to the morality of the youth and women. And

Whereas, all this that is in the law are persuaded that the officers of our county will be as diligent in enforcing these laws as other laws of the liquor control law, considered by many to be more important. And

Whereas, we the Ministers of Boone County are interested in the enforcing of these laws, we will strive to educate and encourage the Christian people in Boone County to cooperate with the law enforcement officers.

Respectfully submitted,
Boone County Ministerial Association.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

ESTABLISHED 1875

VOLUME 63 — BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1938 — NUMBER 10

FOUR MEN ACCUSED

OF HIJACKING TRUCK IN BOONE COUNTY—TWO ARE CHARGED WITH TRANSPORTING WHISKEY ILLEGALLY.

Four men were arrested last week, one from Covington, one Newport man and two Carroll county men who were thought to be connected with the hijacking a liquor truck in Boone county last week.

Those under arrest are: Oscar E. Wehner, Newport, Stanley Holtman Covington, charged with transporting whiskey without permit; Herbert Crawford and Bernard Crawford, arrested by Carroll county authorities do not face specific charges.

Wehner and Holton were arrested Wednesday of last week as they started to drive off the Crawford property in a truck loaded with 91 cases of whiskey. They were charged with possession of unlicensed whiskey.

According to reports no definite connection has been established between the "hijacking" of 100 cases of whiskey from L. J. Walters, Cincinnati, Tuesday in Boone county, and the possession of the whiskey by the men now being held. However, an investigation is being made by state police.

The truck being used to transport the whiskey off the Crawford farm was definitely identified last Thursday by Sheriff Fisher, as one belonging to the Walker Motor Co. Newport. The truck was returned after it was explained it had been rented to Wehner.

The hijacked truck was found Wednesday abandoned along U. S. 42 near Union. Whiskey taken from the truck was signed to Lew Starks Co., Chicago, Ill., whiskey dealers..

CLEAN UP RURAL BOX WEEK

Unserviceable and unsightly rural mail boxes both retard the delivery of mail and detract from the natural scenic beauty of the highway. Particularly to be deplored are the nonregulation, old type, top-opening boxes, as well as makeshift receptacles which expose mail to the elements.

It is the desire of the Department not only to correct the above-mentioned unsatisfactory situation but to encourage all rural mail patrons generally to possess pride in their boxes, both in the manner of erection, neat stenciling, and tidy appearance.

To help accomplish these desirable objectives the department is designating the week of August 1 as "Clean up Rural Box Week."

Show Place To Be Changed On Next Thursday

LARGE CAR SALE IN PROGRESS AT DEPENDABLE MOTORS

What is said to be the first sale of its kind ever held in Northern Kentucky now is in progress at the large show rooms of the Dependable Motors, Inc., 412 Madison Ave. Covington.

The attractive feature is that it offers the public every car of their extensive stock at reduced prices with only a ten per cent. down payment. The method is very simple: The buyer selects hi car and pays only ten per cent. of he total purchase price as the initial payment. Only the buyer's signature is required—no co-signer or any other kind of endorsement is necessary.

The sale, which the management states is for a limited time only, also includes trucks, and every purchaser gets a 30-day guarantee. Some of the cars available now are listed in this issue of The Recorder.

SUPERVISORS START WORK

CHECKING FARMS FOR 1938 PERFORMANCE FOR BENEFITS UNDER ACP—TWO MONTHS REQUIRED FOR WORK.

Field supervisors began Tuesday morning checking Boone County farms for 1938 performance for benefits under the Agricultural Conservation Program, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Approximately two months will be required to complete the check on the 1938 farms listed for cooperation in this year's program.

Six supervisors began work Tuesday and six additional supervisors will probably start work the first of next week. All supervisors went through a four day intensive training period the past week and were submitted to a carefully supervised examination to prove their ability to properly do performance checking before starting. Those men who passed the examination and started work Tuesday were Wm. H. Moore, Wilbur E. Florence, Vernon Stephens, Virgil S. Vice, James O. Sams, and Ivan K. Norris. Those who probably will start the first of this coming week are David Houston, Chester Sturgeon, Wilbur Denniston, Wilfred Siekman, Alfred O. Robbins and Wood Edwards. Due to the close supervision required for the first few days' work it was necessary to divide the supervisors into two separate groups.

Aerial pictures of farm land are being used by the supervisors for the first time to locate and measure fields, farm boundaries, etc.

These pictures were taken from airplanes last winter at a height of around 3 miles. The farmers will look at the picture of his farm and will inform the supervisors what crops he has in each field and what seeding, use of limestone, phosphate or other soil building practice he has carried out on the various fields. The supervisors will mark these points on the picture and return the picture to the county office where the fields will be measured with special instruments. It will be of much interest to the average farmer to see how his farm and those of his neighbor's look from a photographic picture covering approximately 400 acres of land. The measurements secured from the picture are found to be more accurate than the ordinary ground measurements secured.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Lents, of Constance returned to their home Sunday after an extensive trip through the West. Mr. Lents called at the Recorder office Monday showing many articles which he picked up on his trip. Among the collection were horned toads, petrified wood and many beautiful stones.

Joe Anderson Descendant Of Boone County Lady; Greatest Kentucky Fighter

Colonel Joe Anderson, who makes his headquarters at The Joe Anderson Cafe, Dixie Highway, Erlanger, was the greatest fighter ever to represent Kentucky, sports writers unanimously agree when the veteran's name is mentioned.

And Joe Anderson was the grandson of Mrs. Ida Dickson Jackson, of Big Bone, Boone County, it was learned from Joe recently.

Though the ex-fighter's weight is now somewhere above 190 (he used to fight at 158), and though he's hardly in shape for a tough 10-round battle, his memories of times gone by have not dimmed a bit.

Still a young man, Joe does a lot of thinking about the "old times" when he was just one step from the top of the middleweight ladder. But let's follow the Boone County descendant from the beginning of his career.

He started on June 8, 1922, by winning from another youngster in a four-round match at the Ft. Thomas Army Post. In just seven fights he was classed as a feature fighter and given a "main go."

From then on he skyrocketed towards the top of the fistic heap—

Joe Anderson

some think his failure to win the crown was because he was rushed along too fast.

Joe paused in telling his story here to "have one on The Joe Anderson Cafe."

After hitting the big time of the fight game, he was booked for bouts in New York's Madison Square Garden and in the Olympic Stadium at Los Angeles, Calif. And he fought from Chicago into the deep Southland.

His best remembered battles were against Tiger Flowers, former middlewight champion; Dave Shade and Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat. He beat them all, with the Hudkins decision leaving him as the outstanding challenger for the middleweight championship.

Maxie Rosenbloom, while fighting in the middlewight class, clashed with Joe five different times. Later Maxie went on to win the light-heavy belt.

And it's because of Joe's memories of these events, together with the hospitality of The Anderson Cafe, that Kentucky's greatest fighter is usually surrounded at his bar in Erlanger.

Friends from all over the nation, Boone County included, make a point of stopping in to see the Colonel. And busy as he is, Jack Dempsey, former king of the heavyweights, never passes near without saying hello to his old friend.

Joe is still interested in the fight game and always attends the big events throughout the country. He stated that he witnessed the recent Schmelling-Louis fight.

PRESERVING FORESTS

It has been the common belief, in these later years, that the forests of our country were diminishing and the intensity of floods and their control depend on the lack and the planting of trees. Due to the active movement of reforestation we were apt to feel the nation was becoming treeless to such an extent that great forest areas were slowly being wiped out due to fire, the greatest menace, insects and overgrazing. A report, however, shows that a tenth of the U. S. is in National Forests, and being cared for by the Forest Service, they are successfully eliminating many fires and increasing the growth of wooded areas. This service replants seedlings where burnings have been too severe, besides their other duties. They have made great progress over their years of management with men sitting in look-out towers overseeing miles of forests, telephoning their dispatchers on the ground if fire appears, while the dispatchers immediately send out their "smoke chaser" on horseback to seek the cause and control it. Between 1910 and 1915 about 7000 acres out of each 1,000,000 in the National Forests were burned over. Between 1930 and 1935 only 2,000 acres out of 1,000,000 were burned.

It was estimated that 60,000,000 persons were in our National Forests this last year. There are various camps located through the parks and are popular for recreational purposes. Various people in Boone County have been among those in attendance at these spots and testify to their beauty and the care given them. It is believed that this year will exceed the last in visitors. Let us help in our way to preserve these bulwarks of a great nation.

DOMESTIC RECORDS

We recently read where a farm woman shows her 1937 diary with her daily work-out for one month. Many a woman in Boone County will get out her pencil to compare notes, and we feel this list isn't of greater length than that of housewives of this community. It looks mighty impressive in black and white! It reads as follows: 14 sewed garments which included dresses, aprons, slips, sleeping garments and a coat; she baked 45 loaves of bread, 74 cinnamon rolls, 11 pies, four batches of cookies and four cakes; she dressed 16 chickens for customers served 56 meals to company, and nursed ill members of the family for 14 days. This diary did not include the record of family washings, cleaning sweeping, dish-washing, bedmaking and other such daily tasks. This farm-wife contends she is not an exception but is not a bit busier than her neighbors. We often read of the hustle-bustle of the life of the city dweller, of her lengthy social engagements, and wonder now if her diary would top this farm woman's list of accomplishments.

PICNIC DAYS

The days of baked beans and lemonade, potato salad and pickles are upon us in full blast. A hot wind blows and someone is apt to suggest a picnic. There is no more pleasant custom in our American life, where a grown-up is permitted to romp with the youngest of them with a spirit of care-free enjoyment of simple pleasures. One can hardly be standoffish and stiff at a picnic gathering. It is a good thing for us to get away from the narrow streets that bound the gaze and form the same busy picture for us day in and day out. Sameness is a disease and our lives grow stagnant without a change. With a picnic you are really getting right down to earth with the feel of the cool ground and grass where you relax and breathe more easily. The pleasant talking with relatives and friends in such surroundings puts you in a more comfortable mood than if it was all being conducted around a dining table. Best of all it seems, is the assortment of delicious foods brought in all shapes and sizes of pans and dishes, which we work on with gusto and wind up by over-eating and retiring to a shady spot for a nap. If you haven't attended a picnic so far this summer, go out and get a group of friends to have one.

ROADSIDE SENTIMENTS

As we grow older and forget our early visions of a sky that was bluer, the grass that was greener and air that was balmier to the cheeks of a child, in our busier dwelling on the stress of survival for ourselves and our family, we are apt to lose the memories of those young years spent in roving over field and farm, from pasture land and sloping hill to the fishing stream running quietly at our side. Citizens are more likely to recall these childhood days when they chance to see the Sunday motorist go rolling by with is car laden down with wilting plants from nearby paths. Squeezed in warm hands or tucked into tight places these former beauties nod and droop with little remaining of their previous bravery. We too may have picked the roadside flowers, but to see them in their bedraggled glory brings to us the memory of those spots from where they came and where they bloom no more, and we again think of the fields of daisies and clover, the woods and lanes wheer waved the blossoms. They appear so hearty as they grow untouched but sadly wilt and shortly die after they are picked. They are really made to be enjoyed by all men rather than just a chosen few.

SPY BUSINESS

There has been, recently, a lot of excitement and concern over the publicity given to certain federal indictments in this country, over foreign espionage. There has come to the people various cases of the stealing of our military and naval secrets, the property of the U. S. Such revelations come from the inner sources and the indicted ones have been "caught with the goods." The subject has caused considerable discussion among the nation's citizens but a greater concern on the part of governmental officials. We are very apt to overlook the fact that any criticism, on our part, in regard to nations involved in the afair, would be to agitate a feeling of unnecessary opposition to a country engaged in the same practice as every other country—the employing of spies. Feeling runs high when guilt is proven in such cases, and no doubt a deserved punishment will be meted out the offenders with the usual accompaniment of widespread publicity. But it remains for the folks to remember that all nations have used this means of obtaining information of the secrets of foreign governments. The word "spy" has never been a pretty one, but has become a form of procedure in military relationships. When a spy is caught by a nation he is usually condemned as a traitor and a betrayer, but when he has come by secret information which benefits his country he is more apt to be labelled a hero and a patriot.

FALL GOOD TIME TO SOW ALFALFA

August is a good time to sow alfalfa in Kentucky, according to the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. A good seed bed can be had then, and the alfalfa can get a start without much trouble from weeds.

Where a field is being seeded to alfalfa for the first time, the seed should be inoculated. Commercial cultures may be used, or pulverized soil from an old alfalfa field may be mixed with slightly moistened seed.

A clover and grass seed drill gives best seeding results. Broadcasting after a cultipacker or drag harrow is considered satisfactory. Where drilled, 10 to 12 pounds of seed to the acre is sufficient; if broadcast, 15 pounds should be used.

GOOD RAM PAYS BIG DIVIDENDS

Divide the cost of the ram by the number of lambs he will sire, and it will be found that for a difference of not more than 50 cents a head on the lambs, a good registered ram may be had to head the flock, points out Richard C. Miller of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Buy a good, blocky. thick-set ram that will sire market-topping lambs, is Miller's advice. Then feed him well. A little grain should be included in his ration. Where conditions permit it is considered a good practice to keep the ram in a barn or lot during the day, turning him with the flock at night.

Lesson for July 31

SAMSON: STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS

LESSON TEXT—Judges 14:5, 6; 15:11-14; 16:15-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.—Ephesians 6:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Wasted His Strength.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How Strong Was Samson?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Who Is Strong?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Physical Strength and Moral Weakness.

There is no more tragic individual among the sons of men than the one who entered upon life with every promise of success, who has lived for a time in favor with God and with man, and then because of moral failure is set aside by God, shunned by man, and ends life as a disappointment and a failure. "And yet such disastrous climaxes of what should have been great and victorious careers lie all about us, and nowhere with such frequency and inexcusableness as among those whom God has called to preach, evangelize, and teach His Word. The saddest tragedy in all the world is a man who once knew the power of the Holy Spirit and who now walks the streets of some great city or is buried in the cottage of an unknown countryside, without power, without work, without joy, without the leading of the Lord. He knows a weariness that labor never gives, for he wakens every morning more tired and weary than when he went to sleep the night before" (Wilbur M. Smith).

The life story of Samson brings us the picture of God's patient and gracious dealing with such a failure, reveals the inexorable law of cause and effect in the moral realm as well as the certainty that the wages of sin not repented of and forsaken is death.

I. Physical Strength and Favor With God (15:5, 6).

Samson had the distinction (given to only one other Old Testament character) of having his birth announced beforehand. He was to be a Nazarite and was to "begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistine"—a commission which sin kept him from ever finishing. God gave him the marvelous heritage of a strong and healthy body as well as His own blessing upon him for carrying out the Lord's work. The fact that he is named among the heroes of faith in Hebrews indicates that he did have faith in God. Yet his life was a failure.

Samson would have been a great favorite in this athletic age. Let those who worship the body and glorify physical prowess take note that such strength is not sufficient to guarantee success in life, and may indeed be a source of temptation which may lead to spiritual and moral downfall. Those who live for the flesh "shall of the flesh reap corruption" (Gal. 6:8).

II. Moral Weakness and Spiritual Decay (15:11-14).

The portion of the lesson selected for our consideration from Judges 15 gives only an act of prowess on the part of Samson, but the reader will recognize it as one of the many deeds of Samson done as an expression of his uncontrolled sensual nature. Read the entire chapter and it will be evident that here is a man who, while occasionally responding to God's leading, is on the downward path of moral and spiritual decadence.

Scripture is absolutely honest in relating the facts as they are—and here it is not at all an attractive picture. It never is, although the world tries to make it appear to be. A learned audience of university people laughed with evident appreciation at the statement of a professor that "vice is always more interesting than virtue," little realizing that they thus bore testimony to their own attitude toward sin. If the liquor advertisements were honest enough to picture the agony of a drunkard dying of delirium tremens they would present the real truth, but they would sell no "booze."

III. Failure, Darkness, and Death (16:15-21).

Delilah finally betrayed the foolish Samson who apparently had become so sure of himself that he dared to venture anything. The man who was to be strong for God is now in prison, shorn of his strength, blinded by his enemies, and finally he kills himself even as he slays his enemies (16:23-31). Thus he threw away the life that had become to him but a burden and a disgrace.

"Thus he who began never completed his work. The column was broken in the middle. The story ends with a comma and a dash, blistered over by a tear. For the light is turned into darkness, and how great is the darkness" (J. M. Lang).

Now Power Can Defeat God

Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when it cometh. For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken.—Prov. 3:25,26.

The Spearhead

FOR THE LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM OF THE ROOSEVELT ADMINISTRATION

President Roosevelt said in his speech at Covington:

"Senator Barkley has taken a MAJOR PART in shaping not only the LEGISLATION but the ACTUAL POLICIES of past six years!"

"Senator Barkley fought valiantly AGAINST DOING NOTHING, and in favor of ACTION to meet growing NEEDS!"

Under the policies which Senator Barkley helped to shape, and under the action which he helped obtain when President Roosevelt was elected, the nation, Kentucky, and BOONE COUNTY have profitted.

Before the AAA program was adopted under these policies, Kentucky Burley tobacco growers in the years 1931, 1932 and 1933 received ONLY $26,000,000 each year. Kentucky Burley growers received $56,000,000 for their crops during each of the years 1936 and 1937. The income from dark tobacco was DOUBLED under the Roosevelt policies.

Under these policies which Senator Barkley helped to shape, the farmers of BOONE COUNTY on June 30, 1937, had received the sum of $253,799 in BENEFIT PAYMENTS. These payments were divided as follows:

1936 Conservation Program	$ 86,268
On Tobacco	$110,512
Corn Hog	$ 55,075
Wheat	$ 1,942

Among other federal funds which have come to BOONE COUNTY have been able to SECURE HELP through LOANS from the federal government. Loans in this county total:

Farm Credit Adm.	$ 5,510
Federal Land Bank	$392,900
Home Owners Loan Corp.	$188,481
Farm Security Adm.	$ 13,385
Land Bank Commissioners	$289,000
Reconstruction Finance Corporation	$259,765

BOONE COUNTY has received many other blessings from these policies of the Roosevelt administration, in the shaping of which the President said SENATOR BARKLEY TOOK A MAJOR PART.

BARKLEY can, and DOES, do things for Kentucky, FOR BOONE COUNTY. Kentucky, and BOONE COUNTY, need him at Washington.

Sen. Alben W. Barkley

STUDY THE FACTS CAREFULLY

The voters of the Commonwealth of Kentucky should think about the fact that the newspapers circulated in Northern Kentucky are using their columns in support of Governor Chandler for United States Senator, doing all that is in their power to control the voters of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to support the candidacy of Gov. Chandler, when the fact is that all of those papers are owned and controlled by foreign capital and are opposed to President Franklin D. Roosevelt because they can not control him and dictate to him the policies that they desire which is not for the best interest of the majority of our people.

Those interprises support what may be called Big Business or the interest of the extremely wealthy of this county. Those interests and the newspapers know that they must not publish a line in their editorial columns that would in the least tend to support our Senior Senator, Alben Barkley, a native born Kentuckian and one who knows not only conditions in Kentucky but of the entire United States. The capitalist controlling those papers care nothing about who is Senator if they can control his vote in the Senate and they well know that they can not control the vote of Senator Barkley—if they could dictate to him just how he should cast his vote a different story would be told.

Voters of Kentucky do not let the biased press, owned and controlled by non-resident capitalist who have for a long time denounced and opposed every effort of our great President Roosevelt to help those of us who have needed help during the past few years.... Do not forget that everything that is done by those who control these publications is in opposition to the policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt and they are doing all that is in their power to destroy his administration.

HERE ARE THE FACTS—DO NOT BE DECEIVED

On July 8th President Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Covington, Kentucky and gave his unqualified endorsement to Senator Alben W. Barkley's candidacy for the United States Senate. Due to the fact that the President's speech has been deliberately misstated and distorted by Governor Chandler and his politicians and some newspapers, we give you the exact words used by President Roosevelt in endorsing his Senate Majority leader:

"I have no doubt that Governor Chandler would make a good Senator from Kentucky—but I think he would be the first to acknowledge that as a very junior member of the Senate it would take him many, many years to match the national knowledge, the experience and the acknowledgement leadership in the afafirs of our nation of that son of Kentucky, of whom the whole nation is proud, Alben Barkley."

Senator Barkley is supported by Democrats, by friends of Roosevelt, by Labor, by the Farmer and by the people of modest means.

Chandler is supported by the Republican Party, by the big money crowd, by the utilities, by the Times Star a Republican Taft owned paper, by the Post a chain newspaper owned by Republican interests and which supported Hoover for President, by the Enquirer owned by the notorious Republican McLean family, all haters of President Roosevelt, and by the biggest and most corrupt state machine ever known in Kentucky. .....

THE ISSUE

Cold, case-hardened figures, compiled over a period of years reveal:

THAT Kentucky has not received the benefits, due her from the Federal Government, in proportion to the revenue paid by the State.

THAT Kentucky has been grossly discriminated against by Federal legislation.

THAT the farmer, the laborer, the veteran, and all of the people of the State, have been the victims of these discriminations.

THAT those benefits due Kentucky have either been swapped off to other States in return for personal favors, or

THE SENIOR SENATOR FROM KENTUCKY LACKS ABILITY AND PERSONALITY TO GET FOR KENTUCKY THAT WHICH IS KENUCKY'S.

MORE ISSUE

BARKLEY has delivered himself into the hands of Tom Rhea, the man who bolted the Democratic Party in 1935, and Selden Glenn, head of the Bipartisan combine, and Ruby Laffoon, the sales tax governor.

This group ran Kentucky into virtual bankruptcy; ruined the State's credit; shamefully neglected State institutions and failed to heed the needs of the people.

THIS GROUP, ousted in 1935, is attempting to regain control of Kentucky.

KENTUCKY'S BLACK SHAME has been blotted out by "Happy" Chandler's honest, courageous, business-like administration.

DO YOU WANT TOM RHEA, SELDEN GLENN AND RUBY LAFFOON BACK IN POWER TO WRECK THE FINEST STATE GOVERNMENTAL STRUCTURE EVER BUILT?

ACHIEVEMENT—OR RUIN?

Today Kentucky stands at the top of the states in modern business-like government. Her Reorganization Act is the envy of every other state; the progress made under "Happy Chandler has attracted nation-wide admiration and approval: Better schools, modern institutions, fine state and rural highways; a pay-as-you-go financial set-up and a HUGE STATE DEBT that is almost a THING OF THE PAST.

DO YOU INTEND THAT THESE THINGS SHALL BE UNDONE AND THE FUTURE OF KENTUCKY MADE UNCERTAIN. . . .

KNOW THE FACTS

BARKLEY never aided in writing the Old Age Pension Bill. He did not write any part of the Agricultural Adjustment Act. He has nothing to do with whether or not te farmer shall receive a "Cut-out" check.

IF HE HAS BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY OF THESE THINGS ASK HIM TO QUOTE YOU THE SECTION OF THE CONGRESSIONAN RECORD IN PROOF.

Barkley did not forget the farmer and the Old Folk on certain pieces of legislation as the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD will show.

He voted against low interest rates and a moratorium for farmers and against a Federal increase for Old Age Pensioners.

How To Preserve a Husband

Be careful in your selection. Do not choose too young. When once selected, give your entire thoughts to preparation for domestic use. Some insist upon keeping them in pickle, others are constantly getting them in hot water. This may make them sour, hard and sometimes bitter; even poor varieties may be made sweet, tender and good by garnishing them with patience, well sweetened with love and seasoned with kisses. Wrap them in a mantle of charity. Keep warm with a steady fire of domestic devotion and serve with peaches and cream. Thus prepared, they will keep for years.

A VACATION IN THE NORTH

I will try to describe our vacatin trip.

In our party were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ryle, Mr. White and myself. We started June 21, spent the first night in Indiana. The next morning we started on our way through Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. The drive was very interesting and the land very level. The trees were weeping mulberry and pine with wild flowers and much fern growing beneath them.

Michigan is the best prepared state for tourists of any state we have visited. You will find wayside parks with good drinking water, tables, benches and furnaces, where you can stop and camp if you so desire. We stopped at many of these places.

Michigan is a very beautiful state. There are so many lovely lakes. The small ones are dotted with beautiful water lillis and the larger ones with fishing boats.

We passed through some very fine farming country of wheat, potatoes, hay and strawberries. We also passed a very large oil field.

Our first night in Michigan was spent on Houghton lake. We went fishing and caught some very nice fish. We left the next morning for Mackanac City. This was a beautiful drive, the road passing through a forest of pine and silver poplar trees, wild flowers and many shrubs in bloom. The flowers were wild Iris. We would drive for miles by a lake shore. We passed many country churches and it makes one feel glad that all of the good old country churches are not closed. We gathered the memominee at a tourist park—this is wild rice and it has a very pretty red berry before it ripens.

We drove by Burton and Mullet lakes and stopped in Chebyongan for our supplies. We were headed for the Hiawatha National Forest. We came to the city of Mackinac and crossed the Straights. The boat would carry 100 or more cars. It was very foggy and after we left shore we could not see 20 feet. There were four boats lost in the fog. It took more than an hour to cross. We passed Mackinaç Island and then to St. Ignace. This was a lovely city and very cool. We drove for many miles by Lake Michigan, passed the sand domes which were very pretty and so different from anything we had seen. We passed through many lumber camps. Many of the houses here are one-room log cabins.

We visited a large spring the "Mirror of Heaven." It was named by the Indians. This spring is 400 feet across and forty feet deep, and is shaped like a cone. It is so clear you can see marbles and pieces of money on the bottom. It is a beautiful clear blue in color and the largest spring in America. There is a raft which you can ride across the spring, by pulling yourself with a cable. This spring is located in Indian Lake Park. We spent the night at Indian Lake, and our trip was to be a fishing excursion, so we rented a cabin and boat and went to try our skill. I was not very skillful this time for I did not catch any fish, but the Ryles caught two large pike. Percy caught an eight pounder and Polly a six pounder which supplied our needs for supper.

Now on to the wilds, as everyone would tell us when we would say we were going to the National Forest. We had a nice drive, passing one filling station and one home, where it had over the door, post-office. We saw many deer, one wolf and one bear on our way into the forest. We had a log cabin which was located on a ridge between two lakes and at the foot of another. The name of the lakes were Little Papoose, Big Chief and Beaver. There were several Beaver families in the lake and it is very interesting to watch them build their dams. There were eleven cabins there, and were occupied by people from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and several other states. These lakes were formed, as the legend goes, by Paul Bryan, the giant, who roamed the great North many years ago. Big Chief was formed by the right foot, Little Papoose by the left and Beaver by the cane with which he walked. These lakes are about fifty feet deep, two miles long and one mile wide. The fish in them are big mouth bass rock bass, pike blue gill and some perch. We caught several of the different kind and some very large . Mr. White caught the largest bass at the camp and I caught next to the largest, having very much of a thrill landing them. We stayed at this camp six days. Our guide when we went fishing was a native and the caretaker of the camp. We caught several nice speckled trout, but I enjoyed having him tell his trapping and hunting experiences. He and his wife with two small children are all the people in the forest in winter and the snow gets so deep that he can only travel on skis. The closest postoffice is 20 miles. There are many deer, bear wolf and all kinds of birds and the snow shoe rabbit.

We spent one day at Munsing on Lake Superior and visited picture rock and Minor Castle. The castle is a large rock extending out into the lake and it is two hundred feet from the top to the water. We took some pictures on this rock; it is the rock Father Marquette stood on and preached to the Indians in their canoes below him. We visited the beautiful hotel that stands where the Wigwam of Nokomois stood. We broke camp we went to Sault Ste. Marie, the Soo is the oldest white settlement in the country. Both French and British flags have floated over this city long before the days of stars and stripes. We visited the great locks, power house and other points of interst. The locks and canals were built by U. S. government. Through these locks all great lakes vessels touching Superior ports pass. The Soo locks show greater tonage records than any stysem of locks and canals in the world. There are four locks in all ,the oldest being the Weitzel locks opened in 1831. This lock is 515 feet long and 80 feet wide. Next comes the Poe lock, 800 feet long and 100 feet wide, which opened in 1896. The third is Davis lock, first used in 1914, and is 1,350 feet long and 80 feet wide. Fourth is Cabin lock, size of the Davis lock. The two most recent locks are Davis and Cabin, they are 250 feet longer than the famous Gatun locks at Panama. Two six hundred foot modern steamers can be locked through at once in either of these mammoth locks. We were fortunate in being at the locks when one of the large steamers was locked through. Other points of interest were International and Basadie Bridge and the Rapids of St. Mary's Falls and also the beautiful St. Marys river.

We crossed over into Canada and enjoyed our visit there very much. We visited an Indian village of the Chippewa tribe. They have many things made by this tribe in their birch bark wigwams. They trade with the Seminole Indians of Florida and also the Navajo of the West.

We left for home and I would like to make this trip again. We had a wonderful time although it was very cool, being from 28 to 32 degrees while we were there. But it would be pretty in winter when the snow gets 40 feet deep in some places and the temperature 40 below zero. We took many pictures, and this is the most interesting part of our trip.

"BARKLEY FOR SENATOR NOTES"

Sponsored by BARKLEY CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Louisville, Ky—Although the indorsement of Senator Alben W. Barkley by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, gives him the solid support of organized labor, Barkley had received the indorsement of numerous A. F. of L. locals in Kentucky before Green made his announcement Wednesday night.

Labor's League for Barkley, an organization composed of A. F. of L. members, was formed three months ago, and for a month has had headquarters adjoining the Barkley offices in the Seelbach hotel. This organization has been conducting an intensive drive for Barkley.

The Green indorsement cleared away any question of whether the conflict between the A. F. of L. and the Committee for Industrial Organization would interfere with the U. S. Senatorial race in Kentucky. John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, indorsed Barkley over two months ago. When he heard the news then, Governor A. B. Chandler, Barkley's opponent said: "That's fine. I'm glad Lewis indorsed Barkley. That means I will get the support of William Green and the A. F. of L."

Green revealed, however, that he never had any intention of not giving his personal indorsement and that of the organization to Barkley. In his letter to Edward H. Weyler, secretary of the Kentucky Federation of Labor, Green said:

"An examination of the record kept by the American Federation of Labor upon labor legislation shows that he voted favorably with a single exception upon measures sponsored and approved by the American Federation of Labor.

"His record in support of American Federation of Labor sponsored legislation is indeed unusual and exceptional. His service for labor and the fine record he made in support of labor legislation merits the support of the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor and all their friends in his campaign for re-election to the United States Senate.

"Such action would be in conformity with the prevailing political policy of the American Federation of Labor to support candidates for office regardless of political affiliation who have given support to legislative policies of the American Federation of Labor.

"What more could a representative in Congress do to merit and secure the support of the American Federation of Labor for re-election than to vote 100 per cent favorable upon labor measures originated and supported by the American Federation of Labor?

"In view of these facts, and in the light of the record made by Senator Barkley, the American Federation of Labor indorses his candidacy for re-election to the United States Senate, and we respectfully call upon the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor, as well as labor in general, will be promoted and advanced through the re-election of Senator Barkley to the United States Senate."

THE CARE OF THE FEET DURING PREGNANCY

By N. Tulch at Peoples' Foot Comfort Shoe Store, Covington

Preventive medicine plays a very large and useful roll in the practice of obstetrics. It is from this standpoint that the care of the feet should be considered.

The feet should be considered from two important angles; first, the increased weight which they will be called upon to bear, and second the impairment of return flow of blood from them, when the uterus begins to press upon the large vessels of the pelvis.

In most cases are complaints enumerated as follows: swelling of the ankles and feet; pains, cramps tingling, numbness, corns, callouses, ingrown toe nails and varicose veins. Varicosity may be avoided by improving the circulation of the feet.

Flat feet in pregnancy are caused by a rapid increase in the length and weight of the skeleton, apart from an equivalent increase in strength of muscles and ligaments throwing undue strain upon the structure of the arch. In early stages the patient complains of fatigue or weakness along the inner side of the legs, feet or ankles increased by exertion. Regular exercises should be instituted but the exercises ordered should by all means avoid jolts, running, sudden motions, going up and down stairs quickly, horse back riding, cycling, golf, tennis, etc. Walking should be encouraged. I cannot remind you too often that high heels are condemned; they do not only lead to affairs and backaches, but are often the direct cause of falls and accordingly are at times responsible for miscarriages.

As stated before, the American woman wishes to emerge from her confinement in as nearly perfect shape in every respect as possible, and is very desirous that the functions of child bearing should not leave here in an ugly shape.

Only with painstaking prenatal care and seeing to it that her feet get proper attention, can the obstetrician give her assurance of such results.

A very important part—your shoes should be correct—to be sure they are correct—go where specially trained shoe specialists will put your feet in balance relieving all foot strain.

AN INSPIRATION

Life is a burden imposed upon you by God. What you make of it, that will be up to you. Either a millstone around your neck or a diadem on your brow. Take it up bravely, bear it on joyfully, law it down triumphantly.—Gail Hamilton.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Bulldog Drummond's Revenge."
Sunday and Monday—"Bluebeard's Eighth Wife."
Wednesday and Thursday, Aug 3-4—"College Swing"

Europe's "smart set" is made the object of good-natured fun in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," the new Paramount comedy which will be Shown at the Gayety Theatre, Sunday and Monday, with Claudette Colbert and Gary Cooper heading the cast. It is an adaptation of the famous play by Alfred Savoir which caused such a sensation in Continental theatres.

Cooper plays the role of a multi-married multi-millionaire who is tamed by a French wife, played by Miss Colbert. The background of the comedy takes in such famed international resorts as the French Riviera, Venice, the Tyrolean Alps, Vienna, Switzerland and Paris.

Alma Mater does the Big Apple in the new Paramount musical comedy, "College Swing," which will be shown at the Gayety Wednesday and Thursday, August 3rd and 4th. Liberal education has never been so liberal as when interpreted by Burns and Allen, Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Edward Everett Horton and more than a dozen other front-rank comedy players. It is a madcap story of the class dumbell who inherits the college and sets about running it to suit her own taste. When she is in danger of losing it again, she saves the day by marrying the richest man in America and giving the college back.

SEWING MACHINE ORDER

To keep sewing machine drawers neat and convenient either fit cardboard partitions across or small boxes to form separate compartments for darning supplies, tapes and spools. Covered cold cream jars are nice for buttons and snaps. A piece of flannel for your needles will keep them together.

HOSIERY HINTS

Wash new hose before wearing as they will last longer. Rinse hose out after each wearing in mild suds and lukewarm water. Do not wring-squeeze them. Don't rub soap on hose. Shake out stockings, straighten seams and do not dry in extreme cold or hot temperatures. Be certain to fasten the garter above the run stop.

SHRUBBERY CARE

When evergreen trees of any variety begin to show brown or red spots, one can usually find the red spider, who is very busy this season. Dust the plants with a mixture of dry sulphur and dry tobacco in equal parts. Get the sulphur sold at seed stores and not the kind at drug stors. Do this at once and continue it three or four times during the season. A daily strong spray from your garden hose will also help.

WEEK'S BEST RECIPE

Hot Weather Salad: Combine kidney beans, chopped sweet pickles and walnut meats. Pile on lettuce and arrange egg slices around base. Serve with mayonnaise or highly seasoned French dressing. Another combination is composed of shrimps, celery, green peas, hard-boiled eggs garnished with tiny wedges of tomato and slices of cucumber.

"CHANDLER FOR SENATOR NOTES"

Sponsored By CHANDLER CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Louisville, Ky.—Illness of a governor and a senatorial candidate affects not one whit the campaigning plans of the Chandler family.

Thursday night Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler" was suddenly stricken while campaigning in Louisville and ordered to bed by the attending physician.

He was told he was to remain there and abandon campaign efforts until Tuesday.

Did that halt the drive for Democratic votes for the Governor in his race for the United States senatorial nomination?

Not for one minute.

Friday of last week found Mrs. Chandler in the middle of the State's politicial maelstrom campaigning and filling scheduled engagements in her husband's stead.

Throughout the day she hurried through industrial plants of Louisville and Jefferson County where scheduled appearances for her husband had previously been arranged.

And the workers liked it.

They apparently even liked it better than if the Governor had been there in person. They halted their tasks and listened to the "pep" talks of the State's First Lady, cheered her and then thronged around her to pledge their support to her stricken husband.

To give the campaign a little more added feminine "swing" Marcella and Mimi, the Governor's two daughters, aged 16 and 12, joined their Mother in bustling about in behalf of their candidate Father.

Friday, Marcella joined Mrs. W. B. Ardery, the Governor's State Campaign Chairwoman, and Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, his Fayette County Chairwoman, and journeyed to Winchester where she attended a woman's rally for the Governor.

Though she did not make a speech she mingled with the Clark County feminine supporters of her Father, shaking hands and urging them to vote for him.

Sunday Mimi grabbed the center of the stage when she presented the trophies to winners of the boat races held on the Ohio River at Covington and Newport. The Governor himself had previously intended doing this job.

Meantime Mrs. Chandler has continued her activities in her husband's behalf in and about Louisville.

"Happy" all the while was in his bed at the Kentucky Hotel bemoaning the fact that he had been forced to let up his campaign drive even for a day. But he smiled his famous smile when he heard of the doings of the Chandler women folks.

"Some gang, ain't they" he remarked to his visitors.

Only two members of the Chandler family thus far have not shown up in the campaign. They are A. B., Jr., or "Sonny Boy" as he is known, and "Little Dan." They have some excuse however as neither has yet reached the age of 10 years. It is reported, however, they were seen Saturday at the Soap Box Derby telling the boys about it—so the campaign goes on.

"Give us a little time and I think we could do as good as 'Daddy,'" says Marcella.

"Ain't it fun" grins Mimi.

And Mrs. Chandler just smiles and prepared to make another speech and perhaps sing "There's A Gold Mine In The Sky" or "Home on The Range,' 'songs that Happy has frequently sung on his campaign tours.

Truly a versatile and energetic crew, these Chandlers.

KITCHEN COOLNESS

All Summer Long

★

WITH A Modern ELECTRIC RANGE

Kitchen coolness depends a lot upon the type of equipment you use. Electric ranges are built to lock in heat. Thick insulation all around the oven does the trick. The outside stays so cool you can actually rest your hand on the top, even while baking. And there's no circulation of hot air through the oven and into the kitchen. Heat retaining construction in the surface units likewise concentrates heat where it belongs, does not wastefully diffuse it. Your kitchen stays as cool as any other room in your home when you cook electrically.

YOU GET COOLNESS

MANY DRIVERS DELINQUENT

AFTER SEPTEMBER DRIVERS WILL BE EXAMINED BY STATE HIGHWAY PATROLMEN BEFORE LICENSE IS ISSUED.

According to A. D. Yelton, Clerk of the Boone Circuit Court, there are quite a number of people in this county who have not obtained their Operator's License for 1938-39. Yelton has been advised by the Department of Revenue that all persons will, after the first of September, have to be examined by examiners appointed by the State Highway Patrol or members of the State Highway Patrol. After September 1st there will be no renewals, such as there has been during the last two weeks in July and as will be permitted during the month of August.

All persons desiring license will make application at the Clerk's office, and will, if they know how to drive, be given a temporary permit to drive until the time of their appointment with the examiners, who will be in the County Seat twice a month or oftener if necessary for the purpose of examining applicants and their cars and after the examination the license will be made out if applicant passes.

All persons between the ages of 16 and 18 must be accompanied by their father when they make application, that is providing they do not have last year's license. If they have last year's license they may obtain a renewal, because their father's signature on their last year's application is of record.

For the first time since the beginning of the Operator's License law the officers will have an absolute check on all people and will know who has and who has not bought their operator's license for the year 1938-39.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Island in the Sky."
Sunday and Monday—"Bringing Up Baby."
Wed., and Thurs., Aug. 10 and 11—"Her Jungle Love."

Three new songs, written by one of Hollywood's best known teams will be heard for the first time in the new Dorothy Lamour-Ray Hilland Technicolor romance, "Her Jungle Love" which will be shown at the Gayety Wednesday and Thursday Aug. 10 and 11. They are: "Jungle Love," "Coffee and Kisses," and "Lovelight in the Starlight," from the pens of Ralph Freed and Frederick Hollander, who wrote the recent hit, "Moonlight and Shadows," introduced by Miss Lamour and Milland in their "Jungle Princess."

In addition to the new popular tunes, genuine native melodies and chants, gathered from Samoa and other sub-tropical isles, form the musical background of "Her Jungle Love." Under the direction of Boris Morros, old South Seas love songs and battle chants were adapted for inclusion in the picture and furnish a realistic background for this story of love on a remote South Pacific island.

In a spectacular reversal of form Katharine Hepburn turns from the brilliantly dramatic "Stage Door" to the maddest of light comedy roles in RKO Radio's "Bringing Up Baby." This picture will be shown at the Gayety Sunday and Monday.

The actress makes the transition with ease, and seems as much at home in farce as she has appeared in her more emotional pictures.

Cary Grant is seen opposite Miss Hepburn in the film, and others in the cast include Charlie Ruggles, May Robson, Barry Fitzgerald and Fritz Feld.

RANGE BREEDING EWES PURCHASED

BY BOONE COUNTY FARMERS TO IMPROVE MARKET QUALITY OF LAMBS—EWES FREE FROM PARASITES.

Boone County sheep raisers are studying methods of improving the market quality of lambs, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Leaders in six community programs included last spring, special plans for a number of farmers to purchase from 10 to 15 western range yearling breeding ewes to study profitable returns compared with native breeding ewes.

Suitable breeding ewes were located in Montana and shipped to the Cincinnati Stock Yards on Tuesday of this week. Tuesday afternoon J. C. Bedinger, Walton purchased fifteen head; John Noel Walton, 10 head; William Ryle, of Walton, 15 head; C. L. Tanner, of Florence, 12 head; Joel Gray, Burlington, 40 head; J. C. Hauer, Bullittsville, 10 head.

A large number of growers have planned to inspect the shipment of breeding ewes and to make purchases Wednesday. These ewes will be run with the regular native flocks for camparison in wool yield, and quality and economy of lambs produced.

The Western ewes direct from the range are now free from parasites and expected to yield a heavier fleece of wool and higher quality market lambs when crossed with native purebred Hampshire and Southdown rams. The ewes are expected to cost less than the expense of raising choice native ewe lambs to the same age.

SAFE AT HOME?

"Home sweet home. There's no place like home," would lead us to believe in the safety of them as well as the sanctity of them. Our home is our refuge and our shelter. We seek it as the surest and safest place in our existence of disorder and confusion and little stop to think that 38,500 persons perished in accidents in the home during the year of 1936, while traffic, the more publicized evil, took 37,800 lives. Would we be safer to stay in the street instead of in the house? Our Sunday afternoon drive causes us to remember the Monday morning papers with their list of auto fatalities—but what about those accidents that happened to the fellow who remained at home? Statistics compiled by Federal relief workers, under the supervision of the National Safety Council, have made the most complete research into home accidents occurring in Chicago where 4,602 cases were investigated from records of the Cook County Hospital.

There are many traps of danger to be found in homes, the kitchen leading as the worst with its poor stove connections, careless usage of kerosene and gasoline; grease, water, and bits of food on the floor resulting in serious falls; steam from covered kettles causing fatal burns, and so on we could enumerate the various hazards. There are many accidents, caused by stairways too steep and with steps solding odds and ends of things. Cellar steps are usually too dark for safety. Skidding on scatter-rugs and on polished floors, and slipping in bathtubs always enter into the picture. Accidents occur in bedrooms where little children fall out of bed or are smothered by too many covers or pillows. Falling on and over furniture in the dark is apt to happen to old people. There are many other kinds we have not mentioned that have probably taken place in your own home. The safest way out of such a situation is to eliminate the causes by getting together with your family and putting on a safety campaign in your own house.

HORSE SENSE

It is almost a rarity to see a horse on the city streets as used to them as are folks in Boone County. The horse still seems to rule the farm but there is not much left for him in the city except for hauling requiring numerous stops, and even then the auto seems to be more popular. With the introduction of the auto, the freight truck and the tractor, it seemed the horse was doomed to oblivion. It was said the horse had lost its usefulness and its hold on our sentiment. Many years have passed since we first heard such talk, but the horse we still have with us. The greatest change that has taken place concerns the breeding of the horse. The popularity of horseback riding increasing regularly, as well as the ever-popular horse races throughout the country tends to demand a better breeding in the horse world. There was a time when any equine with four legs was termed a horse, when often he might better be deemed a "plug." Today, most horse flesh has been standardized to such an extent that most of them are splendid examples of select and scientific breeding. They command as high a price as at any time in our history. It is estimated that the horse population of the cities today is about the same as it was in 1927. Figures of the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicate that about 14,000,000 horses are in use. A comparison of these figures with peak years, 1909 and 1910 when 20,000,000 horses were in use, shows a very small decrease. Today we have fewer of the cheap plugs and more of the finer bred animals capable of better performances, and despite our mechanical progress the horse remains with us.

—o—

WHAT IT MEANS

The farmer holds a prominent place in the conversation of the nation and yet there are many people who do not know how the word "farm" originated. We think of a farm as a place where hens lay eggs, cows are milked and vegetables are grown. Yet to "farm out" anything means to rent or lease land for a certain period at a specific price. One explanation was that the word appeared when a "farm" was a district of country, or section of land, leased or farmed out for the collection of government revenues. Following this came the reasoning that a farm was any piece of land leased for purposes of cultivation. It is possible, today, for a farmer to own his farm and still call it a farm, as it means any land used for agricultural purposes.

The southern farm used to be termed a plantation and the western farm was known as a range. We use the word "farm" now to include these two, as well as the tracts which specialize in products and are known as "chicken farm" and "fox farms." Wherever it is and whatever it is called, we owe a lot to the farm, and learning a bit more about them won't hurt us and will be worth a bit to the politician, whose sole aim in life (according to the politician), is to "do something for the farmer."

NATIONAL SALESMEN'S CRUSADE

There is being inaugaurated, throughout the country, a National Salesmen's Crusade, which started in the offices of a Detroit Michigan, corporation, and is now spreading to various parts of the country. This campaign, with it's motto, "Sales Make Jobs," is intended to stimulate buying by the employed in order to give work to the unemployed and also increase their purchasing power. One salesman could not do this but the cooperation of many groups of salesmen has proven effective. Their idea is to show the people there is a difference between a rational amount of thrift and an amount of certainty that may prove false. There are folks who have felt that their security depends on the hoarding of earned profits and this crusade is trying to show the buyer the result of such an attitude. It is hoped to inspire confidence and over-ride fear. Lincoln, Nebraska, was the city chosen for the firm campaign, due to it's location in the heart of the nation, it has no principal industry and is a typical American city. Winning such favor in Lincoln three other cities became interested and now there are hundreds of towns supporting it. There are larger numbers of citizens besides sales people who are lining up in the battle for business.

—o—

THE NATURAL BACKGROUND

We have always felt closed to God in nature and we have always realized that the rural dweller is especially religious, maybe due to his close contact with nature. There is a book recently written by Dr. Malcolm Dana, entitled "Christ of the Countryside," which brings us a much better realization of the man who lives on the land and tills the soil, and his relationship to religion. This daily association with the natural things would tend to make a closer contact in religious thought. As we all know, the Bible story starts with a scene in a garden and it closes with a scene in a famous garden. The Bible, throughout, deals with the subjects of soil and seeds, harvests and grain, with thoughts concerning loaves and fishes. The country was the setting for miracles and the basis of thought in many parables. He found his peace away from crowds and in the serenity of the open spaces. It would be an enlightment for many a reader to take his Bible and go through it, listing each incident and statement regarding the association of land and Christ, and to know how close we are to Him in this pdace.

When grease has been spilled on grass matting cover the spot thickly with powdered chalk and moisten with a few drops of benzine. When this has evaporated brush off the chalk and the spot will have disappeared. Do not let any light in the room until the benzine has thoroughly evaporated.

These mental experts at criminal detection will get to be worth a lot more to us when they start pointing them out before they commit the murders.

RUTH: ADVENTUROUS FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:6-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.—Ruth 1:16.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Girl Named Ruth.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Story of Ruth.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ruth's Wise Choice.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—An Adventurous Faith.

Out of the dark fastnesses of an underground dungeon into the brightness and warmth of God's sunshine—such is the transition we make when we turn from the moral and spiritual failures of Samson to consider the lovely story of Ruth. She lived in the midst of the travails and the sorrows of life, in fact we find her at the beginning of the book which bears her name, a widow who has lost all that the world would hold dear. Yet she, because of her purity of life and devotion to God rises higher and higher, while the one of whom we spoke last week, starting with every advantage, slipped lower and lower because of his sin.

Ruth was the great-grandmother of King David, and thus this Gentile woman became one of the ancestors of Jesus. (See Ruth 4:22 with Luke 3:22.) Many folk are greatly concerned about their ancestry—one could wish that more were concerned about living such lives and developing such characters as will make them good ancestors.

Teachers and classes will do well to read and study the entire book of Ruth—only about three pages long in most Bibles—and give attention to the full story of her life, especially the picture of the kinsman-redeemer, to be later fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ. We must confine our comments largely to the printed portion which reveals Ruth first as a loyal and thoughtful daughter-in-law, then as one whose love was not to be denied by sorrow or circumstance, and finally as one so bound to her mother-in-law in unity of spirit that she became one with her and her people.

I. Commendable Loyalty (vv. 6-10).

Tragic misfortune had visited Naomi, who with her husband and two sons had gone from Bethlehem to Moab in a time of famine. Not only had her husband died but also her two sons, who had married Gentile women, leaving three widows in one family to mourn together. Naomi craved the fellowship of her own people in her hour of trial and arose to return to her own land.

Her departure brought out in the two daughters-in-law the expression of kindness and loyalty which should exist in every family, but which is all too often lacking. Her own testimony concerning these girls of Moab is that they had dealt "kindly" with her and with the dead. That word speaks volumes. There is so little genuine kindness in the world. Both Orpah and Ruth went with her on the way—protesting their loyal purpose to go with her all the way. Thus far the two sisters were not differentiated—but the next incident reveals Ruth as the one who had an

II. Undeniable Love (vv. 11-14).

No one could for a moment condemn Orpah for yielding to her mother-in-law's entreaty that she return to her own people. She affectionately kisses Naomi and in tears turns away. "But Ruth clave unto her."

Such love cannot be denied. It is the most precious possession that a man can have, apart from his fellowship with God. The love of a devoted father or mother, of a noble helpmate, or of a little laddie or lassie, these are the things that really make life worth while, that stand out as an oasis in the desert of life, as a light in the darkness.

But Ruth takes one more step. Her kindness and loyalty, her unswerving love lead on to a confession of her faith in the true God, and the declaration of an

III. Inseparable Unity (vv. 15-18).

Literature knows no more beautiful gem than verses 16 and 17. It was the Great Commoner, Bryan, who said, "We cannot hope to contribute to literature a sentence so exquisite and thrilling as that into which Ruth poured the full measure of a noble heart, but we can imitate her devotion."

The story is told of a fine young Englishman who left his betrothed sweetheart to go to California during the great gold rush. He was going to make a fortune and then send for her. He sent her his first gold nugget. But alas, there were none to follow and soon he became not only poverty stricken, but ill. In noble sacrifice he decided to release her from her promise, and wrote to tell her so. She (and one could almost believe her name was Ruth) took the treasured nugget, had it made into a ring engraved as a gift from her to him, with the additional words "Ruth 1:16, 17." In due time it reached the young man with its tender and inspiring message—"Intreat me not to leave thee," and the assurance of her devotion until death.

May this dizzy and bemuddled world have many more characters like Ruth.

A VOTE FOR BARKLEY

IS A VOTE TO

Preserve The Democratic Party

The Democratic voters of Boone County should consider the Democratic Party as a whole when they go to the polls Saturday to cast their vote for United States Senator. Vote for ALBEN W. BARKLEY, President Roosevelt's choice.

A MAN WHO HAS PROVEN HIS LOYALTY

Sen. Alben W. Barkley

A TRUE FRIEND OF THE FARMER AND LABORER

The Vital Question For Governor Chandler To Answer

If Governor Chandler should defeat Senator Barkley and be elected to the United States Senate, for whom would he vote to succeed Senator Barkley as Democratic leader, an Administration man—or an anti-Administration man?

That is the first question the Governor would have to answer after he was sworn in, and he couldn't dodge it there or then.

Democratic voters would permit him to dodge it until after the August primary to their own confusion; for upon his answer to that question depends a clear-cut answer to the question he has propounded to them by his candidacy: Shall the Democrats of Kentucky maintain harmony in the discharge of party responsibility at Washington by returning the Senate Majority Leader for another term or precipitate another contest between Administration and anti-Administration forces in the Senate, such as took place upon the death of Senator Robinson and resulted in a narrow Administration victory by the election of Senator Barkley?

That is why the President and his enemies are taking sides for and against Senator Barkley and why Senator Logan is campaigning for him, contrary to custom. That is why the whole country is so interested in the momentous decision to be made by Kentucky Democrats; for they are going to decide August 6 whether the Democratic Party shall be split as it was in the midst of the second Cleveland Administration by antagonism between its leaders in the Executive and Legislative Departments — as the Republican Party was in Hoover's term—and disintegrate into an opposition rabble.

The prestige of the National Administration would receive such a blow by Senator Barkley's defeat that, if there were any spineless Democrats in the Senate, they would take fright and give the anti-Administration bloc a majority. Where would Governor Chandler stand in that crisis? Would he demonstrate his avowed friendship for the President by supporting a friendly candidate for leader at the risk of retaliation by the anti-Administration bloc if it won? Or would he join them and wreck the party for what he would gain?

Since Governor Chandler has deliberately raised both the question the party in Kentucky has to answer August 6 and the one he would have to answer if the party recalled Senator Barkley, he should be candid and tell the voters now what he would do. He declares he is a friend of President Roosevelt. The acid test of his friendship is whether he would support as trustworthy a friend of the President as Senator Barkley is to succeed Senator Barkley as Majority Leader.

The Courier-Journal realizes that this is a tough question for Governor Chandler to answer. Whatever he says will be used against him; but Governor Chandler has raised all these tough questions himself. If he says he would support an Administration man for Senate Majority leader, there is no sense in supplanting Senator Barkley with a successor who would vote for a leader just like him, surrendering the honor to another State. If the Governor says he would support an anti-Administration leader, then the issue is squarely drawn. If the Governor is not candid with the voters upon a matter vital to the party's future, they may draw their own conclusion about the sincerity of his friendship for the National Administration. The voters know where Senator Barkley stands.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Grant county dealers are stocking materials for heating tobacco barns, in response to wide interest in improved methods of curing. Several modern barns have been built and many have been remodeled to include ventilating systems.

Hundreds of acres of crimson clover and Italian rye grass were sown at the last cultivation of corn in Harlan county. Ten pounds of each seed were used to the acre. Dr. H. K. Buttermore plans to sow 200 acres of grass this year, some in corn and the rest on idle land.

Taylor county farmers averaged $10.75 per 100 pounds on 527 pooled lambs. The lambs were docked and castrated and fed in creeps. They averaged 85 cents a hundred over "bucky" lambs, and topped the market by 50 cents.

Clinton county farmers are in the market for beef cattle breeding stock. Dyer and Upchurch of Albany, have purchased 30 Angus heifers and a highly bred sire, and plan to build one of the largest and best herds in Southern Kentucky.

Six Campbell county flock owners who kept records in May found 5 cents a dozen to be the feed cost of eggs. The hens averaged 18 eggs, or an average of 22 cents each. The six farmers had a profit of $180 from their chickens for the month.

Four carloads of individually selected ewes were purchased by Lincoln county farmers, to be used principally to replace ewes culled out of flocks. The organization of a county protective association has stimulated interest in sheep.

The Garden

THE FALL GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Of the far too unusual fall garden vegetables named several weeks ago, only head lettuce and the winter radishes remain to be discussed.

Fall Lettuce—To produce head lettuce, true heading varieties should be used. While there are several that perform satisfactorily, New York or Wonderful is best.

The seed should be sown about August 1, in a spot shaded half the day, in well prepared, crumbly soil only moderately rich. When the seedlings have four leaves they should be set in a cold frame which is filled with soil, two parts, and well-rotted manure one part. The spacing should be 8 or 10 inches each way. If the frame is in a sunny location, it is wise to construct a shade screen, two feet or so above the top of the frame, so that air may freely pass. This may be a light frame over which tobacco canvas is stretched ,or slats of wood or tree trimmings may be used to make a broken shade.

As necessary, watering should be done to keep growth going at top speed and two or even three side-dressings of nitrate of soda should be given, at the rate of one pound to 100 plants.

About October 1, the first heads will be ready. At about this time, too, the screen may be removed and when frosts start, the bed should be covered at night with canvas, or better, with glass sash. As the season becomes colder, the cover may be left on during most of the day as well, though occasional airing should be given if sash is used. The sign is the "sweating" of the glass. At this time, growth will have stopped, but the lettuce will remain in price condition until used, or until the frame or its cover proves inadequate for the weather,grown colder and colder.

Winter Radishes—A pleasing addition to any garden, would be winter radishes. True, most gardenes make fall sowing of radishes, True, most gardeners make fall sowings of radishes, spring seed left-overs, perhaps, but the supply is rarely adequate.

Winter radishes, on the other hand, are definitely a fall crop, sown with a difinite purpose in mind, that of storing them for the winter in the same manner that turnips are stored. Special varieties are used, Rose Chinese, White Chinese and Black Spanish. Most seedsmen carry them, or can get them, if reminded.

The time to sow is during August. Because of the great length of these radishes, the seed bed should be turned deeply spaded and well prepared all the way down. Winter radishes may follow any crop in the garden but cabbage, early radishes, turnips and greens of the cabbage family; part of the early potato ground would do nicely. The seed should be dropped more thinly than for the smaller radish, but covered lightly, half-inch. Radish ground, it should go without saying, should not be unduly "rich" with manure, else they will "go to top."

At seedling stage sometimes the fleabeetles are troublesome; Bordaux mixture is the control. Later, the cabbage worm may come. Although usually the loss of leaf tissue is not serious to the radishes, occassionally it may be; spraying or dusting with the same material used to control the worm on cabbage will suffice.

Winter radishes endure quite low temperatures, but whenever it is the custom to lift the turnips it is intended to store, then radishes should be pulled, too, and handled thereafter in exactly the same manner winter turnips are, for their storing is identical.

About 100 Bell county farmers are enrolled in a garden contest sponsored by the Middlesboro Chamber of Commerce.

TO THE VOTERS OF BOONE COUNTY

We are now nearing the end of a great campaign. I am happy to have met and worked with many fine people of Boone County, who previously I had not known. You have been very conscientious and diligent in your efforts for Gov. Chandler and you have been very faithful to me as Gov. Chandler's chosen leader in this County. In this message to you I would like also to give a message to those people of Boone County whose sentiments are with Gov. Chandler and who have taken no part in this race. Your vote on Saturday will be your valuable contribution to the man who has been our loyal and courageous friend.

I want also at this time to give a message to those people of this county who have been misinformed by a neighbor from one of our adjoining counties. First, you have been told that the Old-Age recipients should be receiving $30 a month from a revenue raised by an addition production whiskey tax. The Department of Revenue in making a complete study of this subject by Certified Public Accountants and this study revealed that if an additional cent of tax was imposed upon the production of whiskey that every large distillery in the State would be moved to a state or States where such a tax was not imposed.

Second: You have been told that the Tobacco Grading Bill was lost through the special effort of the Governor. This bill was not introduced until the very end of the session, and insufficient time under the Constitution of this State caused the bill to be left on the clerk's desk for the third reading. Each bill must have three reading before it can be called for a vote.

Third: Nor will the aged persons who have been given assistance be immediately after election, taken from the rolls. The only thing that will remove these persons will be their own ineligibility. And the eligibility rules will remain the same.

Fourth: This is the only time in the history of this State that the people of our district have failed to have representation in the Kentucky Senate. For a personal reason, that reason being that the Governor would not discontinue the services of a certain individual, our representative voted against and fought every measure introduced and passed, beneficial to the people. In return for their money they received no services.

Thanking you again for your local services and wishes for your greater success,

Yours very truly,
JAMES W. HUEY,
Chandler Campaign Chairman.

WHEN YOU CAN

Cut string into a desired length (depending on size of jar tops). Lay cord over top of jams or jellies before pouring on te paraffin. When you wish to remove the top the ends of the cord hanging over edges of jar will facilitate in removing without breaking paraffin. . . . Warm jelly glasses before putting in the jelly, as it helps it to thicken, or set them in the sun.

"BARKLEY FOR SENATOR NOTES"

Sponsored by BARKLEY CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Louisville, Ky., July 29—A statement in which it is charged that Governor A. B. Chandler is attempting to "cash in" on public school sentiment in Kentucky by making claims in his campaign for U. S. Senator which are not substantiated by the record was issued today by Harry W. Peters, state superintendent of public instruction. Mr. Peters declared that Governor Chandler has attempted to mislead the people with reference to the state school per capita and free textbooks.

"In practically every public appearance during the Senatorial campaign, Governor Chandler boastfully mentions a state per capita of $12 for schools," Mr. Peters said. "The Governor likes to brag of his accomplishments, but not once has he told his listeners that the state school per capita was last year two cents less than it was in 1934-35. In 1934-35, the school per capita was $11.60; in 1937-38 it was $11.58.

"At the beginning of the previous administration in 1931, our state school per capita was $9. At the close of that administration, or when Chandler became Governor in 1935, the state per capita was $10.95. This represented an increase in 1935-36 over that of 1931-32 of $1.95 per child. What the Governor should have said is: 'I have kept the school per capita (and the free textbook appropriation, too) at approximately the same figure as it was when I became Governor.'

"Governor Chandler's stand on an increased per capita for schools was clearly demonstrated during the past session of the General Assembly," Mr. Peters continued. "The Kentucky Education Association, the eleven district education associations, and the State Department of Education had formulated a three-point program. One of the objectives of this program was a $15 per capita. Mr. Chandler openly denounced such a program, just as he denounced an increased appropriation for free textbooks and an active teacher-retirement system. Referring to the $15 per capita, Governor Chandler said: 'No friend of education would advocate that.' These words were quoted by the press.

"Apparently Mr. Chandler is very proud of a $12 school per capita, even though it is this meager sum that is the prime cause for Kentucky's ranking 44th educationaly among the 48 states. Kentucky actually spends annually on a per capita basis less than 60 per cent as much money for education as does the average state in the United States.

Turning to a discussion of the free textbook issue Mr. Peters continued: "It is true that a portion of Kentucky's school children are receiving free textbooks. However, it should not be forgotten that this is being done in spite of Chandler, and not because of him.

"The present free textbook law in Kentucky was passed in 1928, but was inoperative until House Bill No. 12, which provided an annual appropriation of $500,000 for free textbooks, was passed during the special session of the legislature in 1934—two years before Mr. Chandler became Governor. At that time, Mr. Chandler was Lieutenant-Governor, and fought strenously to prevent passage of the bill making available money for the purchase of free textbooks. Pages 935, 936, and 948 of the Senate Journal, Extra Session, 1934, clearly indicate Mr. Chandler's attitude toward the bill. At 11:05 p. m., July 2, 1934, he vacated the chair and refused to preside during the passage of the bill. Mr. Robert Humphreys (now State Commissioner of Highways), closely allied with Mr. Chandler and then president pro tempore of the Senate, was also absent. This incident was calculated to adjourn the Senate and thus kill House Bill No. 12 and others. However, that was not the case. Senator James Thompson was elected presiding officer and the Senate enacted into law certain bills. House Bill No. 12 was among them.

"Two years later (1936), when Mr. Chandler was Governor, he again clearly demonstrated his attitude toward free textbooks," Mr. Peters continued. "He bitterly fought the $500,000 annual appropriation set by the previous administration. He tried to budget only half that much—$250,000—and it was only by the hard fighting of the school people and friends of education in the legislature that the amount that the previous admiinstration appropriated was not dangerously reduced.

"Today, Governor Chandler pictures himself as 'handing out' free textbooks to Kentucky's children. Here again he never mentions the fact that he blankly refused to cooperate with the Kentucky Education Association, the eleven district education associations, the department of superintendence of the Kentucky Education Association, school people in general, and the State Department of Education in granting their requests, among which was one for an increased appropriation for free textbooks.

"The free textbook appropriation in Kentucky is exactly the same as it was under the previous administration, yet Mr. Chandler is trying to mislead the public and make them believe he was the first person in the state to conceive the idea and act upon it."

Between 10,000 and 20,000 men enter the navy every year and the same number are returned from the Navy to civil life. These men returned to civilian life have been physically developed by correct exercises and have been taught useful trades, self control, obedience, loyalty, and patriotism. Furthermore, foreign cruises have given them the opportunity to compare American customs with those of other countries; and the men return with a greater love and admiration for their own country and institutions. In the words of our Ex-Secretary of the Navy, Curtis D. Wilbur, "It is the greatest educational institution in the world."

The quotas for first enlistments into the U. S. Navy are steadily being increased for both white and colored boys. Many months have passed since such an opportunity has offered itself to the young men of America. The usual three to six months wait, after applying, is decreasing with every increase in quota. For information, get in touch with the Navy Recruiting officer nearest your home.

SKIN CARE

In order to clear up a sallow skin, pimples or other skin blemishes a beauty diet will bring results. The diet is easy to follow in summer as it consists of fresh vegetables and fruits. Drink all the fruit juices you can—grapefruit, orange, lemon and tomato juices. Eat fresh vegetables and if in salad form, without rich dressings. Eat small amounts when you are hungry instead of waiting until meal time and having large portions. Stay on the liquid diet for three days, if possible, and you will find your whole body will benefit, as well as your skin. When you go back to your regular diet be sure to get at least 10 glasses of liquids between your regular meals.

CHARACTER REQUIRED

There is no place in the Navy for the weakling, the moron, or the coward. This is a man's world and character is necessary. Last year 129,510 men applied for admission to the Navy, 15,094 were accepted, or approximately one out of every eight. This permits the recruiting officers to be very selective in the men they accept. Before a man is enlisted his home conditions are investigated and his character ascertained by consulting his school teachers, church officials, former employers, merchants with whom he traded, the family physician, his playmates, and even the policeman on the beat. References are required from many of these and if he has lived in more than one place, his record at each is carefully searched. Naturally he must also pass a rigid physical and mental examination. Any man whose life can stand such inspection must be of character, and such are the men in the Navy today.

SUGGESTS PEST AND DISEASE PREVENTION

Handling livestock with a view to controlling diseases and parasites either by eradication or prevention is suggested by the Department of animal pathology at the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. A list of precautions follows that will aid in preventing the introduction of diseases and parasites into herds and flocks on the farm.

Keep animals healthy by providing clean and sanitary barns, sheds, houses, lots, pastures and ranges.

Feed them enough of the proper feed and supply plenty of clean water, common salt and fresh air.

Clean barns, sheds, houses and small lots or ranges at regular intervals.

In infected areas, keep livestock protected against certain diseases, uch a hog cholera, chickenpox, and blackleg, by vaccination.

Do not visit farms when disease is known to exist.

Place herds under supervision of qualified practicing veterinarians or state or federal livestock sanitary officials for the eradication of such diseases as tuberculosis, Bang's lisease, pullorum disease and foot-and-mouth disease.

Make every effort to obtain disease free stock for breeding and feeding purposes.

When making additions to the herds and flocks on the farm, keep the new animals separate from the others for two to six weeks, to be sure they have no disease or parasites.

We never expected to live to see the day when the vacation mark above the knee could be seen as plainly as if it had been put on the face.

It's hard to find an old-fashioned boy who can remember when his supper had to be delayed because his mother was at the barber's, getting her neck shaved.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

ESTABLISHED 1875

VOLUME 63 — BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1938 — NUMBER 12

JEFF MILLS SENTENCED TO 16 YEARS ON 4 CHARGES

Of Chicken Stealing in Boone County—Six Others Receive Sentences For Storehouse Breaking

Pleading guilty to all four indictments of chicken and meat stealing, Jeff Mills, ex-convict, was sentenced to serve 16 years in the State penitentiary Tuesday by a jury composed almost entirely of farmers from all parts of the county.

Mills was on parole at the time he was arrested by Kenton county authorities about three months ago, having served three years of a 6-year sentence which he received in Boone County for the murder of his brother-in-law, Chas. Young in 1933. It was unofficially stated that he will have to serve the remaining three years of his first sentence, then the 16-year term that he received here Tuesday, and Kenton county authorities have estimated that he will receive a two-year sentence from that county. This will bring the total to 21 years that will probably have to be served in full.

Mills received his 16-year sentence for the theft of 16 chickens and a small amount of cured meat. The thefts took place at four different places at different times, and only a small amount of loot was obtained each time. However, this should certainly be a lesson to our night prowlers that a Boone County jury can hand down some pretty tough verdicts.

John Upton, Venton Lipscomb, Elmer Lacally and Jack Gardner were also brought into court and pleaded guilty to storehouse breaking and received sentences of one year each in the State penitentiary. A second indictment was brought against John Upton, Venton Lipscomb, Chas. Stickrod and Harold Coleman on storehouse breaking and each received one year. This totaled two years for Upton and Lipscomb to serve in the State penitentiary.

Several other indictments were brought in by the grand jury, and several were found guilty and fined on drunken charges and other minor offenses.

The grand jury has been very busy this term, but was expected to finish by Wednesday afternoon according to Judge J. G. Vallandingham.

Those summoned for the various juries are as follows:

Petit Jury No. 1

Louis Clegg, Henry Deck, George Heile, John P. Dolwick, Jesse Delahunty, C. W. Graves, G. H. Moore, R. L. Green, J. L. Jones, Jr., Ed Brady, B. F. Elmore, A. O. Robbins.

Petit Jury No. 2

Elmer Sutton, H. L. Crigler, Robt. Eades, W. P. Hollis, Sam Patrick, Virgil Campbell, Jake Cleek, Stanley Ransom, Bernard Sebree, Wm. Marksberry, Harold Gaines and Alvin D. Wood.

Grand Jury

Elmer Goodridge, Lillard Scott, Paul Nead, H. R. Fisher, Dave Gaines, O. K. Powers, Wallace Rice, Elmer Elliston, Ed Baker, W. R. Kenney, Earl Aylor and Harve Baker.

Plugging Of Guns Explained By Fish And Game Dept.

The question of just when an automatic or pump shotgun shall be plugged, so as to contain not more than three cartridges, has been presented to wardens thruout the state.

Some sportsmen maintain that the gun shall be plugged at all times and when hunting any kind of game, but this is not true.

The new law states that the magazine shall be plugged with a solid wooden or metal plug in such a way that the gun will hold not more than three cartridges, and this plug must be in the gun only when in pursuit of wild birds. This means that the hunter may hunt rabbits or any other animals without the plug being in the gun. Violation of this law carries a fine of not less than $15 and not more than $100 for each offense.

She had been a life-long resident of Boone, until the last few years, having made her home in Florida and later in California with her only child, Mrs. Carrie Graves Dove and her four children. Her husband, the late Menter Graves had preceded her in death many years ago.

She was a member of Bullittsburg Baptist church and loved its many associations in her earlier life. Possessed of a sunny and happy disposition she made hosts of friends whereever her lot was cast and will long be remembered for her kindly deeds and deep interest in all Christian work.

These include 11 counties already under the tenant purchase program, as well as 10 new counties. The new counties are the first listed. This information was just received from State Director Earl Mayhew, Lexington by W. O. Blackburn, County Supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, Independence, Ky.

Mr. Blackburn said the counties were selected by the Secretary of Agriculture upon advice of the State Advisory Committee on the basis of types of farming area, prevalence of tenancy and availability of good farm land at fair prices, figured on what the farms well managed can be expected to produce.

"For the present, loans to buy farms will be made only in the counties designated, but regular rehabilitation loans for such items as seed, fertilizer, livestock and farm tools are available in every county to eligible farmers and farm tenants unable to secure suitable credit elsewhere," he County Supervisor pointed out.

What is there to that talk of an alcoholic drink made of oak shavings? What can ever expected to live to see the day when it was possible to take a hand plane and get a jag off of a fence post?

FINAL RETURNS GIVE BARKLEY 70,785 LEAD

Chandler Carries County By Majority of 270; Kenton County Gives Barkley Majority.

Complete returns from the seventeen precincts in Boone county showed 270 majority for the governor, with Spence receives 1813 votes to his opponent John Thobe's 111.

Final figures in the election returns Wednesday morning showed that Barkley received 294,214 votes to 223,429 for Governor Chandler, his major opponent. The Senator's majority was 70,785, with a record of 517,643 votes polled. These figures were unofficial, but all precincts had been counted.

A crowd of approximately 600 listened to the returns given at the Burlington courthouse Saturday night through an amplifying system, furnished by the business and professional men of Burlington.

Gov. Chandler has conceded the nomination of Sen. Alben W. Barkley as Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator from Kentucky.

Just as tabulators in many of Kentucky's county courthouses renewed the tabulation of ballots Monday, Gov. Chandler made public his message of congratulations to his successful opponent and his note of thanks to his Kentucky workers.

His telegram to Sen. Barkley at Paducah:

"The returns of Saturday's primary election, while not yet complete, indicate your nomination by a safe majority. President Roosevelt said he desired your return and a majority of Kentucky Democrats agreed to return you.

"I bow to the will of my fellow-citizens. I have no excuses, alibis or regrets. As the Democratic nominee you will have my active support in the November election and I wish you a successful term in the Senate.

Cordially your,

A. B. CHANDLER."

To his workers he promised to "fight the battles here at home."

"I am grateful to those men and women of the state who made such a gallant fight for me. I still have my chin up and I'll continue to fight the battles here at home," was his full message.

Magoffin county completed its vote early Monday. It gave the governor a majority of 37, Chandler polling 1349 to the senator's 1312. In the Republican primary Judge John P. Haswell was considered the nominee over four lesser opponents.

Sunday Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson conceded the Barkley victory and sent his congratulations to the Senate majority leader. He campaigned with the governor and would have succeeded him had his forces been successful.

A review of completed returns shows that Gov. Chandler's official family went down with the governor in many instances.

Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson could not pull Madison county, his home. It went to Barkley.

Atty. Gen. Hubert Meredith's county, Muhlenberg, likewise was lsst.

Boyd, the home of Treasurer Buckingham, went to Barkley.

Morgan, home of Secretary of State Charles Arnett, failed Chandler.

Bourbon, the stronghold of Welfare Commissioner Frederick Wallis, went to Barkley.

Henderson, the birthplace of the governor, refused to give him a majority.

The governor, however, did get a majority in Woodford, his home county and in Nelson, J. Dan Talbott's home.

Many throughout the state conceded Sen. Barkley's renomination when returns came from Kenton county. Considered a Chandler stronghold, Kenton county, completing tabulations in a few hours, gave the politicos a chance to sense the results early—this in spite of fact that the vote, near 500,000 was a new record.

The results give the state administration two defeats in two tries at snagging a senate seat for its favorites. They lost two years ago when they supported former Sen. J. C. W. Beckham.

BELLEVIEW AND BOB & GENE WIN

IN FIRST GAMES OF ELIMINATION SERIES—BIG BONE DEFEATED BY CHISEL BRIDGE AGGREGATION.

Three of the Boone County baseball teams emerged from the first game of the elimination series, victorious. With but one exception, teams of the Northern Kentucky Amateur Baseball Association engaged in free-scoring contests last Sunday.

The exception was the Bob & Gene-Old Vienna Beer tilt, won by the former, 4 to 0. Goodhue was on the mound for the Bob & Gene nine, allowing but five hits and fanning nine.

Visalia will meet Bob & Gene Sunday at the Crescent Springs park at 3:00 p. m. (fast time).

Belleview entertained the Covington Comets Sunday, turning them back by a one-sided score of 30 to 3. The local boys scored 17 runs in the first inning. Deck and Ryle formed the battery for the local lads.

Mt. Zion trimmed the Summe Raterman club by a county of 13 to 7; Ward Grocers took Spring Lake 9 to 7; Chisel Bridge defeated Big Bone 16 to 12 and Verona trounced the Visalia nine by a score of 8 to 3.

Next Sunday Belleview will entertain Big Bone, which should prove to be a good game.

Duck Season Is Extended 15 Days

Sportsmen who enjoy hunting ducks and other migratory fowl will get a break this fall when the duck-hunting season opens. The open season has been extended 15 days on ducks and migratory waterfowl by authorization of the federal government.

The season will start 15 days earlier on ducks, geese, jacksnipe and coot. This will allow a 45-day season instead of the 30-day period permitted the last three years. The season for Kentucky opens Oct. 15th and closes Nov. 28th.

The earlier and longer hunting was authorized in an order approved by the President and Secretary Wallace and based upon a bureau investigation of water-fowl conditions.

BRENT SPENCE EASY WINNER

CARRIES COUNTY BY 1702 MAJORITY—H. H. ROBERTS WINS OVER JOHN H. LUCAS FOR CONSTABLE.

Brent Spence was an easy winner in the race for Representative over his opponent John J. Thobe. Spence carried every precinct in the county and practically every precinct in the district. His majority in Boone county was 1702. Thobe received 111 votes in the county while Spence tallied 1813.

Spence stated that he appreciated the fine vote given him in the district and also stated that he would endeavor to serve his district to the best of his ability.

The race for Constable in the Beaver, Carlton, Hamilton, Verona, and Walton precincts was won by H. H. Roberts by a count of 704 to 74. Mr. Roberts is well known in these precincts and proved his popularity by the number of votes he received. Lucas is a new comer to this county, having been a resident here only a short time. He was a former Constable in Kenton county.

YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS

It is all very well to say that youth should have it's fling, but statistics show that the way of youth is tending too swiftly toward the path of crime. Statistics never give us the true light of the crime situation, but they tell a great deal, and they also show us that somewhere there must be a weakening in our social structure. We are informed by authorities that more than 20 per cent of our crime is the work of persons who have not yet even reached the voting age, and the average age is steadily falling. This means that one-fifth of all murderers, robbers and those who have committed social offenses against our community, are those of immature minds and bodies, and those who should just be reaching the threshold of a useful life. It is not a pleasant outlook, and not a pretty picture. Is there any suitable explanation and fitting remedy that we may employ in order to correct such conditions?

We have youth in crime because we fail to provide them with proper outlets and upbringing. The association of bad companions, broken homes, poor recreations and street life can al lbe contributed to the cause of youth in crime. Therefore, the causes behind such a condition must be wiped out. It is noted that the influence of the church and Sunday School, the Boy and Girl Scouts, the Y. M. C. A.'s, 4-H Clubs and other social groups, have a great deal to do with the moral training of youth. Give them the training through the first two decades of their lives and they will generally go straight the rest of their days. We cannot progress or go forward toward law-obedience until we startt anew upon a plane of understanding and education in the all-important field of building again what this country so sadly needs—a reverence and respect for the majesty of our laws.

POPULATION FIGURES

There always seems to be a report of some sort being issued from our capitol, and the recent one from Washington deals with the subject of the nation's population. The survey and predictions come to us from the committee on population problems, with many facts and figures to prove their point. The sum and substance lies in the fact that instead of this nation going on indefinitely with an ever-growing population, she will reach a total of about 158,000,000 people by 1988, and from that year on she will decrease in number. The first census, taken in the U. S. was in 1790, and there were listed 3,920,214 inhabitants. As we increase in population the experts estimate that between 1935 and 1975 the number of persons 20-44 years old would increase 69 per cent. This is the more surprising outcome of the report, in our minds, the fact that the number of old people would be so much greater than the young. This nation has offered it's biggest opportunities to the young and to learn they would be replaced by the old, seems a bit unreal.

We have grown rapidly since that first census in 1790 and we have felt we would continue to grow as each census year rolled by. It is not alarming to us to learn of the decrease for we won't be here to be affected by it. The one thing we Americans would not want would be an over-populated nation, as we are too well aware what the outcome of such a condition has done to many other crowded nations. There is the resulting movement to other lands, the too eager quest for acquisition of new territory, dissatisfaction and upheavel within and censorship and dissension without. The report indicates that the decline in population would be beneficial as the ratio of people and resources would be in proportion to the demands, which would result in a higher level of living.

REUNIONS

Have you ever noticed how widely separated some families become until a death or funeral will draw them together? Have you ever heard someone say, "why can't we see each other oftener, and not wait something like this to bring us together?" Why is it that we will wait for a time like that to meet with distant relatives whom we have not seen for many years, whom we scarcely know, but who can recall the early days. Why can't we join in the popular habit of holding family reunions every year and really holding on to the associations of related folks, by keeping in contact with them? There are always people who hold reunions and we will always read where there are folks who attend them. People, especially in smaller towns and rural communities, who enjoy this form of entertainment.

We lose sight of our relatives when they move away, and most of us fail to keep in touch with them by letter-writing. With the auto so agreeable, the roads so improved, the greeting so hospitable and the years so short, it is wise for families to gather at a chosen spot and knit closer those bonds which they have let slip. Don't wait until trouble comes to call in the relation.

PLAIN ARITHMETIC

This talk about every man sharing and sharing alike, the talk about the redistribution of wealth, with the end in view of making each of us independent, gives the average man a chuckle when he takes the time to figure out just what distributing the wealth would mean to him personally. If the large fortunes in the U. S. were to be taken from the few and divided among the many, you might believe it would be possible to put a For Sale sign on the whole shebang, and take life as you would like it. Before you start making any plans on how you would spend it, start into figure out about what you can expect to get. We will take the wealth of John D. Rockefeller as our first problem. After dividing it we are left with $1.75 coming to each of us. By counting on our fingers we can manage a $5 for each out of Henry Ford's estate, because we had $600,000,000 to work with. Then comes the Mellon's $95,000,000 and we come in to seventy-five cents. The Hearst family would contribute $1.50 and we begin, about this time to add the totals, coming out with $9.00. You see, when you have to divide up with 130,000,000 folks, it doesn't mean quite so much. We might just as well go out and take down that For Sale sign and be happy we have what we have—and earned it. A fellow can't do much retiring on $9.00.

HAPPY TEETH

The result of experiments by two doctors of Cornell University, A. L. Winslow and B. Kerchin, shows that our emotions cause decay and aching of our teeth The idea seems to be that when our emotions are affected the flow of saliva slows down. When the saliva slows down the saliva juice increases in acidity. Which also means the more rapidly flowing saliva is alkaline. When we are tired and need sleep, or when we are under strain of anger, fear or anxiety, the result leads to dental decay. The mouth becomes dry when you worry or become angry. The enamel of our teeth is easily affected by acid. All of this goes to show folks that the smile and sunny disposition should result in a set of happy molars, and the frown and growl will lead to an early set of "false ones." There are a lot of unpleasant things in life which we have previously met without a thought for our biscuspids, but after knowing the result of such inattention we will consider the chewers from now on and take it all with a grin and an alkaline saliva flow.

FASHION NOTES

The colors popular in fall coats are firstly; all reddish tons including wine, brick, copper and rust. Next: blue tons. Navy is more important in children's coats than last year. Browns are not as popular as a year ago . . . Slacks remain in favor for summer weekends and vacations, and for informal wear at home.

Some motorists take good care of a car and others treat it like it was a member of the family.

Lesson for August 14

THE RELATION OF TEMPERANCE TO CHARACTER

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 4:10-23; I Thessalonians 5:6-8.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.—Proverbs 20:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What a Wise Man Said.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Wise Man's Way.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Use of Liquor Affects Character.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How the Use of Liquor Affects Character.

Childhood remembrances are commonly sweet and precious—but some of them are vivid on the pages of memory because they relate to dangerous and distressing things. Among the things decent people avoided like the pestilence when the writer was a boy was the saloon. To be seen entering such places was to mark one's character, and to be a frequenter of them was to be lost to all that was good and holy.

High sounding and very pious were the assurances that when prohibition was repealed we would never see the return of the saloon, but we have them in multiplied number, and with a shameless appeal to women as well as men, to our growing girls and boys as well as to adults. Clever advertising has sought to make it "smart" to drink, and "manly" to be able to "carry" liquor. It is for that reason that it is of the utmost importance that we develop strong and intelligent character in our boys and girls—so that they may not only appraise the vicious "booze business" for what it really is, but also have the strength of character to fight it, not only for themselves, but for their weaker brother. They should know and proclaim that the saloon, whether it be called an "inn" or a "tavern," is always a "bar"—"A bar to Heaven, a door to Hell; Whoever named it named it well."

I. Developing Strength of Character (Prov. 4:10-23).

Solomon, the writer of many of the Proverbs, constantly stressed the importance of gaining wisdom. A man may be a perfect encyclopedia of information and yet may lack the wisdom to apply that knowledge to life. Dr. Hight C. Moore, in Points for Emphasis, provides a most helpful outline of this portion of Proverbs 4, which will assist the reader and teacher. He suggests that we must (1) "accept the challenge of a worthy goal, v. 10," by listening as a son to a father to the words which shall give us a long and happy life. Then we must (2) "follow the way of wisdom, vv. 11-13." It is a way that has been tested by those who have preceded us, and they have found it to be the right way. This will enable us to (3) "avoid the way of the wicked, vv. 14-17." Note the dreadful picture of those who not only do wickedness but delight in leading others into their evil paths, in fact they cannot sleep unless they have misled some poor soul. Shun that path, and (4) "irradiate the path to the larger life, vv. 18, 19." The way to life is a light path "that shineth more and more." The way of the wicked is stumbling and darkness. The devil and his followers are trying to make young people believe just the opposite. Let us teach them the truth that they may (5) "heed every syllable of all the words of God, vv. 20-23." Give attention to God's Word, listen to it, read it, keep it hidden in your heart. The heart in Scripture stands for the very center of man's spiritual being, out of which are all the issues of life. Evil thoughts, unholy desires and ambitions hidden there will ultimately be revealed in overt acts of ungodliness. Even so the Word of God hidden there will bring forth life in all its abundant beauty and strength.

The young man or woman who is thus taught God's Word in the home and the church will have an impregnable defense against the wiles and temptations of the world, the flesh, and the devil.

II. Exhibiting Strength of Character (I Thess. 5:6-8).

The Lord is coming again! Paul was constantly looking forward to the day of His coming. It was not his lot to live until the Lord came, but he was not mistaken in looking for Him. The Lord has tarried, why only He knows, but it is the judgment of many excellent Bible expositors that the next great event to take place in divine history is His return. What a glorious hope!

But while we await His coming we are not to sleep as those round about us. Watchfulness, sobriety of life, these become the Christian. Certainly nothing of the drunkenness of our day is to enter into the life of the Christian. He who belongs to Christ does not drink of the devil's "fire-water." But far more than that is in mind here, for the Christian is to go on in faith, love, and hope until he becomes "on fire" for God, burning with the passion of the Holy Spirit, not only for his own life, but for the salvation of the lost and for the development of true Christian character in those who have taken upon themselves the beautiful name of "Christian."

CAPITOL COMMENTS

The election last week, changed the whole political panorama of Kentucky.

Barkley's victory in the Senate primary, showed the tremendous strength of the Fedreal political machine. Chandler's race united the opposition of the various political cliques against him, and will have a direct effect on the Governor's race next year. It is rumored that the Barkley forces promised John Y. Brown their backing in the next Governor's race, and it is a known fact that Henry Ward, legislator, newspaperman, and Barkley's publicity campaign manager, wants to be Lieutenant Governor. These two in all probability, will run in the primary with the backing of the Laffoon, Rhea, Barkley, Logan, Roosevelt organization. They will be unable to bring the President, as an issue, into the campaign, and because of this Kentucky will see another bitter and closel ycontested primary next August.

In the opposing camp, the Chandler faction will have to tread lightly, in order to avoid a split in their own camp. Dan Talbott so rumor whispers, is backing Adjutant General Lee McClain, a fellow townsman, who sell schoolbooks in the Commonwealth. Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis aspires to the Governor's chair, and has the financial "wherewith" to wage a strong campaign.

Governor A. B. Chandler, it is claimed, has promised to support Lieutenant Governor Keen Johnson, for the place. That is the political battle line as it is now drawn. Many factors will decide the battle.

Governor Chandler will make every effort to pay off the State debt before his term of office expires, and in all likelyhood, he will succeed, this will make him stronger with the voters and he has a promising list of young politicians to run on the Lieutenant Governor's ticket. John Kirtley, from Island, McLean county, Speaker of the House and John Hunnicutt from Kenton County, floor leader of the House, are the most likely candidates and either would be a valuable asset to the ticket.

If the jealousy and dissention, among the Chandler forces, can be stamped out before the next election they have a good chance to win. Their best bet will be Lieut. Governor Keen Johnson, who has developed into a forecful speaker and strong campaigner from his experience gained in the past Senatorial race. A newspaper man and world war veteran, he is popular with both factions, and has no bitter political enemies.

You can sit back and relax, the political "big guns" have quit firing, but the sniping will go on, and when the rains start falling in the early Spring, the battle will start again, for Political wars never cease in Kentucky and out of them great statesmen are born, get their experience and march on to National glory, and so with Senator Barkley, the next President of these United States.

FEET AND THE LAW OF TISSUE

By N. Tulch at Peoples' Foot Comfort Shoe Store, Covington

There is a natural law constantly at work in the tissues of the human body. We must understand that bone, muscle and nerve consist of millions of ever changing tiny bodies called cells. These cells are held together with the tissue fluids and substances of the body.

Therefore bone, muscle and ligament respectively share the influence of this law, that constant tension causes wasting especially in the feet when the body weight which they carry about and support is not evenly distributed and balanced throughout the twelve major bones of the foot framework.

If ligaments are stretched, due to long and careless standing especially those which bind the weight—supporting and key bones together, these ligaments finally yield in about the fifth or sixth year to strain and abuse, and pull away from the bone attachments.

The rest which the night affords is not enough to counteract continuous strain during the day.

This same law holds true of the muscles and tendon attachments of the feet which lift the body weight on the metatarsal heads or pivots. On the other hand, constant pressure causes wasting of tissue.

If the muscles do not hold the feet in weight bearing joints of feet in proper dovetailing and interlocking action, these joints become deranged, misshaped and deformed because of the pressure of the body weight upon their point surfaces.

When we consider that we drive hundreds of tons of aggregate weight into the twelve major bones of each foot every day that we live it is easily understood why feet degenerate.

CLOTHES PRESSING

Never rest an iron directly on the right side of a garment, as this will result in a shine. If it is necessary to press on the right side be sure to use a pressing cloth. Do not have the iron too hot when ironing a dress as it is mighty hard to remove the stain of scorch. Heavy materials can stand a hotter iron than light weight ones. Be careful of wool and do not have your iron too warm for garments containing rayon.

KEEP TURKEYS ON GROWING SCHEDULE

Feed the young turkeys well and keep them growing, cautions Dr. J. Holmes Martin, of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. A three-months-old turkey requires about three pounds of feed to add a pound of weight, compared to about 2½ pounds during the second month of its life. The amount required to put on a pound keeps on increasing, until the month before Thanksgiving or Christmas it may take as much as seven pounds of feed to make the bird weigh a pound more. Many turkey raisers feed both mash and grain. As the birds grow older they eat more grain, but should always have a mash to balance the ration.

Weak Inrolling Feet Means Aches and Pains

The basic cause of foot trouble lies in weak shoes that do not support the outer weight bearing arch of your feet.

This arch sags, letting your ankle roll inward crowding your foot into the forepart of your shoe.

You are beaten to earth: Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face.
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there's that's a disgrace.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Tip Off Girls"
Sunday and Monday—Hawaii Calls
Wednesday, Thursday and Friday "In Old Chicago."

"The public forgets 95 per cent of the movies it has seen because most of them are too narrow in their scope." This, Henry King, who directed the spectacular 20th Century-Fox picture, "In Old Chicago" insists is due to an over emphasis on camera intimacy.

"What the public never forgets is a production which carries with it the broad sweep of large scenes which used to be called colossal and stupendous," says King.

"Every discussion of motion picture history brings up 'The Birth of a Nation,' 'Ben Hur,' 'The Covered Wagon' and films which set milestones in the cinema because of their magnitude. I think the public response to 'In Old Chicago' proves that we are in for a return of the bigger, and consequently better pictures."

"In Old Chicago" will be shown at the Gayety Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 17th, 18th, and 19th. The productions features Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Alice Brady and Andy Devine in a story of the rise and fall of the mid-West metropolis of the 1870's. The climax is reached in the destruction of the city by the historic fire.

AUTO OUGHTS

Water should not be added to the radiator until after the motor is well-heated . . . The only tire that should be overinflated is the one you carry as a spare . . . Write down the number of your ignition key on the back of your driver's card in case your key may be lost. . . . Plain water is good to clean chromium parts, being sure to rub dry. Coat with body wax when parts are clean, to prevent rusting.

Types Of Work The Soil Conservation Service Performs

The Soil Conservation Service, of Walton performs, in general, the following types of work on farms in Boone and Kenton counties.

After a thorough explanation of the program to a prospective cooperator, if he is interested, a map is made of his farm.

The contract man is then ready to go over the farm with the prospective cooperator and classify the different fields as to the land use they should be put to for the next five years. This classification is based on the control of soil erosion, primarily.

All badly eroded or gullied land is classified as forest land. The farmer should protect this area from fire and grazing for five years. The S. C. S., in return sets this area in trees.

Potential crop land is then selected on the basis of the livestock requirements of the farm. The more level land is classified as crop land because:

(a) The more level land will not wash as easily as steeper land.

(b) The cooperator will not be required to use as many corrective measures as are necessary on steep land.

(c) The more level land has usually been "run" fairly hard with crops and needs treating.

A buffer strip is a sod strip about 25 feet wide, and left in the plowed field to prevent washing. This strip is laid out in the contour or a level line around the field. Its purpose is not to drain the water, but to slow it up. This will allow the top soil to silt before the water passes onto the strip of sod.

Buffer strips are used on crop fields having a slope of 5'-12' per cent. This is 5'-12' fall or rise in 100' linear feet.

After the slope exceed 12 per cent and less than 21 per cent, the erosion is best handled with crop strips or the alternation of a sod strip with a cultivated strip, depending upon the slope, the length or slope ,type of soil and type of vegetation on the crop field.

The crop fields or more level fields are placed in a four-year rotation consisting of corn or tobacco the first year, small grain the second year, and the third and fourth years are meadow.

By establishing a rotation, treating the crop land with lime, superphosphate, farm manures and seeding at least one legume in the rotation, and by using the proper erosion control measures, we believe that crop land can be cultivated one year out of every four years and increase the crop yield at the same time.

The above system should be a much better practice than letting this "tired' 'level land, "rest" while cropping the steeper fields. Somebody has cropped hundreds of acres of steep land in Boone and Kenton counties once too often. The evidence is found in the gullies on this steep land.

The general idea is that this steep land was cropped one year and not sowed to small grain or grass. Another idea is that the land was cropped two years straight to kill out locusts and no small grain or grass sowed. Regardless of the cause, the gullies are there to show for bad farming judgment.

The S. C. S. does not say that steep land should never be cropped, but there is no necessity for cropping this type of land as long as there is level land to crop and these steep slopes are in a good stand of bluesgrass or meadow. Steep land with a half stand of bluegrass is better handled, from a soil erosion standpoint, if it is treated with lime and superphosphate and reseeded, without cultivating. It takes several years to establish a good bluegrass sod and it is gambling with nature to plow steep land. There is a possibility of the small grain freezing out or failing to get a catch of grass. In this case, severe sheet erosion always takes place and in many cases deep gullies appear.

The S. C. S. always gathers a ton of limestone for each acre in the farm. In some cases this figure is increased, where the cooperator agrees to use superphosphate to match the limestone. The S. C. S. only gathers the limestone within farm boundaries or within a five-mile radius. The cooperator has it crushed and spread in specified fields over a five-year period (at his own expense).

Even Sugar Is Streamlined!

A 1900 automobile pictured alongside of a modern, streamlined car is one of the most dramatic examples of the progress that has taken place during the 20th century.

Less exciting perhaps, but just as progressive in their way, are the improvements that have been made in the little things. Take sugar for instance....Remember the little brown paper bags which the grocer used to fill out of a big sugar barrel? If the sugar was lumpy from moisture, grayish with dust or contained a few splinters—well, that was just the way sugar came and it couldn't be helped—sugar was sugar.

Today, however, every housewife demands snow-white sugar in dirt-proof sealed packages, she wants different kinds of sugar for different purposes and she insists on buying quality sugar guaranteed by a well-known brand name.

The story of the improvement of sugar, like that of automobiles, foods. drugs and a thousand and one other products is the same basic story—because of the large market created by national advertising of a brand name the manufacturer has been able to install modern machinery, carry on exhaustive research, continually improve quality and reduce prices to the consumer.

Buy nationally advertised products featured in this newspaper from your local dealer, and you will not only get the best buy for your dollar today but will help to make it possible to get even more for your dollar tomorrow.

ELECTRIC COOKERY is Fast

HOT BISCUITS IN 10 to 15 MINUTES, starting with a cold oven—that's an example of the speed you get in a modern electric range.

Today's Electric Ranges Cook as Fast as Food Can Cook

If you have thought of electric cookery as slow, the speed of today's electric range will completely revolutionize your ideas. The turn of a switch brings instant glowing heat—all the heat you'll ever want or need.

Surface units cook vegetables with little or no water, which speeds up cooking because there is so much less water to heat. Ovens bake perfectly without preheating — a real time saver. Broiler units provide quick searing heat for fast broiling.

Yes—electric cookery is fast. It's also cool, clean, safe, economical and time releasing. See the new Hotpoint and Westinghouse electric ranges on display at our office. Let us explain the many advantages of electric cookery.

CONSTANCE HOMEMAKER'S ENJOY PICNIC AT ZOO

On Thursday, August 4, thirteen members, six visitors and our demonstration agent, Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie motored to the Cincinnati Zoo for an all-day picnic. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread on the tables beneath the large shade trees which was enjoyed very much by all.

The afternoon was spent viewing all the different animals, which were very interesting. In the late evening we motored home, having spent a delightful day together.

After fighting for years to get in the swim, some people then start shouting for a life preserver.

Members, however, exhibited in true club spirit with each exhibit counting points for the standing of their community club. REGISTRATION BOOKS OPEN

FOR BENEFIT OF THOSE DESIRING TO CHANGE THEIR VOTING PLACE OF PARTY AFFILIATION.

According to C. D. Benson, County Court Clerk, the registration books will be open for those desiring to change party affiliation before the November election, and also for those who have moved recently and not allowed to vote in the recent primary.

The registration laws in the State of Kentucky now require a voter to be registered in the precinct in which he now resides, or he will lose his right to vote. The law also states that the registration books must be closed 59 days before an election, and in order for a voter to be assured of a vote this fall, they will have to make the necessary changes between August 16th and September 9th, inclusive.

If your right to vote was questioned in the last primary, see your county clerk and he will explain the changes necessary in your case.

COURT ADJOURNS UNTIL FRIDAY

GRAND JURY DISMISSED WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON RETURNING 13 INDICTMENTS—RANKIN, YOUNG DISMISSED.

Judge J. G. Vallandingham dismissed court late Saturday afternoon, having completed all cases on docket for this term in record time. According to the Judge, never before has he ever seen so many criminal cases handled within such a short time. The cause, however, was due to the fact that most of the offenders pleaded guilty as charged, and the procedure was more or less routine.

One case, however, came in late Saturday, and was held over until Friday of this week, at which time court will convene to hear the case of Harold Judd, formerly of Indiana, accused of attempting to rape a seven-year-old Walton girl.

In the case of Harold Rankin, of Covington, accused of stealing a calf from the farm of his uncle, Joe O'Neal, of near Rabbit Hash, the evidence was heard and verdict of not guilty was returned. A verdict of the same nature was returned in the case of Oscar Young (colored) of Richwood, accused of detaining a white girl against her will.

John Wingate was tried on a forgery charge and found guilty, being sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Elmer Lacally, accused of storehouse breaking, was placed on probation and probation is being considered for two more youths, Harold Coleman and Vincent Lipscomb, also charged with storehouse breaking.

MANY EXHIBITS ARE DISPLAYED

BY BOONE COUNTY HOMEMAKERS AT FOUR-H AND UTOPIA CLUB FREE FAIR HELD AT HARVEST HOME GROUNDS.

What horrows might be in store for the little unsuspecting petunia if it came into the hands of an unimaginative person, was well displayed at the Homemaker's exhibit at the 4-H and Utopia Free Fair Saturday. The Grant club, using flowers from the gardens of the members, displayed arrangements that were pleasing to the eye and from now on the meekest of the blooms will find they have a place in the world.

Occupying the south end of the Harvest Home building, all the clubs in the county were identified with their particular exhibit, one outstanding, being the Taylorsport and Bullittsville show. If eating the correct foods would cause one to look like the improvised man that was on display, one might refrain from being correct, but the story went home and every one was more conscious that vegetables and plenty of them are essential.

Burlington, Petersburg, Verona and New Haven were furniture minded and went to great efforts to show what can be done with old pieces that for so long found solace in the attic.

With their houses in order, the Homemakers turned their fancy, but not lightly, to thoughts of being well groom, and Hebron, Walton and Florence brought along their jars of homemade face creams, their gloves, hats, jewelry and what not, so the few remaining species of womanhood who "do not," will in the future not be caught redhanded.

Along deep down in December when hungry mouths call for peaches and tomatoes, down about Constance, you will find some mixing bowls and only a short run to Hamilton, to fill them with the above mentioned delicacies. These Boone County Homemakers are tops for doing things right.

MAN HELD ON ATTACK CHARGE

WILL BE TRIED IN BOONE CIRCUIT COURT FRIDAY OF THIS WEEK—CHARGED WITH ATTACKING 7-YEAR-OLD GIRL.

Harmon Judd, 25, Cincinnati was returned to Burlington Saturday by Sheriff F. M. Walton and placed in the Boone County jail to await trial on a criminal attack charge, alleged to have been committed on a 7-year-old Walton girl.

Judd is being held without bond. He was arrested Thursday night in Cincinnati on a warrant sworn to by the girl's father, Felix Pennington, of near Walton.

The alleged attack was committed last month. Judd had been employed for about 2½ years as a worker on a farm rented by Mr. Pennington, and had worked there until three weeks.

Mr. Pennington sworn to an affidavit for Judd's arrest on August 4th before County Judge N. E. Riddell, charging criminal attack.

Mr. Pennington told Cincinnati police he then trailed Judd to Cincinnati and found him Thursday night in a cafe at Green and Vine streets. The father slugged Judd on the head with a beer bottle. When he tried to escape, the Kentuckian called police.

Judd broke away from Cincinnati patrolmen, but was recaptured. Te prisoner waived extradition and was returned to Burlington. Judd gave his address as 1645 Hamer Street.

Judd was indicted last week by the Boone County grand jury on a charge of rape.

TO A ROASTING EAR

Here's to the king-pin of summer, the good old American "roasting ear." It is one of the reasons we can stand the heat and the sun—the fact that summertime means "roasting ear" time. In the old days they used to roast the corn on the cob, but that was when the hunter couldn't be bothered with toting a pot in which to boil the corn, as we do today, but preferred to toss the ear into the ashes and embers of a campfire. Ask any man which way he would rather take his corn. There is a different taste to it when it is baked and when it is boiled in water. This is an ode to corn on the cob, however it is prepared—the golden grain of the gods, which finds it's proper place on the tables of both the rich and the poor. Plentiful in number, all manner of men find it within his means. There may be proper ways to hold it, for we have noticed the new fangled corn-forks that stick in each end of the cob, (to keep your fingers clean). It matters not how you bite it, nor how thickly you butter it, whether you spread it from ear to ear or nibble daintly, it still remains the most satisfying vegetable that pops from the ground. There are no holds barred in corn-eating. The fellow who comes out the same after eating as he was when he began, does not know the joy there is in getting butter on your nose. The sorriest sight is the fellow who can no longer dig down to the cob with his mouth spread wide, but is forced to cut the grain off the cob in order to eat it at all. That is when you really realize that the years are many.

So let's boil 'em and butter 'em salt 'em and pepper 'em, hold them in each hand and start to work our way across each row with as much grace as you can manage. Disregard appearances, the effects will wash off and the roasting ear season is too short anyhow to waste time figuring out how to handle them without getting an earful.

RURAL HEALTH

The well-worn "you can take the man out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the man," always made us proud rather than irritated, for we like being "country." And we like it more so since we learn from the United States Public Health Service, that the folks residing in the country live a healthier and a longer life than the folks that live in the city. We have a lower rate for almost every cause of illness, and have fewer doctors and medical aids for treatment of what illnesses we do have. There are so many things in the city to help in the prevention of disease, so many ways of making their environment and living conditions more healthy, while most of us in the country just go on living and using the same methods of surviving that our families before us used and figure what was good enough for their health was good enough for ours. Of course, we have progressed with the times, availing ourselves of modern conveniences and keeping abreast of new and required equipment, but when you compare the health and medical means received by the city dweller and those same things that are more difficult to find in the rural communities, it is something else that gives us this longer life. Of course those diseases that are contracted by living so close to each other would naturally be harder to control in the closely populated areas. However, the service for our public health points out that the "life expectancy in cities now has reached the point of expectancy enjoyed by rural dwellers as far back as the year 1900."

WORM TALK

Did any of you folks ever happen to drive through a city at night, about this time of year, and notice the flickering of flashlights in the parks you would chance to drive past? Any local man would know what was going on—folks are looking for fishing worms, of course. It is possible to get these night-crawlers, or if you want to be technical—lumbricus—by means of digging in the ground or using the electric-rod in the earth, and in the daytime. But the more popular way is to hunt for them by flashlight at night. A worm can't see, they only listen for the sound of approaching footsteps, and since they are somewhat intelligent, usually keep their tails concealed in the hole in order to draw back as soon as a prowler approaches. They are hard to capture but are well worth your trouble when it comes to satisfying the fish. There are always fishermen who scorn the worm type of bait, and the night-crawler is simply a large garden worm. But we have seen a worm work where the fancy bit of color and feathers fail to get a nibble. Six inches is a nice sized night-crawler in our country, but we take a back seat when South America and Australia comes along with them six feet. You will figure we are trying to put over a fish story when we state that where these worms come in this length, the local fishermen train them to wrap themselves around the fish from a center pole on which they are fastened. Personally, we think it would be a man's-sized job to train a worm.

AIR BATTLES

Great Britian has always been the power of the seas with her large and capable navy. Today she is giving more attention to air problems. Surrounded by discord and probably wars Great Britian is making plans to teach a million men and women how to fly. Her Secretary of the Air announces that it will cost about 25 cents a week for each license of the new pilot's to fly the ships of the air. The idea is to fight airplanes with airplanes and to attempt to maintain a force as complete in numbers as though the battle was to be fought on land between two armies. It is not a pleasant thought to us, who despie war, to dwell on the idea of a battle waged thousands of feet in the air, between two armies of airplanes, using machine guns and up-to-the minute warlike instruments for purposes of wiping man from earth, by way of air. People find such a picture doesn't lessen their hatred of war.

IN CLOVER

There has been quite a lot of surmising on the part of all of us as to where the large and unusual quantity of white clover has come from. Folks have noticed there is such an abundance of in their yards and pastures. It has been a good many years since there has been so much of it. The lawns in our cities show more than the regular trace of its presence, while the air is sweet with its fragrance. Where has it been, and where will it go, perhaps not to appear for maybe many years again in such profusion? Will it give way this next summer to growths not nearly so pleasant? Every farmer has his weeds to annoy him, and white clover is more to his liking. We can remember many a crown and necklace braided of this plant which was one of our ways of entertaining ourselves in the days of our youth. This is our year for being in clover, and we welcome it, the pleasure of the bee and of man.

PARAGRAPHS

There was one thing the old-fashioned man had in his favor. If he bought a horse he had the satisfaction of knowing that the model wasn't going to be changed two weeks later.

It may not be of interest to our readers, but we think it must be terrible to marry for money, and then not get it.

Why is it that if a man's son asks a question, it is curiosity, but if his wife asks the same question she is "nosing in?"

The colleges of our country confer their sheepskins. But we have found that it is the School of Experience that tears off the human hide.

When a man doesn't advertise, and his business is poor, why is it he always insists on blaming it on "hard times?"

It is our idea to warn girls that when they are seeking model husbands, to be sure they are working models.

Why is it that a man will not pay any attention to about ninety bills he does owe, but will yell his head off if he gets one that he doesn't owe?

If a man succeeds his wife knows it is because of help help and influence, but if he fails she knows her skirts are clean and he has only himself to blame.

HANNAH: GODLY MOTHERHOOD

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 1:9-18; 2:1-5.
GOLDEN TEXT—Her children arise up, and call her blessed. Proverbs 31:28.

"Godly Motherhood" — All the power and grace of the infinite God working in and through the most tender and at the same time most potent human relationship—motherhood! There indeed is the solution of many of our national and social problems. For we agree with the poet that man, who regards himself as being mighty, ruling over land and sea, must defer to a mightier power.

"For the hand that rocks the cradle
Is the hand that rules the world."

Hannah was the mother of Samuel, who became one of Israel's outstanding leaders—a priest, a prophet, and "the maker of kings." God needed a great man, so He chose for him a great mother.

Our study for today will be topical rather than textual and extended to related portions in chapters 1 and 2. We consider Hannah as a mother who was spiritual and sacrificial, but at the same time practical in her daily life and service.

I. Spiritual.

Many are the tributes offered to mothers, but none has deeper significance than the testimony of a boy or girl that their mother has led them both by precept and example to have faith in God. Though other advantages may be beyond the reach even of the most self-denying mother, this most important of all benefits she may bring her children, but only if she herself is an earnest and faithful follower of the Lord.

1. Hannah trusted God in her hour of trial and sorrow (1:10). Although her husband was a man of good qualities, he had followed the custom of his times and taken a second wife. Hannah, childless in the presence of Penninah and her children, was in deep sorrow. But she knew where to take her burdens; she brought them to the Lord in prayer.

2. She prayed—fervently and effectually (1:17, 18, compare James 5:16b). Mother's prayers have followed many a wayward boy and girl and brought them back to God. When every other influence for good had been swept aside, they have been unable to forget mother's prayers. One wonders what will happen to boys and girls who go out to face a wicked and bewildering world, with the memory of a prayerless, worldly mother to blight rather than to bless them.

3. She recognized children as a gift of God (1:11). And surely they are. Christian men and women should protest by both word and deed against the vicious modern theory that children are a sort of biological accident to be avoided

II. Sacrificial.

The most precious possession a woman can have is a child of her own. It was, then, the deepest and finest sacrifice of a noble motherheart when she

1. Dedicated her boy to God, even before his birth (1:11). Yet this act so fine and commendable was in reality only an intelligent recognition of the fact that children are a gift of God. Your children and mine belong to God. Let us not stand in His way (or their way) as He graciously leads them out into service for Him.

2. She kept her promise (1:24-28). Many parents have solemnly dedicated their children to God before their birth, and then later the prospect of separation from them has been too much for the parents, and the promise to God has been thrust aside. The writer has on many occasions seen young men and women weep with broken-hearted dismay because a mother or father has forbidden them to go to China, Africa, or elsewhere at God's call. Mother, have you kept your promise to God regarding your boy, your girl?

III. Practical.

Hannah not only promised her boy to God; she made the completion of that promise certain.

1. By guiding her boy in the right way (1:24). As a matter of fact, she went with him to the temple. A mother who "sends" her boy to Sunday school or church will never help him like the mother of whom it may be said "she brought him unto the house of the Lord."

2. By providing for her boy (2:18, 19). There is no more tender and meaningful story in all literature than that of Hannah bringing her boy his "little coat." It is still true that the best "support" a missionary of the Cross can have is a home that "stands by."

The story is told of a missionary candidate who had no "board" back of her but the "washboard" of a godly mother, and who made a valiant and useful servant in the foreign field. Such an arrangement may not be the most desirable and it really should not be necessary if God's people would give, but it has its glorious advantages.

Such a mother as Hannah would have such a son as Samuel of whom it is said that he "was in favour both with the Lord, and also with men" (2:26).

STAINED FINGERTIPS

During the season of canning your fingertips will probably become rough and stained. It is not necessary to scrub. Simply rub a piece of pumice over damp fingertips. Bleach your hands with a lotion of half a lemon. Cream your hands well at night and wear a pair of loose cotton gloves and the trace of canning will disappear from the hands.

FEW FARM FACTS

Corn can be cultivated too much as well as too little. Soil could be kept in a granular condition, but not pulverized by over-cultivating or by the use of equipment which tends to grind granules of soil into flour-like particles . . . Red clover cut early makes better hay and also stands a much better chance of maturing a crop of seed in the second growth. Late cutting reduces prospective seed yields 50 to 100 per cent.

TOBACCO CROP IS DAMAGED

LATE RAINS PROVE FATAL TO WEED CROP IN MANY SECTIONS OF STATE — SOME CROPS PLOWED UNDER.

Blackfire and wildfire, wet weather scourge of maturing tobacco, have ruined one-third to one-half of the dark-fired crop in Western Kentucky, and excessive rainfall is threatening heavy damage to the bumper crop of burley now ripening in the Bluegrass area, crop experts report.

On a basis of 1937 market values the losses to dark tobacco growers are expected to exceed $2,000,000.

Some crops have been plowed under and others abandoned in Christian county. Growers have no insurance against such losses, nor does the Federal farm program provide any compensation.

The losses, however, are expected to keep dark tobacco well within the 1938 poundage quotas to be fixed later under the Government farm program, and may cancel all possibility of overproduction penalties.

In four counties of the "Black Patch"—Logan, Trigg, Christian and Todd—the loss to dark tobacco growers is estimated at around 2,000,000 and the damage is mounting every day it rains.

The Logan County control committee of the Agricultural Conservation Program gave out an estimate recently that farmers there will suffer a loss of 75 per cent of their tobacco crop, due to red rust and drowning.

The wet-weather bacterial diseases have made no such wholesale inroads on burley, but an unnamed wilt has caused spotty losses in virtually every patch in Central Kentucky. Overflows from high water and tobacco rotted in lowlands have added to the damage.

Enough burley has been rendered unfit for cutting to offset much of the anticipated production in excess of Federal quotas.

Losses in Jackson Purchase counties were estimated Tuesday at 25 to 30 per cent of the dark tobacco crop by Russell Hunt, Lexington, extension field agent in tobacco culture for the College of Agriculture. Unless fancy prices result from the apparent crop shortage, the losses to growers in the area may exceed $1,000,000.

BULLETIN DESCRIBES NEW TOBACCO CLEANER

A new machine for cleaning tobacco seed, perfected by Prof. L. A. O'Bannon and Dr. W. D. Valleau at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, is described in a recent bulletin issued by that institution. The new cleaner is of the blower type and does not use sieves which means that it does away with the job of cleaning sieves between the handling of different lots of seed. It separates heavy and light seed effectively, and satisfactorily handles large quantities of seed.

FAIR EXHIBIT OF COLLEGE TO SHOW BEST IN FARMING

The "best in farming" will be featured in the exhibits of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture at the Kentucky State Fair at Louisville Sept. 11-17. The exhibits of the college will occupy their customary place in the grandstand building.

One booth will deal with hybrid corn, a new kind of corn that outyields common varieties. The same exhibit will feature the control of tobacco diseases through plant breeding.

Showing what can be done with grass, the livestock exhibits will give the results of feeding tests at the Western Kentucky Experiment Substation at Princeton.

The construction of farm reservoirs will be pictured in another part of the building. Hundreds of reservoirs have been made in the last few years and there is much interest in this form of farm water supply.

In their study of better houses, members of homemakers' clubs in the state have learned about more convenient kitchens. The college, at the State Fair, will contrast old and modern kitchens, and ask, "Where would you prefer to work?"

Other parts of the college's exhibit will deal with potato production, poultry raising, control of insect pests, farm management, better seeds, disease control, health, etc.

The 4-H clubs of the state, now a part of the better farm program in every county, will have their usual displays of canned fruits and vegetables, baked foods, clothing and home furnishings in the grandstand building. There also will be 4-H club shows of poultry, dairy cattle, pigs and sheep on the fair grounds, and club members will compete in showing livestock in the open classes. Members of 4-H and Utopia clubs will this year have special displays of hybrid corn and potatoes.

Several thousand dollars in cash premiums, trips and other prizes will be divided among winners in the 4-H club department of the State Fair.

USE YOUR FRUIT JARS

Place your left-overs in your empty fruit jars and conserve on space in your ice-box. You can cut meat into pieces and put gravy over it. Put the vegetables that are left and maybe a portion of a dessert that is better heated. Keep the lids on the jars until ready for use. By putting a roaster or deep saucepan half-full of water, then setting the jars in this water, in ½ hour after the water boils, your entire dinner will be heated and ready to serve without extra pans to wash.

Question Raised Concerning Quail

The following question has been brought up on numerous occasions among bird hunters: Do quail hatch more than on brood of young during a single season?

Some say "no" and others say "yes," but there is not any too much proof to substantiate the "yes" side.

Quail may be seen in a covey in the fall ranging from matured birds to little downy fellows. As the birds start their hatching around the latter part of April, and the little fellows are seen in the fall, this would give the "no's" some hope for their belief, but according to research reports the following is the explanation for young birds traveling with old old quail in the fall: A quail starts laying eggs the latter part of April. If the hen has a nest of 16 eggs it will have required 24 days to lay them. It requires approximately another 23 days to hatch them. From the time she begins laying till the birds hatch is a matter of some 47 days.

What leads many people to suppose quail have more than one brood is the fact that they see young birds as late as September 1st.

This means that a pair of birds has had its first nest, or probably even the second one, destroyed by vermin or farming operations.

When this happens to either quail or pheasants they will make a second nest, lay a clutch of eggs and, if possible, reproduce some time during the season prior to September 1.

In some instances, where the young have been hatched out late, the parents will be killed by hunters and the young brood scattered. The natural tendency of quail in the fall is to form in coveys. When the young fail to find their parents, they mix with other coveys and as a result, the hunter sees unusually young birds in a covey with mature birds.

Quail are also permanent residents. Unlike most birds that migrate south with winter and north with the approach of spring, they remain the same neighborhood and brave the wintry blasts. In some cases they starve and freeze to death during the winter months and it is for this reason that the Division of Game and Fish urges all sportsmen to feed and care for the birds through the winter.

Judging from the number of calls of the Bob White that can be heard on almost every fence post in every section of the state and from reports of sportsmen thruout the state, Fall will bring forth one of the best bird hunting seasons in the history of Kentucky.

A lot of women folks look funny in the outfits they wear to be in style. But, thank goodness, a few of them look as freakish as some of those pictures in the fashion magazine.

It is always better to start at the bottom of the ladder—except in case of fire

The hundreds of efficient-looking bluecoats who appear with Bing Crosby in his new musical comedy, "Doctor Rhythm," which will be shown at the Gayety Sunday and Monday, are members of a Hollywood police force which has never made an arrest during the twenty-five years of its history.

It is the organization which supplies the officers for use in motion pictures and gets plenty of chance to show its stuff in this Paramount picture, in which Beatrice Lillie and Mary Carlisle appear with the king of croon.

The story, adapted from O. Henry's famous "Badge of Policeman O'Roon," casts Bing in the role of a New York society doctor who turns policeman for a single day to help out a friend who is unable to perform his duties. In guarding a beautiful young girl, Mary Carlisle he mixes love with business and finds time to croon a number of the tuneful hits for which he is famous.

Others in the cast of the Paramount picture are Andy Devine, Laura Hope Creks, Frank Elliott and Bill Austin.

The Garden

WINTER STORAGE FOR VEGETABLES

All over Kentucky, gardeners have in prospect surpluses of potatoes, carrots , beets, cabbage, parsnips and salsify, and turnips in the making. These would stand in good stead in the winter on the way, and planning to save these "cold" crops should be foremost. Many gardeners have cushaws and other winter squashes, pumpkins and perhaps some sweetpotatoes. What to do to save these "warm" vegetables for use in the winter is moot, too.

The storing of both classes of vegetables is not difficult, for the principles have been fully worked out and exact instruction for the building of storage structures and for their maintenance are easy to get, and easy to follow. While using special structures gives best results, quite acceptable improvisations can be made from present buildings or house rooms and from odds and ends of building material. This makes the winter storage of vegetables an inexpensive proposition.

Today, begins a series of articles designed to acquaint Kentucky gardeners with principles involved in successful storing of their surplus vegetables and to assist them, either to construct permanent structures or, using what they have at hand, to assemble satisfactory means to serve in the emergency. The reason for starting so early is to give time to those who are in position to do so, to build permanent storage places. It is hoped, though, that all gardeners will be spurred to arrange some kind of storage, of even emergency form, for now is the time. Because the more permanent structures take longer to build, they will be discussed first, and of the two classes, "cool" or "warm," the former is to receive first consideration.

The "cool" vegetables, potatoes, cabbage, turnips, beets and carrots require high humidity to keep them from wilting, and a temperature just above freezing. Thus, a house cellar, in which there is no furnace is an excellent place. If the house is warmed by a plant in the cellar, part should be partitioned off to make a storage place. A corner, with a widow through which fresh outside air may be admitted, is best.

To build this partition, first cast a concrete footing on the floor, if concrete, or in a 4-inch excavation, if the cellar floor is earth. It should be 6 or 8 inches wide and bolts should be cast in it by which a 2 by 4 "plate" (as carpenters call it) is secured. On the plate 2 by 4 studs should be erected, the 4 inches crossway of the partition. The tops of the studs should be framed into the floor joists.

On both the inside and the outside of the studs nail rough sheeting, and cover with building paper or with 6 thicknesses of newspaper, and this with tongue-and groove siding, or with vertical plank, coverng with stripping the cracks. Thus the partition consists of a "dead air space" of 4 inches, two thicknesses of sheeting and two of siding, making it about 7 inches thick. Inside such a partition a temperature of even below freezing would not affect that of the rest of the cellar.

A door large enough not to interfere with carrying large containers such as barrels should be provided. Three feet is wide enough, and its height may be 6 or 7 feet. The door should be made of the same construction as the partition but its edges should be beveled so that when it is closed, the fit is tight. A strip of inner tubing tacked 'round the edges will help.

To make such a room operate successfully, included must be a means for introducing fresh air, to replace the stale air that stored vegetables continuously give off into it.

It was said that there should be a cellar window leading outside. This window should be as near the ceiling line of the storage room as possible to be most effective.

Assuming that it is a usual 3-pane window, the end pans should be removed and replaced with sheets of tin in the center of which have been cut holes large enough to insert a 6-inch stove-pipe elbow, or better an 8 -inch one. The elbows should be fitted with dampers. One elbow should lead outward and up; the other, inside and down. To the inside elbow should be hung several length of stove-pipe, or enough to clear the floor by 6 inches. This is the fresh air intake.

On the outside elbow, several lengths of stove-pipe should be fitted to make the stale air outlet stack. The taller this is, the better the draft, and the more reliably the ventilating system will operate. For economy's sake, the inside pipe may be replaced with a tube of muslin, and the outlet stack by one made of wood. Even the "elbows" may be constructed of wood, with no loss in efficiency.

The ventilating system is based on the principle that fresh, cool air is heavier than air that is warm and moist, as passed off by the vegetables. It is operated as follows:

If merely a change of air is desired, both dampers are opened, and if the room is no larger than 10 by 10 feet, the ceiling about 7 feet, and the diameter of the stove-pipe 6 inches, there will be complete air-change in about two hours. Always it should be kept in mind, when giving ventilation in cold weather, that the temperature within the room should not fall below 40 degrees.

But, supposing that the outside temperature is low, that it is unsafe to admit outside air, or even that the room is becoming dangerously chilled, it may be warmed by opening the outlet damper and opening the door to the rest of the cellar. Even though there is no furnace the motion of the air will raise the temperature above danger, assuming that the house foundation is reasonably well built. Another use that may be made of the system is to keep the storage room cooler than the outside, in the spring and in the autumn when the days may become unduly warm, but while the nights are still cool. The procedure is to open both dampers during the night, but to close them at sun-up, to stay closed until nightfall again.

This completes the description of the construction of, and the management of a hose cellar vegetable storage room, except for this detail. Unless the floor, the ceiling of the storage room, is no double, the room above may be difficult to heat, but this is remedied by boxing between the floor joists with T and G siding or by tacking between them building board, or five or six thicknesses of newspaper, one thickness at a time, and not too smoothly but left ripply, to take advantage of the insulating value of the "air pockets" that are formed.

By installing a heating means adequate to keep the temperature at 50 degrees, the above-described storage room may be used for sweetpotatoes and other "warm" vegetables, or, if there is a furnace in the main part of the cellar, the door leading to it may be kept open. All else necessary is the renewal of air and this the ventilating system just outlined effects.

Although a well-arranged storage room under the dwelling is the most desirable to have, and possibly the most convenient, it is not the only means by which vegetables can be kept, but outside "cellars" or "caves" may be constructed, and in a surprising variety of sites and conditions. Also, the expense of their building need not be a bar, for although there are elaborate styles, quite simple structures can be improvised from easily obtainable material to serve quite as well, if the principles of storage are observed.

The most common type of "outside cellar" is the "hill-side cave." The first step in building it is to choose a site close to the dwelling or to the barn buildings, for the convenience of the person to whom the management and care of the stored vegetables are entrusted. Its site, too, should be such that a wagon may easily be driven to it.

The surface slope may be as great as 1 to 1, but a lesser slope will serve, but the greater the slope the more nearly the earth from the excavation will suffice for covering the finished "cave."

The excavation is made to allow for the floor size that has been determined upon, and no more earth is removed from the sides than to keep them safe from caving in. The floor may be square, or if the slope is shallow, rectangular, so as to go into the hill far enough so as to have earth enough for the cover. By the same token, if the site slope is steep, the cave may have a wide front and correspondingly less depth. Usually, a struce 10 by 10 feet is satisfactory. The excavation made, the type of construction must be chosen. It is here that the variation in cost occurs. The warmest type of construction, thickness for thickness, is brick, but its cost may be prohibitive. Stone comes next, and, in many instances, where stone is at hand, its use is indicated. Roughly 12 inches of stone is equivalent to 8 inches of brick. Where creek gravel and clean sand can be had, concrete wall construction should be chosen, but the thickness of the wall should be no less than 10 inches, and it would be well to have a hollow-tile core through the center, a "dead-air space," for insulation.

The wall should be at least 6 feet high, though 8 feet is better, making more head room. In the front wall, a door way should be allowed; 3 by 6 is large enough. A "wing wall," with a slope of 1 to 1 should be built out on each side of the door opening, to retain the earth cover.

The matter of the roof of the structure requires more study. Ideal would be a reinforced concrete slab, to span the storage room with no posts. Its strength should be adequate to support the weight of the soil to be piled on it for protection against the cold.

Another type of roof is a cut-stone arch or one of brick. In such situation, the side walls should be lower, to keep the middle height of the struceur within reason.

Still another would be of wood construction covered with galvanized metal roofing, to protect the wood from the moisture in the covering soil. It could be made clear span, or with a stout post in the center of the floor.

TODAY IN KENTUCKY

By Henry Ward

When Governor A. B. Chandler wire Senator Alben W. Barkley the first of this week that he will support the Senator in the final election in November, he settled the question which had caused a flurry of excitement in some circles through the state.

For the past few weeks there has been a persistent rumor that the Republican politicians who hate President Roosevelt so bitterly might withdraw their nominee for the Senate and try to persuade Chandler to run as their candidate on the Republican ticket. That would have been the only way that Chandler could have opposed Barkley in the November election, since the legislature at its last regular session passed an act under which independent candidates for office are required to file and run in a primary just as Democratic and Republican candidates.

The rumor was scotched, however, by Chandler's assurance that Barkley will have his support, and by a message from Robert Humphreys, who, in addition to being state commissioner of highways, is chairman of the Democratic central executive committee. Humphreys said that the Senater will have his "cheerful support."

Indications are that the November election will be peacefully blissful after the heat of the August primary. Senator Barkley ended the primary campaign in good health and spirits, and is ready for a battle if ther is need for one. A possible European trip to attend the Interparlimentary Union conference (he is president of the American delegation of Senators and Congressmen to the meeting) will give him some sea air and resting that he needs.

Senator Barkley can look back on the August primary with satisfaction, because he set two records in it. The 71,242 majority by which he won was the largest any candidate in a Democratic primary in Kentucky ever received. The total vote, 517,540—was the biggest ever polled. And, since his election in November is conceded by everyone except a few persons who just want to be contrary, Barkley will set another record by being the first United States Senator for Kentucky ever reelected for three consecutive terms.

Senator Barkley also can recall in the years to come that his campaign leaders almost unanimously predicted that he would be renominated by a majority in the neighborhood of 70,000 votes which on the surface, makes them experts. The troth of the matter is, however, that, although the state total about what they had forecast, many of their ideas as to how counties and districts would go did not pan out.

The majority of the Barkley leaders privately conceded that the Governor would carry the Fifth District, and they expected him to win the Ninth, with Harlan county giving him a wide margin. Chandler did carry the Fifth by winning in several counties which were supposed to be in the Barkley collumn. He lost Kenton county, however, which he had expected to win by 5,000 votes. Senator Barkley took the Ninth by 77 votes because Harlan and Pulaski counties did not give Chandler the majorities expected.

Barkley's majorities in the Seventh and Eighth districts were about as predicted, although the Seventh gave Barkley a larger margin than anticipated. The Barkley campaigners had hopes of carrying the Fourth district, stronghold of J. Dan Talbott, but several counties were weaned away at the last minute. The biggest disappointment in that district to the Barkley organization was Shelby county, which Chandler carried by 44 votes. However, in 1935 he won that county by 3,323 to 930 over Tom Rhea.

Biggest surprises were the First and Third Districts. Not a single one of Barkley's most enthusiastic supporters really thought he would carry the First by 18,322 and the Third by 30,695. In the First, McCracken, Barkley's home county (and the home county of Brady M. Stewart, Chandler's state campaign manager), gave him the biggest percentage of votes in the state, almost 4 to 1. In the Third, popular resentment against Chandler's legislative attempts to slap at Louisville plus the effective work of the Miller-Brennan-McLaughlin organization gave Barkley his tremendous margin.

The returns from the Second District were disappointing, giving Barkley a majority of only 12,511. A margin of 18,000 had been expected. Hopkins and Muhlenberg were the banner counties in that district. Warren and Davies were diappointments, although Barkley carried Davies by 1,060 votes. The loss of Warren county by 227 votes was a tribute to the coercive effectiveness of the Chandler machine, which "worked on" those affiliated with and depend on Western State Teachers College.

Barkley's victory by 842 votes in Henderson county, where Chandler was born, was a tribute to George Clay, State Representative whom Chandler attempted to defeat for re-election last year. Clay was the Barkley county manager there.

Closest result in the state was in Rockcastle county, which Barkley won by one vote. Chandler's largest majority was in Harlan county; Barkley's in Jefferson.

No truer words were ever spoken than these—"When your feet hurt, you hurt all over."

And no wonder! When nerve centers in the feet are subjected to pressure through the improper make and fit of shoes, every part of our body is effected.

Without the correct type of support for the arches of your feet, feet, your entire body mechanism —520 muscles, 206 bones, 600 nerves—is thrown into confusion. Fatigue, backache, muscle cramps, and strain, nervousness and general debility likely follow.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

In the next few weeks we will give you a comprehensive view of the personalities of your State Government and their official duties, the officials acting as guest columnists.

We present now, Chas. D. Arnett, Secretary of State, born March 9, 9, 1879 at Hendricks, Magoffin County, Kentucky. He began his career as a school teacher in the counties of Magoffin and Morgan, later in life he graduated in law and began to practice as a lawyer at West Liberty, Ky. He was secretary of the Democratic party in that county for sixteen years and belongs to one of the largest Democratic families in Kentucky. Was elected to the State Senate in 1913. One of the most important bills that was ever passed in the Legislature was introduced by him, making it a felony to carry a concealed deadly weapon. Introduced and passed the first law in the State of Kentucky regulating Mines and Mining. Served in the Special Session of 1917 on Revenue and Taxation. Was Secretary of the Boxing Commission during the Fields administration which at that time paid all the Revenue in excess of $5,000 a year to the State School fund. Later he sponsored a bill to regulate the practice of Barber and Beauty Culture. His chief hobby is child welfare, all the while assuming a very quiet attitude and staying in the background of all his activities. Member of the Ezel Lodge, 550 F. & A. M.; Member of the Royal Arch Masons, Mt. Sterling; Eastern Star, Louisville Chapter 391, O. E. S.; Banner Council, Jr. O. U. A. M.; Member First Christian Church, 4th & Breckenridge, Louisville, Ky.; Life member of the Loyal Order of Moose and was elected to the office of Secretary of State in 1935, duties of said office are as follows: Section 91 of the Constitution of Kentucky provides for a Secretary of State to be elected by the qualified voters of the State at the same time the Governor is elected, and designating the term of office as four years.

By Chas. D. Arnett, Secretary of State

As Secretary of State, I am the keeper of records as filed from many of the other departments of government.

The Secretary of State appoints the Assistant Secretary of State and he keeps the Executive Journal of the Governor in which is recorded all the orders of the Governor. The original orders are filed and kept in tis office; indexed so as to be easily found. All commissions, requistions, extraditions, proclamations, pardons, and commutations are issued at the order of the Governor.

All commissions to elective or appointive offices signed by the Governor, such as county judges, justices of the peace, police judges, members of the various boards and commissions are issued in this office, and the Great Seal of the Commonwealth of Kentucky attached thereto.

The Great Seal of the Commonwealth which is affixed to all official documents of State is kept in this office. One of the duties of the Secretary of State is the attestation of the Governor's signature to all official documents and the affixing of this seal.

The Seal of the Secretary of State is affixed to such papers as are certified by the Secretary.

There are many requests for certified copies of records filed in this office and copies of laws found in the Law Library. Perhaps the most frequent request that comes is for a copy of the Divorce Laws of other states. So many are the requests for certified copies it requires the full time of one typist.

All fees charged for service are fixed by Statutes. Two dollars for a Notary Public Commission; $1.00 for filing statement of Process Agent for a Corporation; 25 cents per hundred words for copying Articles of Incorporation and for certified copies; $1.00 for certificate. These fees are fixed by the Statutes.

Prior to 1893, all corporations were incorporated by Act of the Legislature. Since that time, this department has steadily-grown until there are approximately 125,000 Articles of Incorporation on file—Domestic and Foreign.

We also have in this department the filing of Trade-Marks, Acceptance of the Constitution and all automobile services where foreign suits are involved.

All fees received in this Department are turned over to the State Treasurer for the General Fund and far exceed the cost of the maintenance of this department.

The law requires all candidates for State and District offices representing two or more counties, to file certificates of Notification and Declaration with the Secretary of State, 40 days before election. All such candidates are required to file in this office Pre-Election and Post-Election expense accounts. After the primary the County Election Commissioners and same are tabulated. When the general election is over and all votes counted, we order the results printed by Counties, showing the number of votes cast for each candidate and mail one to each County Court Clerk of Kentucky.

Four years ago by Act of the General Assembly, the Land Office was transferred to this Department of State. This requires the service of one clerk. There are many requests for copies of Land Grants and some of these records are invaluable.

It is impossible to give you a detailed description of the work, but I have tried to give you a glimpse of the inside of this Department of your state government, which is now termed under the Reorganization Law as the Department of State, and requires the services of eight clerks—full time.

Random Shots— The Governor is on his vacation with a group of friends at Lake Desert, Ontario, Canada, and will be away until the early part of September.

Lieutenant Governor Keen Johnson is Governor in his absence.

SEVERAL POINTS GIVEN SPORTSMEN TO ABIDE BY

The Division of Game and Fish gives several points for every sportsman to learn and abide by. If these are strictly observed, there will be more game and fish, better hunting and fishing, and a closer relationship between the sportsmen and the landowners:

1. That Game and Fish belong to everyone.

2. To get permission from the landowner to fish or hunt and enjoy in peace your holiday.

3. That you can believe in trespass signs without being superstitious.

4. That the word "Sportsman" is dubious unless you can truly add the word "Gentleman."

5. To respect the laws of man and nature and you'll respect yourself.

6. To take only your legal share of fish and game in season.

7. To familiarize yourself with the game laws and abide by them.

8. That limits on birds and fish are fixed for good and obvious reasons.

9. To unload your gun before entering your car.

10. That a fool from his gun is soon departed.

11. That carelessness can be abolished by thoughtfulness.

That a gate's efficiency depends on its being closed.

13. That fire is a menace and only God can make a tree.

14. To insure future wildlife by creating interest among our young people.

INDIANA FARMER ACQUIRES HERD OF PUREBRED CATTLE

In April of this year Mr. Cornelius O'Brien, Lawrenceburg, Ind., acquired from L. A. Weaver, Professor of Animal Husbandry, Missouri Agricultural College, Columbia, Mo., a herd of purebred Hereford cattle consisting of a herd bull, thirty-six cows, twenty-eight of which had calf at side. The dry cows have since had their calves. Mr. Weaver is a well known authority on Hereford cattle being used as a judge of this breed at many state fairs and live stock shows. This herd was founded by him in 1920 since when by careful eliminations and additions, he built it up to a producing herd containing the best blood lines of the breed. There is ample representation in the herd of the blood of Gudgell's and Simpson's best product and the following bulls: Domino; Bright Stanway 9th; Young Anxiety 4th; Paladin; Beau President; Beau Dandy and Beau Donovan 3d.

While dairy cattle predominates in this part of the country, and rightfully so, there is a definite place for the beef breeds and this herd should make a firm imprint upon the stock in this section resulting in material improvement in the cattle raised for beef by those not interested in raising purebred stock exclusively.

VERONA GROCERMAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE SATURDAY

As He Walked into the Path of Passing Motorist Near Store at Verona—Dies at St. Elizabeth Hospital Early Sunday Morning

Nicholas McCormick, 64, life long resident of Verona, was struck and killed by an automobile Saturday afternoon about 2:30 p. m. as he attempted to cross the highway a short distance from his place of business, Verona.

He was rushed to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, for treatment but died early Sunday morning. Dr. James P. Riffe, Kenton County Coroner, said he suffered fractures of both legs, severe brain concussions, and cuts on the right arm and face.

It was said that McCormick walked from behind a parked automobile into the path of an automobile driven by Willard Menifee, of Piner. Menifee was on his way to Warsaw to attend the fair at that place when the accident occurred.

Mr. McCormick has been a resident of Boone County all his life and has lived at or near Verona all the time. He resided on his farm, about one mile from Verona, the earlier part of his life, and came to Verona and entered the grocery business about 16 years ago. He has been active in all matters of interest to his community and county, and was loved by all who knew him.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs Ledia McCormick, and one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Code, also of Verona.

Funeral services were conducted at the home at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, burial followed at the New Bethel cemetery. J. L. Hamilton had charge of the funeral arrangements.

JUDD IS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

FOR CRIMINAL ATTACK ON EIGHT-YEAR-OLD WALTON GIRL — EX-CONVICT PLEADS GUILTY OF ABUSING CHILD.

Harmon Judd, 24, Cincinnati, O., was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday, following a trial before Circuit Judge James G. Vallandingham in the Boone Circuit Court. He was charged with a criminal attack upon an eight-year-old Walton girl.

Judd, who entered a plea of guilty, was charged with attacking a girl living on Stevenson Mill Road, near Walton. The jury was out but 10 minutes. Judd and three other prisoners were taken to the LaGrange Prison Farm Friday afternoon.

The attack upon the girl took place nearly a month ago. The girl's father trailed Judd to a Cincinnati cafe, where he slugged him with a beer bottle, then called Cincinnati police. He was arrested by Patrolmen Bernard McAvoy and Courtney Craig.

After he was in the custody of the officers he broke away, but was recaptured.

Judd is a paroled convict from an Indiana penitentiary and had been employed by the girl's father for some time.

After being arrested in Cincinnati Judd waived extradition, and was returned to Boone County by Sheriff Frank M. Walton.

Homemakers To Visit Improved Homes

Momemakers of Boone County are planning to have a tour Friday, September 2nd. The improved homes of three homemakers will be visited. The tour will also include the Christian church of Florence.

All homemakers and friends are invited to go on the tour. The group will meet at the home of Mrs. Bertha Conrad, Hebron, at 10:30 A. M. (central time). Her home will be the first to be inspected. Mrs. Conrad had made many changes in the interior of her home. The second stop will be the Christian church of Florence. The church was remodeled and decorated last fall. After lunch the group will visit the home of Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker of Florence. Mrs. Blankenbeker has rearranged furniture and changed the general decorative scheme of her living room. The last home to be visited will be Mrs Jake Cleek of New Haven. The exterior and interior of the Cleek home has been remodeled. The downstairs floor plan was changed to fit the needs of the family. Miss Ida C. Hagman, Home Improvement Specialist, University of Kentucky, assisted these Homemakers in their improved plans.

The homemakers county executive committee, consisting of Mrs. Sam Sleet, president, Mrs. Allan Gaines, Vice President, Mrs. Vernon Pope, Sec'y. and Treasurer, met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Conrad, Mrs. Cleek, Mrs. Blankenbeker and Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home demonstration agent, to make final arrangements for the tour.

Four Teams Complete First Of Drawings

Only two games were played Sunday in the Northern Kentucky Amateur League, due to heavy rainfall over a large section of the state.

The Belleview-Visalia game was forfeited by Visalia due to shortage of players. Chisel Bridge and Mt. Zion also played as scheduled. These four teams completed the first three game series, and will be in the second drawing to be held at City Hall, Covington, Monday night, August 29th.

Big Bone dropped three straight, thus eliminating them from the league. All the other teams will play the games that were scheduled for last Sunday on the coming Sunday.

Mrs. Thos. Hensley Remains Seriously Ill

Mrs. Thomas Hensley, who resides on the Belleview pike a short distance from Burlington, was rushed to Good Samaritan hospital late Monday afternoon by Chambers and Grubbs ambulance to undergo a major operation.

The operation was performed about 5:30 p. m. and her condition remained very serious for quite some time. However, the latest word that we were able to get was to the effect that her condition was somewhat improved, although not beyond the danger point as yet.

The exact nature of the operation was not made known as the doctors have not revealed any definite information regarding the case.

We join with her host of friends here in wishing her a very speedy recovery.

FIRE DESTROYS ROSE PROPERTY

DURING THE ABSENCE OF OWNER FRIDAY NIGHT—HOUSE AND FURNISHINGS COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

Fire completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Rose, of near Florence, Friday night before it was discovered by passing motorists. The flames were first sighted by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Renaker, of Burlington, as they were returning from the Falmouth Fair, Friday.

According to Mr. Rose, they had left that morning to spend the day with relatives in Indiana, and that they were unable to determine the origin of the fire unless it was caused by defective wiring in a switchbox. The house was equipped with electric current.

The fire was first notice about 12:30 A. M., and before anyone arrived the entire structure was a mass of flames. None of the household furnishings were saved, and even a truck that was parked near the building was ignited and burned before anyone arrived.

Although the exact loss was not estimated, Mr. Rose stated Monday that he had approximately $3,000.00 insurance on the house and fixtures.

RIVER RAIDED BY WARDENS

MAKING FIVE ARRESTS AND CONFISCATING 29 ILLEGAL FISHING NETS—BAUM TO SERVE JAIL SENTENCE.

After being tipped that the Ohio river was filled with illegal and unlicensed fishing nets, Game Wardens Edwin Johnson and Lennie Busby got busy the past week to clean up the situation and rid the river of all illegal equipment as well as unlincensed fishermen.

The first victim was John Walls, 6457 Riverside Drive, Cincinnati, who was arrested and bought before Judge N. E. Riddell on a charge of fishing without license. He was tried and found guilty and fined $29.50, which was paid immediately.

The next move of the wardens was to search for all unlicensed and illegal equipment being used in the river. The total at this writing has reached 29 nets, part of which have been burned and destroyed by the wardens, the ones remaining were brought to Burlington for safe keeping. Only a small part of the nets were condemned because of not being legal the greater number being seized because they were being used without license. These nets were brought to Burlington and will be held until the owners obtain their license for same, at which time the nets will be returned to their rightful owners.

Earl Powers, Ralph Faum and Cleet Baum, all of Aurora, Indiana were also arrested for fishing without license and brought to the courthouse for trail. All three pleaded guilty as charged and a fine of $29.50 was imposed on each Powers and Cleet Baum paid their fines, but Ralph Baum was placed in jail to serve out his fine as he was unable to pay. All three of these men were fishing on the Indiana side of the river, but the Ohio river belongs to Kentucky and therefore comes under the jurisdiction of Kentucky Game Wardens.

Two youths were arrested Sunday by the wardens for hunting on the Hebron Game Reserve and brought to Burlington for a date to be set for a hearing. It was said that both boys were also charged with hunting without a license as well as hunting on a State Game Reserve. The hearing was set for later in the week.

The residents of Boone County should be proud of the fact that our wild life is being protected, and this is being accomplished through the efficient management of Edwin Johnson, our game warden. He has the interest of conservation at heart, and with the combined cooperation of county officials and the landowners, he has been able to accomplish much in the protection of our wild life in Boone County.

$1099.00 PROFIT FOR KY. FARMS

IN 1937 AS SHOWN BY FARM ACCOUNT RECORDS—HIGEST NET FARM INCOME SINCE 1929.

Forty Boone, Kenton and Campbell county farms on which farm account records were kept in 1937 shows a net profit of $1099.00 after interest on investment and other farm expenses were paid. This was the highest net farm income since 1929. All these farms derived a major portion of their income from dairy poultry, fruit and truck crops.

The most profitable farm made a net profit of $3348.00 while two farms showed a net loss. The average farm in the study was capitalized at $10,182.00 and earned 12.2% labor income on the investment.

The ten most profitable farms took in $2.43 for each dollar spent according to the records of Mr. R. E. Proctor, field agent in farm management. The farms making most profit received higher production per cow, higher production per hen, higher crop sales per acre of tillable land and spent fewer dollars for feed bought off the farm.

A number of Boone farms, doing mainly a tobacco, and general livestock type of farming, were combined in a study of 67 similar farms in Grant, Owen, Bracken and Fleming counties. The most profitable farm in this group made a net profit of $6312.00 while the least profitable showed a net loss of $75.00.

The most important factor for a higher farm income in this group were:

1. More acres of tobacco per farm.
2. Higher total receipts per tillable acre.
3. Higher price per cwt. of tobacco.
4. Higher crop sales per tillable acre.
5. More acres of small grain seeded in the fall of 1937.
6. Greater total receipts per $1 expense.
7. Large farms
8. Higher crop yields.
9. More efficient livestock production.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Lorch spent last week at Turner's Station, Ky.

$60,890 AVAILABLE FOR BOONE COUNTY FARMERS

For Carrying Out Soil Building Practices Uuner the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program—Limestone and Phosphate Chief Source of Earning

Sixty thousand eight hunderd and ninety dollars are available to Boone County farmers for carrying out soil building practices under the 1938 agricultural Conservation Program, according to county Agent H. R. Forkner. Proportionate allowances are set up for each farm and the allowance can be secured only by carrying out soil building practices such as seeding grasses, legumesfi use of limestone, phosphate, etc.

The Boone County ACP committees held a meeting at Burlington on Tuesday of this week to discuss ways and means of earning 100% of the allowance set up for the county. Farmers last year lost $13,599.00 thru failure to take full advantage of the allowance set up for the county. The total county allowance this year has been increased from $44,600 last year to $60,890.00 in 1938.

The committeemen plan to visit individual farmers who at the present time have earned very little of their allowance.

Limestone and phosphate are the chief sources of earning the increased allowance. Farmers will receive $1.50 per ton on agricultural limestone used and $1.50 per hundred pounds of 47% phosphate or its equivalent used. A number of local dealers will deliver limestone to the farm for $2.00 per ton. Phosphate at the present time is advanced by the AAA thru the county office. Farmers desiring phosphate should file application immediately as the available supply is being exhausted. Credit to carry out soil building practices can be made available.

There is a way for every farmer to earn 100% of his allowance this year provided he begins work immediately.

W. B. Cotton Will Move To Florence

W. B. Cotton, operator of the Standard Oil Service Station Dixie Highway at Shelby Street will move to Florence to make his home on or about the first of September.

He will move to Shelby Street, just a few doors from the service station.

The residents of Burlington will miss this fine family, but we wish them much success at Florence.

1,400 Farmers Checked ACP Performance

Fourteen hunderd farms are being checked by field supervisors for performance benefits under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Eleven supervisors are checking approximately 36 farms per day. It will require approximately six more weeks to complete the work.

The field supervisors assisting in this work at the present time are: David Houston, Wilbur Dennison, Wilbur Florence, Ivan Norris, James Sams, William Moore, Virgil Vice, Floyd Crigler, Frank Robinson, Wilford Stephens, and Vernon Stephens.

Farmers are giving the supervisors splendid cooperation in their work. It is necessary that the farmer check and certify the supervisors field report before the records can be completed. The supervisors report that most farmers will earn 100% of their soil building allowance this year.

ITALY AND WHEAT

Despite the fact that North America will produce enough wheat to come close to feeding the world, does not affect the Italian people who are going to come out short on their wheat crop this harvesting time. Our nation will produce the second largest crop of its record, and the Italian people have a shortage of about 36,500,000 bushels of wheat. Mussolini has heard the grumblings of his people concerning the poor bread they have been forced to eat, and he has promised them a bread with a higher percentage of corn flour instead of substitutes. This is all well and good for the Italian people if their wheat crop will supply the necessary demands, but so far their prospcts have fallen short. They are a demonstrative people and were childishly elated over the scene of their Mussolini, stripped to the waist, heaving sheaves of wheat into the thresher, surrounded by a cheering multitude, with the sun shining down on him and his people. It is a vivid picture and may be inspiring to the Italian folks, but we are wondering whether their shouts will law demands that labels "tell all." be so cheerful if they become hungry. Il Duce says his people will be fed, but even if they aren't fed they will not humiliate themselves soliciting help in any form from "so-called great democracies." Cheering him seems to be a habit with the Italian people and this is fitting if the cheers don't turn to jeers when granaries are depleted and breadboxes are affected. We hope no nation will suffer a shortage, if such there will be, even if that same nation refuses to buy it's bread from "enemies of Italy." But as wheat fields yield their harvests, folks count their blessing and wonder if another nation, lustily cheering a man for his ardor and energy, will let the lack of millions of bushels of wheat interfere with their praise.

PURER FOODS AND DRUGS

Before his death, Senator Royal S. Copeland accomplished a piece of legislation that has been a bone of contention for five years. This was the passing of a bill to change the Food and Drug Act of 1906. The new set-up looks a lot better than the old bill and most citizens feel the new regulations are a safe-guard to their health. We citizens feel the new regulations are a safe-guard to their health. We are well aware that there are a number of harmful patent medicines on the market, and that at various times we are apt to come across items in our papers dealing with cases of blindness and of death due to impure foods. drugs and cosmetics. After June 27, 1939, the Federal Government will have right to try violators and will call on the Department of Justice and its successful Federal Bureau of Investigation to look into the case and immediately remove the medicine from the market. The old law carried a maximum penalty of $200 for first offense, but the new law says $1,000, a year's imprisonment, or both, can be the sentence. This Any products, especially canned goods, prepared improperly before canning, may be barred. Medicines that are supposed to deal with weight will be given attention, and medicines containining any drugs must warn against habit-forming. If medicines deteriorate within a certain length of time, this must be put on the label as well. Anything as important to the welfare of the public at the Food and Drug Act should come pretty close to being as perfect as any man-made law can come.

RIGHTS

As a nation we believe in rights in religious and civil actions. There is nothing that so stirs us to indignation as to hear about a foreign nation becoming so powerful and domineering that they can interfere with the lives and customs of an under-dog people forced to bow to tyranny. But while we are clucking our tongues at such goings-on in countries beyond the waters, right here in our own boundaries a certain religious group of thrifty, conscientious citizens have been forced to carry an appeal to the Supreme Court regarding whether they might not keep their children in schools which they maintain, or must be forced to send them to school built of borrowed money from the government. These people are self-sustaining and one of their principles is to carry on by means of their own power, to rely on their own resources, and depend upon their God and his soil to carry them through. They are quite successful, inasmuch as they farm the richest county in the United States, and are a debt-free people. They support themselves without the aid of state or government and consequently they dislike going against these principles and sending their children to schools supported on borrowed finances. This nation is a nation of free people, and however we may feel personally about such matters as these, whether we agree with the sentiments of these others, let us at least be tolerant in our own country as we criticize other countries for not being.

UNCLE SAM AND FARM YOUTHS

The fact that there used to be more employment in the city made the country boy anxious to seek jobs there. Today this situation has changed and youth is staying home farming. A survey shows that daily more young persons are going from cities to farms than otherwise. Small towns and villages show a big increase in the young folks who remain there. With the convenience of the auto the city is easily reached and as easily left, so that the good earth appeals more than ever as a steady diet. As someone said, "When meal-time comes on the farm you can either pull it or ring its neck, but in the city it means a trip to the corner grocery and a hunt for the can-opener." And youth knows this is true. Uncle Sam is encouraging the youth on the farm. He is trying to help in his way by purchasing butter and eggs to the tune of $35,000 a day, reports the Agricultural Department through the Surplus Commodities Department. When prices go too low this department buys produce which will lessen the supply and advance the price. What the government buys is distributed to the needy families through state relief agencies. You know the combination of two such forces as youth and government is pretty hard to beat.

WASTING AMERICANS

Did you ever stop to think of how we waste our resources, of how we discard the products that saved, would cut down our expenses and teach us the value of thrift? We find many a fellow who figures he can "beat the game" by throwing his money away on games of chance. There is many a woman who puts the left-overs from dinner in the garbage can instead of finding a dish that might be tasty and eaten. Our grandmothers used to make soap out of grease, and today lots of it we throw away. One man feels that all this waste is not to be compared to the wasting we do in time and energy. We realize that we sap our strength with unnecessary things, and it is usually too late when we become aware of our foolhardiness. Why not profit by the old saying, "Save at the spigot and waste at the bung hole," and keep the spigot running smooth and mend the bung hole, by starting as good thrifty Americans to save and not be sorry?

Home life in America is still safe now that nobody has as yet thought to patent a power can-opener for the kitchen.

ELI: RESPONSIBILITY FOR OTHERS

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 3:11-14; 4:12-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go. Proverbs 22:6a.
PRIMARY TEXT—When God Spoke to a Boy.
JUNIOR TEXT—When God Spoke to a Junior.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Should We Do as We Please?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Challenge of Christian Fatherhood.

The responsibilities and privileges of fatherhood need special emphasis, and the lesson of today gives excellent opportunity for such consideration. Too often the rearing of children, which is almost inevitably largely in the hands of the mother, is entirely delegated to her, and the father becomes the man who pays the bills, occasionally carries out a severe act of discipline, but otherwise is almost a stranger to his children.

Girls as well as boys appreciate and respond to the loving and understanding fellowship of a father who really improves the opportunity to build himself into the lives of his children.

Eli is a striking illustration of a man who had attained an honorable position in life and who had discharged his public duties with success, but who failed his own boys, because of weak indulgence. Not a few Christian workers have followed in Eli's path.

I. A Weak Father and Vile Sons (3:13).

The sons of Eli were wicked men who dared even to use the service of the temple for the gratification of fleshly appetites and lusts. (See 2:12-17,22.) Eli protested against their most flagrant sin (2:23,24), but evidently he had lost his influence over them, for they did not hearken.

It is not always true that the wickedness of a son is the result of weakness in the father, nor is it always the case that weak fathers have vile sons. Often the sons live far better lives than their fathers, and frequently a godly and faithful father suffers the heartbreak of having a wayward son. But usually "like father, like son" is true. Boys learn from their fathers—not so much by words of admonition, as by deeds. Let us tell our boys how to live by first living a consistent Christian life, and then lovingly but insistently requiring of them during their days of irresponsibility conformity to the standards of God. We need to build moral fiber into American youth of our country if it is not to fall into the decadence of the civilizations of the past.

II. Judgment—Personal and National (3:12, 14; 4:17).

Sin brings a horrible harvest of sorrow, suffering and judgment, not only to the individual but to his family, and ultimately to the nation. No man can ever divorce himself from his relationship to his family. His people will suffer for his waywardness, perhaps more than he suffers himself. The nation is made up of homes, and consequently when the family suffers the nation will suffer too.

There is a strange theory current that social and political entities have an existence apart from the people who make them up, that our people can drink and gamble and steal and kill, and yet somehow we will still be the "land of the free and the home of the brave." America is what the families in your community and mine are, and our families are what we are. May God help us to be better fathers, mothers, brothers, and sisters.

III. Responsibility and Opportunity.

This division of our lesson is drawn from no special portion of the Scripture lesson, but is presented to place squarely before us the fact that we (and we are speaking specifically to fathers) have a plain and inescapable responsibility for our family life, as well as to emphasize the fact that this is not a responsibility of which we should be afraid. It is God's gift of glorious opportunity.

Eli was a personal success as a priest. He had many commendable qualities, not the least of which was his gracious recognition of the ministry of Samuel, who had grown up in his presence and yet who was recognized by Eli as the messenger of God. (Compare Mark 6:4 and I Tim. 4:12.) But he missed life's greatest opportunity by losing his own boys. Sad to say, many a father has followed him, yes, even we are sorely tempted to make our business (and it may be the "business" of the Lord) the thing of primary concern, and let our children fit in where they may, or not at all.

Let us look on the brighter side in closing our study and recall the inspiring contribution that has been made to our national life, to our spiritual life and our social advancement by those who have come out of the most humble of homes, with the most meager worldly advantages, but with the rugged characters—physically, morally, and spiritually stalwart—which have been nurtured in a true Christian home. It pays, not only for the person and for the family, but also for the nation, to have Christian fathers.

Crop Report

August 1 crop conditions in Kentucky indicated good crops of corn, wheat, oats, rye, barley, hay, Irish potatoes, and sweet potatoes; a short crop of tree fruits; and spotted condition of tobacco varying from excellent to poor due to excessive rains in some areas but averaging good for the state as a whol, according to the August 1. report of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics issued thru the Louisville office. Since Aug. 1 heavy rains, especially in the five dark tobacco type areas in the western half of the state, have injured considerable tobacco, but the burley area has suffered much less, so far.

Based on conditions as of Aug. 1, the prospects for Kentucky tobacco indicated a probably state total production, of all types combined of 354,566,000 lbs. compared with a production of 366,160,000 lbs. in 1937, and 305,175,000 lbs. average production 1927-36, inclusive. The Aug. 1 prospect for the United States total tobacco production, of all types, was for 1,478,851,000 lbs. compared with 1,553,405,000 lbs. total United States production last year, and 1,325,243,000 lbs. average annual production 1927-36.

KIRWAN BEGINS FIRST SEASON AS U. K. COACH

Lexington, Ky., August 6—From one end of Kentucky to the other, football fans are uniting behind a young Kentuckian who, this fall, is beginning his first season as head football coach of the University of Kentucky Wildcats.

He is Ab Kirwan, who captained the Wildcats in 1925 and who was graduated in the class of 1926 after establishing a reputation as an outstanding football player and student. Later he won his law degree at the Jefferson School of Law at Louisville, his home city.

While in the law school, Kirwan began coaching football at Louisville Male High School, later becoming head football coach at Louisville Manual. His success as a coach at both the Louisville schools was so marked that when Bernie Shively was made athletic director at the University of Kentucky, his first official act was to name Kirwan head football coach of the Wildcats.

The young Kentuckian took over his duties here last spring. He directed the spring football practice and has toured the entire state making speeches before civic clubs and organizing Wildcat Booster Clubs in the interest of building up support for the University of Kentucky athletic teams.

With Kirwan at the helm, alumni and other friends of the University have high hopes of Kentucky taking its proper place in the realm of athletics in the Soutr. Coach Kirwan hopes to do this by persuading Kentucky high school graduates to attend their own state University. He believes that no better football material exists than that which is produced in Kentucky.

BANNER YEAR FOR SOIL IMPROVEMENT SAYS DEAN COOPER

With nearly 18,000 tons of triple superphosphate already requested by farmers, in lieu of cash payments earned for soilbuilding practices in the Agricultural Conservation program, this will be a banner year in soil improvement in Kentucky declares Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

The 18,000 tons of phosphate already ordered, with the year only half gone, compares to a total of 19,500 tons used in 1937. Dean Cooper predicted that 30,000 tons of triple superphosphate may be used in Kentucky this year.

Last year, which was the greatest year to date in soil improvement, more than 2,000,000 acres of grasses and legumes were seeded, following applications of 820,-000 tons of lime materials and the 19,500 tons of triple superphosphate, which had a fertilizing value equal to 55,000 tons of ordinary phosphate.

Included in the soil-building seedings were 832,000 acres of lespedeza, 573,000 acres of mixtures, 195,000 acres of orchard grass and redtop, 22,000 acres of bluegrass, 10,000 acres of alfalfa, 27,000 acres of winter legumes, 277,000 acres of green manure crops, several thousand acres of miscellaneous legumes and several hundred acres of orchard mulch and of forest trees.

Last year Kentucky farmers earned more than 76 percent of their soil-building allowance, Dean Cooper pointed out, compared to 65 percent in 1936. He expects them to earn a still bigger percentage this year, judging from the way they are ordering superphosphate and making use of other soil-building practices.

The best record last year, so far as earning soil-building allowances is concerned, was made in Carroll county, where farmers allowance. In 1937 they earned 54 percent of their allowance. earned 90½ percent of their total

The second best record in percentage of soil-building allowance earned last year was 89, made by farmers in Oldham county. Farmers in Mercer and Simpson counties earned more than 87 percent of their allowances, while in Clay and Bourbon counties the percentage earned was more than 86.

Approximately 120,000 Kentucky farmers last year earned $4,000,000 in round numbers, in soil-building allowances. Christian county farmers earned $99,880; Bourbon county farmers, $96,832, and Hardin county farmers $90,964.

Dean Cooper said he was highly pleased with the amount of soil-improvement work done in the eastern counties of the state. Amounts earned in some counties last year were : Bath, $33,369; Clay, $29,279; Carter, $21,497; Elliott, $19,111; Breathitt, $17,345; Owsley, $17,227 and Perry, $12,121.

GREAT VARIATION IN FARM RETURNS

Records kept by 40 farmers in Campbell county, Ky., last year revealed a variation in returns from a loss of $1,312 to a profit of $3,348. Only two of the 40 farmers lost money, and 16 had net earnings of $1,000 or more. Principal sources of income were dairying, sheepraising, small fruits and vegetables. Strawberries were marketed in Cincinnati for an average of 3.15 a crate, and wool was sold cooperatively to an Ohio firm for 24 cents a pound.

Here's Why Hens Go On Stand-Up Strike

Hens sometimes decide on a stand-up strike, along toward the end of a hot summer. Poultry experts at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture tell why old biddy makes up her mind to quit. Here are the reasons:

Lack of balanced feeding; too many non-producing hens in the flock; lice and mites; in sufficient cool, fresh drinking water; the heat.

Nothing can be done about the weather; but the hens can be provided with proper feed, an abundance of fresh water, shade, and kept free from lice and mites.

Early molters should be culled out and sold, say the experts. Few early molters will come back into production soon enough to be profitable. Likewise, sell all male birds not wanted for breeding next season, and also sell all broddy hens.

It usually is necessary to cull the pullets as well as the old birds Keep only those birds that have made rapid growth, that are well feathered and are healthy and vigorous.

Clean the poultry houses often and well. Clean and scald or disinfect all drinking vessels. Prepare to exercise precaution against chickenpox, canker and roup which attack many flocks in the fall.

Increased Loss In Marketing Animals

Despite improved methods for handling livestock, more than 9 million animals are injured yearly in marketing, with a loss estimated at $12,000,000. Kentucky's share in this loss is not known, but the College of Agriculture at Lexington puts it at several hundred thousand dollars.

The National Live Stock Loss Prevention Board says that the extensive use of trucks in marketing livestock has tended to increase losses. Trucks are overloaded, different kinds of stock are crowded together in the same truck, without partitions; improper bedding used; animals injured in loading and unloading, and large losses incurred by the brutal use of clubs and canes.

Partitions are recommended where cattle, hogs or sheep are transported in one truck. Filling a truck with cattle, and then crowding in hogs and sheep, should be avoided. Loading chutes should be substantial and carefully placed so the stock can go from the pen into the truck without injury. Canvas covers are useful in cold or wet weather, or to protect stock from sun in hot weather.

Farmers are urged to employ only reliable truckers, who own good trucks, load and unload with car and drive carefully.

PRICE PIKE, ONE MILE FROM FLORENCE

THE TREND OF THINGS

In the past homes were largely chosen from blue prints and pictures.

The trend today is to choose a home—cafeteria like—from streets of exact built-to-scale miniatures, landscaped in appropriate settings. The first permanent display of this kind, shown with all types of building materials, was recently opened to the public, in the Merchandise Mart, Chicago.

STATE FAIR READY FOR ITS BIGGEST YEAR

It's exposition time again in Kentucky and Louisville proudly throws open her doors to welcome its guests from far and near to the 36th Kentucky State Fair held from September 12th to 17th. Due to many improvements and enlargements there is reason to believe that this year's Kentucky State Fair will prove to be far superior to any in the past. The impressive $300,000 Merchants and manufacturers Building has been thoroughly redecorated and industry has cooperated splendidly as evidenced by the huge demand for space.

Exhibition premiums have been materially increased this year. Intense interest in the various competitions is manifested by the fact that advance entires and requst for premium books have far surpassed those of previous years. In the cattle show Aberdeen-Angus will be the first breed shown. Judging on this entry will begin at 9:00 a. m. on Tuesday; Herefords at 8:30 a. m., Wednesday. All steer classes will be judged on that day also. The judging of Holstein-Freisians and Jerseys will take place on Tuesday. This year the committee has been very liberal in providing separate classes for contestants in the dairy cattle competition.

Livestock and other farm exhibits are expected to be the finest in the history of the fair. Because of improved conditions in both rural and urban sections, enthusiastic interest in the 36th renewal of the Fair is reported throughout the state.

Indications are that from an attendance and participation standpoint the Fair will be the largest and most successful ever held. Much of the exhibit space has already been sold. H. S. Cleveland, Manager of the Fair reports wholehearted support from manufacturers and merchants who plan exhibits. This would indicate that exhibitors are experiencing better times and are expecting this year's Fair to be bigger and better than ever.

Improved and redecorated grounds and buildings will greet Fair visitors this year. Exhibit buildings have been made more attractive, and many novel and unique exhibitions have been planned.

Fair officials have decided to retain the 25c admission, since this reduction last year resulted in a decided increase in attendance and placed the Kentucky State Fair within the reach of everyone.

According to an announcement by H. S. Cleveland, Manager, the new 1939 Fair catalogs have been placed in the mail. Individual copies of this publication may be obtained by writing the Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, Kentucky.

Remember "It's Kentucky's Greatest Show—Let's All Go!"

Contour Cultivation Checks Soil Erosion

A leaflet published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture stresses the need for contour cultivation of sloping land. Tests indicate that as much as 60 tons of top soil per acre may be washed away where corn or tobacco is grown directly with the slope. By running the rows around the slope, erosion can be largely prevented. The leaflet gives many valuable pointers about the practice of contour cultivation.

Suggests Buying Feeder Lambs To Breed Next Year

With a shortage of ewes of the proper types for Kentucky conditions, Richard C. Miller of the College of Agriculture at Lexington suggests that farmers buy good western ewe feeder lambs and hold them over for breeding next year. Such lambs can be had at around 5.50 a head laid down in Kentucky, he said, and their wool should pay for carrying them through the winter. As has happened in the past, there was not enough of the Hampshire and Suffolk crosses in te Northwest this year to supply the demand.

As many as 300 lambs can be shipped in a double-deck car. If properly handled during the winter they should shear around 8 pounds of wool which, with the comparatively low price of wool, would still pay th ecost of feed and labor, Miller said. If a farmer obtained more lambs than he needed for breeding ewes next year, he should have no difficulty selling them at a reasonable profit.

Miller said some farmers might be tempted to breed lambs this year. This is not considered a desirable practice. Sometimes western lambs are sheared after they arrive and then sold as short yearlings, he pointed out. They are really lambs and should be bought by the pound.

Lambs could be bred the first year, according to Miller, but they would require more care than would mature ewes, and would probably have difficulty in lambing, would wear out earlier than if not bred until yearlings and probably would not develop into large ewes. The better plan is to run them through on pasture and hay and breed them next season.

AUTOMOBILE FACTS:

When you are driving at night, with a speed of 40 miles per hour, you need 202 feet to stop your car, if your brakes are good. This is about as far ahead as one can see. Driving faster than this your stopping distance is beyond the range of your lights . . . Tires will wear out twice as rapidly at a temperature of 90 degrees as at 60 degrees. Heat is a great enemy of rubber . . . Motor car fatalities have more than doubled in the U. S. since 1915.

Sportsmen Should Observe Fishing Laws

Right now is the proper time for all sportsmen to post themselves fully upon the Kentucky Game and Fish laws. The fishing season is at its height and the temptation to catch a few more is very great. No person shall take or have in his possession more than ten black bass nor more than ten trout nor more than fifteen rock bass or goggle-eye nor more than fifteen crappie nor more tnah fifteen jack salmon or wall eyed pike nor more than fifteen striped bass in any one day.

No person shall have in his possession any black bass under 11 inches in length nor any trout under seven inches, crappie under eight inches. Any person having fished two days in succession may have in possession a total not to exceed 20 black bass or trout, 30 rock bass or goggle-eye or 30 crappie, 30 jack slamon or wall-eyed pike, or 30 striped bass.

That is certainly liberal. Any larger amount would put one in the fish-hog class.

Every good sportsman should feel it to be his duty and his privilege to sustain the officers of the law in the enforcement thereof. No person should violate the law or despoil the streams upon the assumption that the law was made for the other fellow. It was made for everybody and a claim of good citizenship cannot be made without observing it.

State Clover Seed Crop May Be Large

Information received at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington indicates that a large acreage of red clover may be harvested for seed in Kentucky this summer. Many inquiries have gone to the Station from county agents and from farmers, seeking information about seed production in sections which ordinarily do not save seed.

"Inasmuch as the value of seed on the market is determined by its purity, it will be of advantage to farmers to rogue out certain weeds in the field, in so far as possible," says a statement issued by Dr. E. N. Fergus of the agronomy department of the Experiment Station.

"Spots of dodder should be cut and removed from the field, straw spread on them and burned, or a blow-torch used to destroy them. Buckhorn should be cut underground or pulled and removed from the field. Steps can be taken to keep sourdock from being harvested with the clover. All this takes time and effort, but, for the present, is necessary to the production of clover seed that will meet market requirements or, for that matter, that will be suitable for sowing on the farm which produces it, for if one sows weed seeds he is sure to reap weeds. Clover seed that is almost free of weed seed can be cleaned with little loss, whereas impure seed cannot be cleaned without great loss of good clover seed.

"Harvesting the seed crop presents only a small problem. Its main consideration is that it be handled in such a way as to shatter as little of the seed as possible. The use of a buncher or windrow attachment for the sikle bar is satisfactory, or the crop may be allowed to lie in the swath and then taken up with a rake while the material is in case.

"The material should be hulled as soon as thoroughly cured; otherwise it should be placed in a stack or a barn until it can be hulled. It is not necessary to rot the material in the field in order to hull the seed though it makes hulling somewhat easier. Leaving in the field to rot almost always results in much loss of seed, because in damp weather the bunches or windrows must be turned frequently to keep from sprouting and much seed is shattered. If rainy weather sets in, the crop is lost. Therefore it is best to stack or house the crop as soon as it is thoroughly cured unless it can be hulled at once.

"Hulling is satisfactorily done by either the old type clover seed huller or by a grain thresher with a hulling attachment that is properly adjusted. The small combine harvester will usually operate satisfactorily in red clover ,though if there is sufficient rain to keep the stems green or to stimulate the growth of new shoots, it will be necessary to cut and cure the crop and then hull it."

Turkeys Don't Worry About Fat; Just Grow

Turkeys are different from hogs and beef cattle in that they do not fatten; they merely grow, says Dr. J. Holmes Martin of the Kentucky College of Agriculture, in suggesting that farmers take advantage of comparatively cheap grains and keep the birds growing until Thanksgiving or Christmas time.

Corn, wheat, oats and barley are good feeds for the big birds. He suggests a mixture of 200 pounds of mixed wheat feed or ground wheat, 100 pounds of ground yellow corn, 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of meat scrap and 5 pounds of salt. Both grain and mash should be self-fed.

Hertofore most attempted escapes have been made from men's prisons, but in its new dramatic offreing, "Condemned Women" RKO Radio vividly depicts such an event at a modern institution for women convicts. How the plot is carefully planned—obtaining the plans of the prison buildings, selecting the participants, arranging to procure the necessary keys and revolvers—is disclosed in full detail in a thrill-packed sequence said to be one of the most thrilling ever filmed.

Sally Eilers, Louis Hayward and Anne Shirley head the cast of "Condemned Women." Miss Eilers as a girl convict and Hayward as a young psychiatrist assigned to work in the prison hospital, fall in love despite the strict vigilance of the prison authorities. Realizing that the impending marriage they plan will Hayward's promising career, Sally poins the escape planned by Lee Patrick, a hard-boiled long-term inmate. The grim affair develops with highly exciting results. Lew Landers directed "Condemned Women," a production by Robert Sisk with Leo Irving, Esther Dale and Leona Roberts in the support.

Recommend Fall Grass Seedings

The Kentucky Experiment Station recommends sowing grass in late summer and early fall, despite the fact that a large amount of grass is sown in the spring. Grass seedlings require cool weather and a fair amount of moisture, it is pointed out, and fall weather provides these conditions more often than does spring.

Orchard grass alone may be an exception to perferred fall seeding, says Dr. E. N. Fergus, not because spring weather is better for it than fall weather, but because orchard grass seedlings are not so winterhardy as other common grass seedlings. However, late August and early September seedlings often, if not usually, become well enough established to survive ordinary winters in Kentucky, especially in the southern and western parts of the state.

In Northern Kentucky, Dr. Fergus recommends that orchard grass be sown in February, or sowed in both fall and spring; that is, sow half of the seed in the fall and half in the spring.

GIVES CONTROL FOR BAGWORMS—SPIDERS

Bagworms and red spiders seem to be doing particular injury to evergreens and other plants at this season, according to complaints received by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

It may be practical to hand-pick the bagworms from smaller trees carrying away and burning the bags. The most effective control for general infestation of larger trees by bagworms is spraying with arsenate of lead at the rate of one-half pound to 6 gallons of water, applied as soon as the worm are noticed. Sprays should be used on evergreens only when the temperature is below 85 degrees, as otherwise the trees may be injured.

The red spider feeds on nearly leviate rather than entirely cure levi ate rather than entirely cure the trouble. One method often tried is frequent syringing or spraying of the plants with a stream of clear water applied with force enough to tear up the webs of spiders and knock them to the ground. As water often applied may injure some plants, this is not always practical. Dusting with superfine sulphur is of value. Spraying the plants with wettable sulphur mixed according to manufacturers' directions is also recommended as giving a satisfactory check.

FISH-CARRYING OF BODIES OF WATER EXPLAINED BY DEPT.

A number of inquiries have reached the Division of Game and Fish as to the fish-carrying capacity of a given area of water—usually the inquiry applies to artificial or natural ponds or lakes. This in itself is a hard question to answer as so many varying conditions must necessarily be taken into consideration—for instance, the kind of water whether pumped drainage, or supplied by springs, also, the variety of fish desired for stock, but most important is the food supply in the lake or pond as upon this depends largely the success or failure of the efforts.

A pond that is of extreme depth from 10 to 20 feet or more, does not necessarily mean that it will produce more food. One that has a depth of 4 to 8 feet with shallow shore lines, that has a good growth of acquatic plants along the shore, and moss in the deeper waters will produce more food than the deeper waters. Fish will remain small or starve in a lake that has bare shore lines, and contains no acquatic growth.

A pond or lake that has bare shore lines can offer nothing in the way of food for the fish, whereas a pond that is well stocked with aquatic growth will keep the fish well fed. Where there is a limited food supply, only canabalism can follow, and undersized fish that have been unable to grow in size on account of lack of food. The results will be the same as an overstocked pasture—poor thin undersized stock.

Electricity Has 150 Uses On Farm

There are more than 150 uses for electricity in agriculture, according to a new circular issued by the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky. Electricity may not only provide better lighting, added conveniences, leisure time and improved living conditions, but it may be a means of increasing the farm income, it is declared.

Here are a few of the uses of electricity on the farm listed in this publication: Lighting, cooking, refrigeration, washing, ironing, operating radio, pumping water, milking cows, cooling milk, separating cream, sterilizing milk utensils, churning, providing cold storage, increasing egg production, hatching eggs, brooding chicks, stimulating the growth of plants and animals, trapping insects, lighting yards and buildings, ringing burglar alarms, heating soil in hotbeds, drying fruits and vegetables, and operating saws, sprayers, feed cutters, threshing machines and sheep shears.

The circular, prepared jointly by the agricultural engineering and home economics sections of the College of Agriculture, deals with all phases of installing and using electricity in the home and on the farm. It especially offers valuable suggestions about wiring buildings. Farmers planning to have electricity should ask a county farm agent or home demonstration agent for a copy, or write to the College of Agriculture. Ask for circular 3111, "Electric Service for the Farmstead."

CALLS MILK GOOD FOR WHOLE FAMILY

Milk is good for the whole family ,and not just for the children, declared nutrition experts at the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Milk is the one food for which there is no substitute, and it should be included in the daily diet of everyone, they add. It is the best source of calcium, which is needed for the development and hardening of bones and teeth. It also is a good source of protein for muscle building. The butterfat in milk is an excellent source of vitamin A, which has been found necessary for the normal growth of children and for the health of both children and adults. Recent studies indicate that milk protects against pellagra.

Kentucky University To Hold Feed School

A two-day feed school and conference will be held Aug. 23-24 at the University of Kentucky for the benefit of farmers and feed manufacturers. This school has the purpose of helping manufacturers of feeds to understand the problems farmers meet in feeding livestock, to enable them to render greater service to farmers, and to promote an understanding between the College of Agriculture and those manufacturing and distributing feeds.

A feature of the school will be that lectures will be brief, with plenty of time for discussion of problems.

Among subjects to be considered will be the balanced ration—its use and limits; picking good dairy cows; mineral supplements to the ration; disease control, and feed service.

Lectures will include R. M. Field of Chicago, president of the American Association of Feed Manufacturers; A. T. Whiting, Louisville, of Ballard and Ballard Mills; Roscoe Howe, Mayfield, Mayfield Sweet Feed Mill; Dr. Thomas P. Cooper, dean of Ithe state agricultural college; Prof. J. D. Turner, the state feed control service, and other members of the College of Agriculture staff.

Soil Conservation Work Explained

The Soil Conservation Service at Walton builds the following types of fence. The priority of types of fences built by the SCS is as folloows:

1. Fence around badly gaulded or gullied land retired to trees, usually locust.

2. Fence around a woods having commercial timber such as oak, popular, walnut etc.

3. Fence between steep pasture land and more level land on the ridges.

4. Fence between alfalfa and permanent pasture.

5. Fence dividing a large pasture for rotational grazing purposes.

No fence will be built with SCS labor between crop fields.

No barb wire fence will be built with SCS labor, except in the first or second priority listed above.

The fences built by the SCS are for demonstrational purpose the same as the entire program, The predeminate type of fence in this camp area is woven wire. We recommend a 47 in. fence with 1 barb on top. In no case will the SCS accept less than a 39 in. fence with 2 barbs. Line posts are a minimun of five inches at small or top end and are usually set 3 feet deep and set 1 rod apart.

In all cases the SCS furnishes all labor in hauling limestone and building fende. The Cooperator bears the rest of the expense.

WEAK FEET AFFECT BODY

by N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist
AT PEOPLES' FOOT COMFORT
(SHOE STORE) COVINGTON

When feet are permitted to pronate inwardly, the bony structure of the foot goes down, shutting off the nerve and blood supply in the bottom of the foot. When you cramp or choke the blood stream and slow up circulation, there is a lack of bone repair; chemical deposits, or waste matter form at the joints. Next inflammation sets in at these joints causing pain. That inflammation is often mistaken for rheumatism, arthritis and many other ailments. Also when you cramp the blood supply you shut off the food supply to the nerves.

When nerves are impoverished, muscle tone is impaired because sensory nerves indirectly control motor nerves which in turn control the muscles. When muscles in the feet have lost their tonicity due to impoverishment of the nerves, feet are no longer subconsciously held in normal position.

Surgical shoes give support to the vital arches in the feet releasing cramped nerves and blood vessels to promote better circulation. Gradually as circulation improves, muscles grow strong and regain their tonicity.

With foot health improved the person feels better all over. Research has shown that no less than eighty-seven diseases are indirectly caused by bad feet.

Don't take chances with your health, happiness and peace of mind. With foot comfort you'll live longer and feel better.

FLOWER CARE:

In order to keep from having to arrange flower bouguets every day, it is possible to care for them in the beginning. Only the stems should be in the water. Cut off any leaves that might be in the water. Flowers which wilt easily should be cut only in the morning or evening . . . To revive cut flowers, cut their stems under water with scissors. Do not remove the flowers from this water for a half hour, then rearrange them in the fresh water.

Be Sure Sheep Are Free From Disease

Foot rot is one of the most troublesome diseases of sheep. It is a chronic infectious disease and when once introduced into a flock the pens and pastures become contaminated and the infection soon spreads. Healthy sheep are apt to develop foot rot in 10 to 14 days after being placed in a heavily infected wet pasture. Pens and pastures on well-drained land become free of infection within 30 days in dry weather. In the average well-drained pasture the infection does not persist through the average winter, but on swampy land it may persist from one season to the next.

If sheep are purchased for any purpose they should be kept away from the flock for two to six weeks, or until it is certain that they are free from foot rot or other infectious or contagious diseases, says a statement from the department of animal pathology at the Kentucky Experiment Station. During this quarantine period they should be dipped, if the weather permits, treated three times for worms, and their feet should be trimmed and examined for foot rot. It is a good practice to trim the feet of all sheep on the farm at intervals of from four to six months.

The first sign of foot rot is a slight lameness and the diseased feet are swollen and warm. Badly affected animals walk on three legs or lie down most of the time. Sheep that have foot rot in the front feet frequently rest on the knees while grazing.

There are numerous remedies for foot rot in sheep. The first step is to trim the feet of all sheep in the flock, being sure to remove all of the undermined hoof on the diseased feet. A useful treatment is to stand the sheep in a saturated solution of copper sulphate (bluestone). Twenty-four pounds of copper sulphate are required to saturate 10 gallons of water.

NEW TRANSPORTATION LAW

There has been a new transportation law passed by the last Legislature that will add much to the safety of the children who ride the school busses to and from school.

The new law reads that when a school bus stops either to load or unload children, that all traffic must stop and remain either in front or behind the bus until the driver gives the signal for traffic to move on. This will remove much of the danger incountered in the past by cars passing a bus while loading or unloading children.

Some men are of the opinion that a woman will take a man's money, his name, and his peace of mind.

Lots of us have found it is hard for a man to look on the bright side when he has a pain in his middle.

There may be something in the idea of seeing how long it is possible for a man to stay in the air. Folks think the biggest problem is for him to see how long he can stay on earth.

There are probably men who are married to the wrong women who can get a mightly long ways from home without getting homesick.

2 EX-CONVICTS ARRESTED SAT.

FOR STOREHOUSE BREAKING AT KATE MADDEN FARM NEAR BEAVER—BOTH HAVE SERVED TIME IN KENTUCKY PRISON.

Two men registered as James Baker and Taylor Hiatt, both of Cincinnati, were arrested Saturday night by Sheriffs F. M. Walton and Jake Williams at the Duck Head Inn, near Beaver for breaking and entering a corn crib on the farm of Mrs. Kate Madden, of the Verona-Beaver pike.

The intruders were discovered by two neighbors, Douglas Smith and John Dempsey, who noticed a light in the Madden barn, and being aware of the absence of Mrs. Madden, investigating they found Baker preparing to leave with a load of corn. He was halted and brought to Duck Head Inn until authorities were notified.

It was thought that both men were in the barn at the time they were discovered, but Haitt made a break before the two neighbors arrived. He did not appear on the scene until the party gathered at Duck Head Inn to await the arrival of authorities. He stopped at the Inn to catch a bus to Cincinnati, and was immediately identified by several as the second person seen in the Baker car earlier in the afternoon. Upon arrival of Sheriffs Walton and Williams, both were arrested and brought to Burlington, where they were lodged in jail. The corn and car was stored in the county garage.

A hearing was held Tuesday before County Judge N. E. Riddell, and Baker pleaded guilty, on the corn stealing charge, but denied breaking into the building. He stated the door was open and he did not have to open it in order to get the corn. Haitt pleaded not guilty. Both men were held for grand jury action. The amount of bond, if any, has not been set as yet.

Baker was sentenced in 1932 in Perry Circuit court to three years in the reformatory for dynamiting a coal mine in Perry county. Haitt served two years for storehouse breaking at Richmond, Ky., in 1934. He was also arrested once in Cincinnati for an attempted robbery, but was dismissed after an examining trial.

DRAWING HELD FOR SEPT. 4TH

GAMES IN NORTHERN KENTUCKY AMATEUR LEAGUE—BOONE BOYS UP AGAINST TOUGH OPPOSITION.

Drawing for games September 4th in the Northern Kentucky Amateur Baseball League was held Monday night, at City Building, Covington, Ky. The drawing placed Chisel Bridge with Belleview on the latter grounds at 2:30 p. m. Mt. Zion and Bob & Gene will meet at Crescent Springs. Summe and Ratterman and Old Vienna will tangle at Sanfordtown and Ward's Grocery meets Verona at Verona.

These teams are all evenly matched and should give the fans some real thrills.

Chisel Bridge defeated Belleview earlier in the season and the Bridge boys have added some punch and pitching since. It looks as though the Boone County boys might be in for a possible trimming.

Admission will be charged everyone—men 25c and ladies 15c.

Walton Baptist Church To Have Revival Services

Dr. E. C. Stevens, pastor of the Clifton Baptist church, Louisville, will conduct revival services at the Walton Baptist church, beginning September 5th and continuing through Sept. 16th. Services will be held at 10 a. m. each morning and 7:30 each evening.

Dr. Stevens is a noted speaker and will speak at both morning and evening services.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Church Sponsors Religious Picture

"The Thunder of the Sea," the first full-length sound motion picture to be produced by any religious body, will be shown in Hopeful Lutheran church, on Tuesday, Sept. 6th, at 8:00 p. m. The Rev. H. M. Hauter, pastor will be in charge.

The picture is the most elaborate production of its kind ever completed by a church organization. It was produced by the staff of the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America and is presented through that organization as part of the "20th Anniversary Appeal" for evangelism and church extension in the United States and Canada.

Ministers and members of their congregations play the leading roles in a story of the struggle of the Christian Church up through history. The place of religion in the modern chaotic world is given special emphasis.

Filmed in the "March of Time" fashion it presents the full panorama of modern life. The picture opens with scenes of subway crowds, smoking factories, riots, homes disrupted by unemployment, munitions factories busy at preparations for war, farms devastated by drouth and business men plunged to ruin by the stock market.

The role the modern Church must play in the adequate solution of these evils is the climax of the picture. It demonstrates the fact that the Christian, Church holds the only real problems of our present generation.

No admission or offering. The public is cordially invited.

SCAB GREATEST APPLE PROBLEM

FRUITMEN DISCUSS CONTROL MEASURES AT MEETING HELD LAST THURSDAY ON FARM OF HUBERT CONNER.

Boone county fruit growers, in attending a meeting at Hubert Conner's of near Hebron on Thursday August 25th, stated that apple scab was the greatest problem in the production of quality fruit. Lime sulphur sprays in the prebloom and past bloom stages are the most important control measures but lack of thorough and ability to get the sprays applied at the right stages are resulting in thousands of dollars loss to fruit growers each year.

Mr. W. W. Magill, fruit specialist, led in the group discussion at the meeting. The scab, red aphis, field mice and other important fruit problems will be studied further and taken up in a county fruit meeting to be held next winter.

Fruit farms visited in a morning tour previous to the meeting included: Elmo Jergens, five-acre vineyard. Mr. Jergens had followed a full black rot and insect control spray schedule and had one, if not the cleanest commercial crop of grapes ever produced in the county. The late frosts had cut the yield somewhat but an almost full crop will be produced this

Emmett Riddell's eight-acre Golden Delicious orchard had not set a full crop this year. Charles L. Hempfling, the largest peach producer in the county, had marketed a good crop of fruit at good prices. He and a few other good peach growers had experienced arsenate of lead spray injury on both fruit and leaves as a result of wet weather. Plans to use zinc sulphate with the arsenate of lead next year to prevent injury have been made.

Wm. Rudicill, F. H. Rouse and Hubert Conner had experienced a good set of fruit on some varieties and a poor set of fruit on other varieties.

Discuss Means Of Securing Greater Returns From ACP

The Boone County ACP committeemen met at Burlington courthouse last Tuesday, August 23rd to discuss ways and means of securing greater returns from the A. C. Program for Boone County farmers. The unanimously recommended the earning of a large portion of the $60,890.00 soil building allowance allotted the county.

Mr. Wm. Johnstone, crops field agent of the college, a speaker at the meeting, stated there are five important good farm practices that can be recommended to every farmer. They are: (1) Use agricultural limestone; (2) use phosphate; (3) use potash; (4) seed alfalfa with grass and (5) seed grasses, including bluegrass, orchard grass, red top, timothy and fescue.

Mr. Johnstone stated alfalfa should always be seeded with grass first because alfalfa runs 3 percent higher in protein when grown ith grass; second, takes more nitrogren from the air; third, it builds up the soil when grown in combination with grass but causes erosion when seeded alone. He stated alfalfa stands for their greatest value, to the land, should not last longer than about three years and should be so seeded that the field at the end of this period should be mostly grass. Orchard grass is subject to a certain amount of winter killing unless sown early. All other grasses should be sown so as to get established before winter.

The committeemen hope to see 100 percent of soil building allowance earned on every farm this year. They plan to visit those farmers where indications show a large portion of the allowance will not be earned to see if assistance can be rendered.

MELON DAYS

How many times have Boone County folks gone to the ice-box and not been able to get anything in or out, because all of the space was occupied by a large and bulky melon? To solve this situation an experimental station has developed an undersized watermelon which will fit compactly inside a refrigerator and give room for other foods. And while we are dealing with melons, four of the southeastern states have agreed to market and ship only the best of their melon crop. It comes under the test of U. S. No. 1 which is really Grade A. There will be less risk in buying melons and is a mighty good move on the part of the southern producer, and a relief to the melon "thumper". Of course all of this talk doesn't mean much if you are fortunate enough to be able to go out and pick your melon off of the vine, regardless of it's being Grade A. Or if you have a cool spring or summer-house in which to store it.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

When we read of the children who were 'stricking' in the schools and picketing the school-houses, we recalled how we used to think of walking out too-and didn't, because in our day they didn't call an act like this "stricking", it was deemed plain cussedness. Today with the fever of stricking and picketing dying down somewhat, to everyone's satisfaction, we learn there are still some folks who figure it is a good way to get what they want. For instance, the item about the two baseballs that found their way into a man's garden. He refused to return them to the boys who lost them and they then pelcted his house with this sign, "This man is unfair to the kids of this neighborhood." The situation was unpleasent and the matter was taken up with the juvenile officer. The angered man lost the two balls, and the irate youths lost their sign, and so far the matter has been a draw for both sides. It just goes to show, you can figure a craze has died down, like cross-word puzzles, and up it pops again.

LOVE TRIUMPHS

After viewing the effect of the step-mother on the frightened children who saw the film, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs", a school teacher was disturbed enough to rewrite the story. With childish minds influenced by the story, she recided to put into her version a court jester who though his comedy wins the regard of the cruel queen and shows her the wrong in hating Snow White. The funney little dwarfs remain unchanged, because they could not be improved upon. The queen becomes a changed character and through her affection for the princess unites Snow White with her prince and all "live happily ever after". At least a child will like this version better for it is a happy thought and a cheerful view rather than the sight of a frightening horrifying witch that they carry away in their minds. It may not be true to life, this sweeter version, but it is love, and after all if life could leave us the happier thought we would all prefer it. And our choice would be the reformed and loving step-mother theme rather than the avenging, despised and ugly witch.

MORE MILK

With modern education advanced to the stage where greater emphasis is laid on mental efficiency with numerous tests to classify the student into his or her intelligence category, we are apt to lose sight of the fact that the body is as necessary in the operation of learning, as the mind. Mayor LaGuardia of New York, said to a meeting of school teachers in his city, "Before you give a child the Binet test (intelligence rating) be sure to give him the Borden and Sheffield test. I mean, find out if he gets enough milk—just plain cow's milk". We know that a growing child needs plenty of the right kind of food, and today most of us are aware of the various vitamins contained in foods, especially in milk. Without proper feeding there has been many a child who has seemed incapable of learning, but often this same dull youngster can be made alert mentally by seeing that he gets two or three glasses of fresh milk every day. It is far easier to govern this on a farm and in rural districts where folks are more apt to be milk-conscious. Some city schools, at a small cost to each pupil, serve milk and graham crackers during the regular school session. This is in kindergarten and the early grades. Such procedure may seem foolish and unneccessary to some citizens, but consider the various nations who serve extra meals each day to renew the energy of their workers. They say a mind does not tire, that it is only the body, but we must keep the body strong to have the desire to use the mind.

FOR SUNBURN

In cases of bad sunburn, see a physician. It may result in something serious, otherwise. You may look well tanned but scarcely attractive when you look like raw beefsteak. It doesn't take as long to get a tan as it does to get rid of a serious sunburn. If your burn is slight, a boric acid ointment is always good. Pure olive oil will help, while some people use equal parts of linseed oil and lime water. Be sensible and before exposing yourself to sun and wind burn, buy one of the many skin lotions that are on the market, and use it!

PICKED UP AROUND TOWN

"From what we hear, there are always folks who think this country could be happier by taking the "busy" out of business.

From recent reading of Chinese dispatches, it seems that the average Japanese bombers figures that a hospital, plus five or six children is a farily good day's work.

Something nice to think about on a hot summer day, is that the lowest temperature at the north pole is 60 degrees below zero.

There's many a local lad who can say he is not surprised when you tell him that the consumption of cod liver oil in the United States has tripled in the last ten years.

We have always wondered what caused those "wet" patches you see ahead of you, in the summertime on a dry road. We found out these patches are merely mirages as seen in the dessert, and are caused when a thin layer of heated air comes in contact with the road surface, and what is seen, is an an image of the distant sky.

A woman should pick her company, but to our way of thinking, that doesn't mean she should pick her company to pieces.

They say the brain was given man so he could think. But it seems today that our pocketbooks now form most of our opinions.

How about the bill sent to a state for expenses in dry-cleaning and repairing of damage done by moths, in the state-owned property, occupied by a state employee? The wife asserts the moths were the property of the commonwealth.

Another way of rating summer resorts, is according to the number of women to each man who patronize them.

Lesson for September 4

SAMUEL: SPIRITUAL REVIVAL

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 7:3-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only. I Samuel 7:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Samuel Was Old
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Samuel Grew Old
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Putting God First.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Price Spiritual Revival?

"Revivals are costly. The spiritual awakening which our country so much needs must begin with a spiritual deepening which the church so much needs. There is a price to be paid . . . Strange gods must be put away, gods of worldly pleasure, worldly ambition, love of ease and self-gratification. It is the unwillingness to pay the price that keeps us from the richness and power of the full spiritual life" (Prof. L. M. Lowell).

Israel had come to the place where the people recognized that they were on the brink of national disaster. They knew they had come to the end of the trail, and were ready to do something about it.

I. Return Unto the Lord (v 3.).

Samuel appears in his first public ministry to call on his people to return to the Lord. Back of that public act is the history of a godly life and devoted service to the Lord and to His nation. Such a man can consistently urge others to turn to God.

The response of the people was wholehearted. They were thoroughly sick of their sin and separation from the favor of God. The earnest of their sincerity was their obedience to the admonition of Samuel that they turn from idolatry.

II. Put Away False Gods (vv. 3, 4).

Israel had learned from their heathen neighbors to worship their false gods. These they must put away if God was to be able to bless them. The same prerequisite to spiritual revival exists today. But some may say, we do not worship heathen gods. Perhaps not, and yet one is astonished at the close similarity between the ritual and worship of some secret cults and orders and the ancient religions of heathendom.

The fact is that we have set up many new gods—money, fashion, social position, and what not. The command needs to go out again through God's messengers, "Put away the foreign gods."

III. Gather Together and Pray (vv. 5, 6).

Spiritual life thrives on the gathering together of God's people. The crisis in Israel was met by a great convocation of the people. We need to revive the great soul-stirring religious gatherings of a generation ago.

"I will pray," said Samuel. He was a great intercessor. (See I Sam. 15:11; Ps. 99:6; Jer. 15:1.) Revival never comes without a history of faithful intercession on the part of those whose hearts are really burdened. Ask yourself, How much have I really prayed for a revival in my church, my community, and my nation? If I should begin to pray in earnest, would not God hear me and answer?

IV. God Will Save Us (v. 8).

"Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened that it cannot save, neither his ear heavy that it cannot hear" (Isa. 59:1). "Thus saith the Lord . . . have I no power to deliver?" (Isa. 50:1, 2). God saved Israel and delivered them out of the hands of their enemies. The Philistines, seeing them gathered together to pray, assumed that they were preparing to fight and attacked. In the previous battle at that very spot (I Sam. 4:1-10) Israel had fought with the weapons of men and been disgracefully defeated. Now they fought with the weapon of prayer and faith in God, and great was the victory.

America is valiantly battling against the social and economic problems of these distressing days, but one fears that all too often the weapons are those of the arm of flesh which will fail us. Let us look up instead of to one another. "God will save us" (v. 8).

V. Ebenezer (v. 12).

Our forefathers, familiar with the truth of Scripture, used biblical words in naming their children. The present generation all too often know the names simply as the strange signatures on old letters. The word "Ebenezer" might well merit a bit of a revival itself. Here Israel had met a disastrous defeat. They were broken by it and had become an almost hopeless people. Now God had given them victory in the very same spot and they raised a stone of remembrance of God's help. The word "Ebenezer" means "stone of help," but also carries with it the meaning of Samuel's word, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us" (v. 12).

There is an inspiring word of hope here for every troubled soul. You may, like Israel, have fallen into sin. Your life may be defeated. You may be utterly discouraged. Return to the Lord, put away sin, gather with God's people, pray, and God will give you victory, even at the very point of former defeat.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Battle of Broadway"
Sun. and Mon.—"Cocoanut Grove"
Wed. and Thurs.—"Vicious Lady"

Before his movie days, Fred MacMurray was a band leader. And as a band leader, his highest ambition was to play an engagement in the famous Cocoanut Grove of the Hotel Ambassador, Hollywood. Well he's in "Cocoanut Grove" at last—but it's a picture, named after the night spot!

In the new film which will be shown at the Gayety Sunday and Monday, MacMurray plays a part that is an almost exact prototype of his own life. He is a swinghappy young band-leader, barnstorming across the country, never more than two leaps ahead of the sheriff, and trying desperately to get the much sought after audition at the Grove. Supported romantically by Harriet Hilliard, wife of orchestra leader Ozzie Nelson off the screen, the duo head a long cast of star names that include Ben Blue, the Yacht Club Boys, Rufe Davis, Dorothy Howe and Harry Owens, the songster who wrote last year's "Sweet Leilani," and who has composed two new top song hits for the picture.

FIRST SIGN OF FOOT TROUBLE

By N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist
People's Foot Comfort
Covington

Usually the first sign of foot trouble is the running over of the heels of shoes.

In a strong healthy human foot the 26 bones are held together to form a substantial support for the weight of the body and they are held together in place by strong ligaments, tendons, and muscles. These bones are so arranged that they form four separate and natural arches.

The heel bone and ankle bone lean out of position more or less in almost every kind of foot trouble. The cause is that ligaments, muscles and tendons which hold the heel bone and ankle bone in place, become weakened, and are not strong enough to hold those bones in their normal position.

Backache, headache, and many body ills may be traced to feet. Even symptoms like those of rheumatism and arthritis now are now being banished with proper shoes. Also nervous indigestion, sleepless nights, etc., are sometimes traceable to foot troubles. If you suffer with foot ill of any kind, come for a free analysis of your feet. No obligation at all. We'll be glad to help you and you'll walk in Health with Happy Feet.

ESTABLISHED 1875

VOLUME 63 — BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY — THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1938 — NUMBER 16

70 FARMERS INSURE SHEEP

THREE THOUSAND TWENTY-NINE SHEEP ARE LISTED—IS 20 PERCENT OF ADULT SHEEP IN COUNTY.

Seventy Boone county farmers have insured 3029 sheep against losses from dogs during the 1938-39 year which began operation September 1st, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. This number represents more than twenty percent of the adult sheep in the county. The sheep signed up are expected to increase materially during the next few weeks.

The first meeting of the board of directors in the new year was held at Burlington courthouse, Saturday afternoon. Sheepmen present were enthusiastic over the association plan and reported a large number of growers were interested in the program. The membership in the association is expected to increase rapidly during the next few weeks.

H. E. White, president of the association and John W. Conley, Secretary-Treasurer pointed out to those present that the constitution and by-laws provide for no reduction in rates for late signers. The association year begins September 1st and ends August 31st. Lambs are insured free until January 1. New applicants for membership who have recently suffered losses from dogs can not be insured until 60 days after such losses. Because of this provision and the provision that twelve month's protection beginning September 1st, costs no more than one month's protection beginning next August 1st, growers wishing protection should sign up immediately.

Through error, the original sign-up campaign committee, instead of the 1938-39 year officers and directors were mentioned in a news article and letter from the county office last week. The officers and directors should be corrected to read as follows:

Officers: President, H. E. White, Burlington; vice president, J. G. Pennington, Walton; secretary-treasurer, John W. Conley, Beaver.

Directors: Burlington-Florence, L. H. Congleton; Hebron-Constance, C. S. Riddell; Hamilton-Carlton, Frank Allen; Union-Beaver, Russell Sparks; Petersburg-Grant, Charles White; Walton-Verona, Walter Johnson.

Membership agreements may be secured from one of the officers or directors of the association or from the county agent's office in Burlington.

FARMERS WILL LOSE $24,480.00

UNDER A. C. P. PROGRAM UNLESS THEY CARRY OUT ADDITIONAL SOIL BUILDING PRACTICES BEFORE OCTOBER 31ST.

Boone county farmers will lose $24,480.00 under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program unless they carry out additional soil building practices between now and October 31st, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. October 31st is the last date for securing credit for soil building practices under the program.

The above figures are averaged from field supervisors reports on more than 500 of the 1400 farms under the program listed in the county. Approximately thirty days will be required before complete reports can be secured. Reports of earnings by communities is as follows:

Petersburg-Grant 46.8% earned.
Hebron-Constance 61.3% earned.
Burlington-Florence 57.0% earned.
Union-Beaver 62.0% earned.
Hamilton-Carlton 56.8% earned.
Walton-Verona 72.2% earned.

The use of phosphate, ground limestone, seeding of blue grass, orchard grass, timothy, red top, unhulled sweet clover and winter vetch are probably the most profitable practices that can be carried out between now and October 31st, to earn 100% of the allowance set up for the individual farm. The use of ACP phosphate will probably be the most profitable practice to be carried out, the use of agricultural limestone second and seedings third. Because all cultivated land should be seeded to a winter cover crop and if it is not to be plowed next year grass should be sown this fall. All the above practices become important.

Every farmer is urged to support his county in the campaign to earn 100% of the allowance. Do your part—earn 100 percent of the allowance for your farm. Credit for carrying out soil building practices can be secured through the county office for those farmers who can not secure it otherwise.

Petition Is Filed Against Erlanger

A petition asking judgment for $309.04, allegedly due as an unpaid bill, has been filed against the town of Erlanger by Joseph A. Kuchle and Arnold Brinker, doing business as the Joseph Kuchle Garage Co., Erlanger.

The petition, filed for the plaintiffs by former city attorney of Erlanger, Russell N. Victor, charges that oil, gasoline and other automobile service was rendered to the city in 1937. Part of the bill was paid, but the amount allegedly still due is now being sought.

Naming the five town trustees, Chairman Frank Edwards, John Steffen, Ralph Cook, Carl Weber and Fred Voth, the petition was filed in Kenton Circuit Court.

Attorney for the plaintiff, Mr. Victor, was city attorney at the time the bill was allegedly incurred.

Dr. Parsley To Hold Clinic

In the 18 months use of Radionics I find it has been very successful. No doubt the greatest discovery since X-ray. Its demand is increasing and is quite a topic in magazine and newspapers.

This clinic is being conducted due to the fact that I don't have the time required to make the examinations since radionics has become so well known and so popular.

This instrument is calibrated to pick up various vibrations in the body, both normal and abnormal. These vibrations are measured and located, informing the doctor the exact physical condition of a person. The method of treatment required can be advised through the result of the findings from an examination.

The larger hospitals are installing Radionics as well as all professions of the healing arts.

Methodist To Hold Meeting At Dry Ridge

Bone No. 1 of the Southern Methodist churches will meet on Friday, Sept. 9th at the Methodist church at Dry Ridge, 10 o'clock (slow time). Each society of the churches are expected to have a short history.

Mrs. E. L. Porter, of Georgetown and Mrs. McLean, Supt. of Young People, from Lexington will attend the meeting. Mrs. Logan Blaine, District Secretary will also be present.

Visalia, New Columbus, Florence, Corinth, and Walton will present the different topics.

Those who attend are requested to bring a box lunch.

Burlington Homemakers

The Burlington Homemakers met at the courthouse on Sept. 1, with 23 present. The main business of the day was installing of the new officers.

The lesson on style was very ably given by the style leader. Our food leader gave a very interesting talk on their trip to Kahn Bros. Packing Plant and Kroger Grocery and Baking Co.

My! My Look Whats Coming

Get out your old watches with chains to fasten on your bosom, 18th and 19th century chatelaines, large jeweled crosses, brooches and cameos. According to Miss Iris S. Davenport, style specialist for the Kentucky College of Agriculture, these things have become fashionable again for women and will be much in evidence this fall and winter. Styles in such accessories are not merely going back the proverbial seven years, but more nearly seven generations.

BELLEVIEW UNDEFEATED

WON 3, LOST NONE IN ELIMINATION—WARDS GROCERY TO PLAY AT BELLEVIEW SUNDAY.

In a game Sunday at Belleview park the local boys defeated Chisel Bridge 10 to 8. It was anybody's game until the ninth, when the Belleview boys came through with two doubles and two singles, scoring two runs.

"Hoots" Ryle was burning them through for the winners with "Rags" Ryle on the receiving end.

Monday, Sept. 5th, Belleview journeyed to Verona and played Verona a non-league game, and those who viewed this game claim it to be one of the best games of the season.

Shinkle was on the hill for Verona and was nicked for 13 hits, but kept them so well scattered that only 4 runs were earned off his delivery.

Jimmie Chapman, although he is not the regular catcher handled Shinkle's benders like a veteran.

For Belleview, Bill Rogers, who saw service on the mound in many a hot battle in Boone county, at a time when most of the Boone county players of today were still wearing dresses was on the mound for the winners, and not until the eighth inning was Verona able to get a hit. With the score 3 to 0 in favor of Belleview, Verona tied the count in last of the eighth, by bunching 3 hits, with one error mixed in between.

During the first of the ninth Belleview scored one run to go in front 4 to 3. Verona failed to score in last of ninth, thus ending the game.

$40.00 Found In Toe Of Shoe Returned To Sample Shoe Store

We have, of course, heard much about cornucopia, the horn of plenty, but had never heard of a "shoe of plenty" until last Tuesday.

A lady purchased a pair of shoes at the Quality Sample Shoe Shop, 627 Madison Ave., Covington, and after wearing them a few weeks, decided to take one of the shoes back to the store for a little easement. She left the shoe with a clerk and departed. As usual in such cases, the clerk thrust his left hand into the shoe to hold it while he wrote the lady's name on the bottom of the shoe. Whereupon he pulled out $40 in paper money.

When the lady called for the shoe she was given the money. The lady recalled that she had placed the money in the shoe for "safe keeping." The moral of this incident might be: "It pays always to trade at an honest store."

387 Farmers Use Phosphate In Local Agricultural Program

Three hundred eighty-seven farmers have ordered and received this year 16 carloads containing 377.5 tons of 47 percent TVA phosphate for use on grass and legume crops, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. This is not only the largest amount of phosphate ever used in Boone County but prospects are several more car loads will be used before the closing date, the last of this month.

The above phosphate was supplied farmers under the Agricultural Conservation Program for use on grass and legume crops. When used according to agreement the actual cost of the phosphate to the farmer for the unearned soil building allowance is $2.00 per ton plus freight and handling charge of approximately $5.78 per ton. The cost of phosphate is charged against the farmer's payment at the rate of $32.00 per ton but $30.00 is paid for the use of 47 percent phosphate on soil conserving crops. Farmers who for the past three years have used phosphate to secure better stands of grass and legume crops report splendid results secured. The phosphate, of equal analysis purchased from a dealer, would cost the farmer more than $50 per ton.

The past week three car loads, containing 70.15 tons were delivered 82 farmers at Walton and Erlanger stations. Two additional car load orders for 48.15 tons for 63 farmers were forwarded the first of this week to the state office for shipment. Approximately three weeks are required between date of ordering and date of delivery.

The closing date for receiving phosphate orders is expected in the very near future. Those who have not already placed orders should do so immediately. Orders may be filed with community ACP committeemen or the county office in Burlington. It is questionable whether orders received after next week can be filed. Order now—don't delay.

140 Homemakers Make Tour Of Improved Homes

Members of eleven Boone county homemakers clubs attended the Home Improvement tour last week. One hundred and forty homemakers and visitors inspected three homes and the Florence Christian church on the tour.

The program started at the home of Mrs. Bertha Conrad of the Hebron club. The crowd inspected her home in groups of fifteen. Mrs. Conrad had made many improvements in her home following suggestions made by the home improvement leaders. Mrs. Conrad reported that the new paper in the living and dining room had been purchased with money she had made in selling homemade jelly. The home of Mrs. Conrad illustrated what can be done with practical ideas but little money.

The second stop was the Florence Christian church. This church 102 years old, was remodeled last fall. The women of the Christian church proved that modern lighting and heating fixtures can look appropriate in an old building. Every homemaker who visited the church reported that they would like to help remodel their own church.

A lunch, consisting of sandwiches and fruit, was spread on the long tables at the Wildwood Tourist Camp.

The first stop after lunch was the home of Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker of Florence. The Blankenbeker home was a good example of how the rearrangement of furniture to suit the needs of the family improves the home. Mrs. Blankenbeker has shown how old rare pieces of glass and china may be used in a modern home.

The last stop on the tour was the home of Mrs. Jake Cleek. The Cleek home, built in 1890 with all the "gingerbread" trimming of that century, has been remodeled into a modern livable home to suit the needs of the family. Mrs. Cleek made the old parlor into a light colored interesting dining room. Dark halls and pantries were turned into accessible clothes closets. Mr. and Mrs. Cleek were hosts to the homemakers for tea after the home had been inspected.

Arrangements for the tour were made by the following committee: Mrs. Sam Sleet, Mrs. Alan Gaines, Mrs. Vernon Pope, Mrs. Jake Cleek, Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker, Mrs. Bertha Conrad and Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent.

HONORING LABOR

All over the world nations are struggling to obtain higher standards of living for their people. They are resorting to conquests, boycotts, and experimental forms of government, but in vain they seek to satisfy the common people who make up the backbone and the firmness of their power. But America has its own answer to this problem, a solution which has proven its worth. She and her workmen, aided by scientists and engineers of industry, are raising the living standards of all of us. They are doing it by constantly developing new and better products and then learning to make them inexpensive so that millions of people can afford them. And it is here that all of us have a part, for no matter what the occupation may be, large or small, each is a link in the chain which holds holds up our living standards above the rest of the nations of the world. But how have we all contributed to make these living stands possible? We have done it through the labor of our minds and our hands, and it is this labor that has made this nation progress and build itself up. And so in 1882 the Knights of Labor designated a day to be set aside that has never ceased. Thus is our Labor Day celebrated thruout the country, which inaugurates the stamina and power of our laboring force.

HAY-FEVER SEASON

There is something to be said for the man who was arrested for going through a red light and gave as his excuse—a sneeze. The judge released him, and it is our opinion that His Honor might have been a hay-fever victim and could appreciate anything dealing with a sneeze. This time of year is the worst for hay-fever sufferers, and if you don't think they suffer ask anyone in Boone County who has awaited this period with dread—and nose tissues. One might imagine the early and heavy rains had eased the situation, but they also helped a lot more weeds to thrive to harrass the sniffers. One mid-western paper carries a "hay-fever count" to indicate the amount of pollen in the air, measured every 24 hours according to the contents per cubic yard. There are articles on the market which are aids, and various serums which have proved effective in some cases. There are folks who seek more favorable climates and others who have rooms where the air is filtered. But there still remains the fellow who continues to wheeze and blow. Our sympathy to the hay-fever victim and we wish it was possible to rid the country of ragweed, or whatever it is that causes this condition.

BUY AT HOME

A certain candidate for a political office was defeated on the grounds that most of the clothing worn by his family and most of the implements used on his farm came from mail-order houses. The merchants in his town staged a campaign against him due to his catalogue buying, and with them working against him the voters failed to give him their support. The merchants must co-operate with one another in their stand to hold their home town trade. They must show the local buyer they are interested in him. They must advertise to tel lhim so. They will find the average home-town man would rather deal with his friends and neighbors and they too will work on the principle of sticking by the man wh owill stick by him. Business that should stay in town will remain here, for none of us are quite sure when we may need the other fellow's vote.

—o—

WORDS OF PRAISE

As we sit down to the table on a winter day and enjoy the pickles and pears, cherries, jams and jellies that have been preserved for us during the hot summer months by the many housewives, how many of us are apt to recall the day she stood over the hot stove in a stuffy kitchen getting these foods "put up"? A summer job for winter pleasure, that usually goes on, year after year, with not much praise being handed out to the woman who is looking after our future appetites. While some of us have sought the cool spots, the shade and the breeze, we could get a man-sized whiff of tomato catsup and bread and butter pickles, and figured how good this would taste later on. Wonder how many of us consider the drops of perspiration that accompany the drops of paraffin, and the steam that goes with the sauce and the syrup. Give a hand to the woman who cooked while we cooled, and if seasoning is important to their canning so is appreciation to their endeavors.

—o—

WEIGHTY QUESTIONS

Every time a group of women gather there seems to arise the discussion of weights and measurements. They can start out with an election of officers but they usually wind up with diets and doing-without. Seems that more space in reading matter is given over to ways of reducing than to any other subject, excluding politics and presidents. And there is many a man who wishes his women folk had never heard the word diet, that is if he has to suffer along with them on the prescribed meal. Hungary is famous as one of the most hospitable countries in the entire world. They even went so far, in the old days, to weigh a guest when he arrived for a visit, and again when he departed in order to see if he had gained weight on their hospitality. Today it might be a most embarrassing moment for a hostess as it might reflect on her cooking, but more likely, on her calories. Some local wit will say, "Why need it be Hungary"

—o—

A TRAFFIC PROBLEM

There are few of us who drive along the roads and highways that do not give a wide berth to the bicycle rider. As we ride back of him or try to pass him, as he pedals along, we are likely to remark, "You never know what they are going to do." This statement is true and we are wise to be unusually careful as we encounter the bicycler. They dart in and out, going here and there, with scarcely a wave or sign as to their traffic intentions. It is with good cause that we consider them a new road problem. Folks in Boone County are not the only ones affected for the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety is studying the situation seriously. There are more riders in America than ever before, and most of them are boys and girls. Being so young the law doesn't act as strictly with them as with automobile drivers. Police are not apt to arrest a youngster for riding thru a red light or making a left turn without a signal. This may sound like an unfair complaint to young readers, but why not consider this type of traffic the same as you do the motor car? Especially when bicycles cause many accidents and often injure pedestrians. There is always a certain danger to the cyclist, as well. Since judges are reluctant to impose fines on these young riders, someone has made the suggestion that the child's father be brought into court and given a warning with regard to the hazards of this new traffic problem.

One spring problem the old-time girl worried with that the modern one doesn't know anything about is when it's time to take off the heavy ones.

Lesson for September 11

SAUL: MORAL FAILURE

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 10:21-25; 15: 20-23; 31:3-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—To obey is better than sacrifice. I Samuel 15:22.

Moral failure is the direct result of disobedience to God. This follows from the fact that the moral order established in the universe was established by God. He, then, is the One who knows the right way. "God is always right, and when we are against God, we are always wrong. To walk a road leading away from God is to travel straight to ruin, and this is what Saul did" (Wilbur M. Smith).

The story of Saul's choice as king, his personal qualifications for leadership and his ultimate disgrace and death, is one that should give pause to every young man or woman who has been afflicted with present-day ideas that brilliance of mind, quickness of wit, and apparent worldly success, apart from obedient submission to God, are satisfactory ends in themselves. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Prov. 16:25).

I. "There Is None Like Him" (10: 21-25).

Saul was chosen of God to be Israel's first king. God Himself had been their king, but they in their willful unbelief wanted to be like neighboring nations. And the choice of both God and the people fell on Saul, for there was "none like him among all the people."

Never has a man been privileged to enter more auspiciously upon high office. Physically he was well-equipped, head and shoulders above the people (10:23). Mentally he was fitted for leadership. He was humble (9:21). He was spiritually right (10:6-9). He had a tolerant and kindly spirit (11:13). He was a successful military leader (ch. 11).

For two years all went well, but then came the crisis which proved that all was not as it should be, when Saul presumptuously took the place of Samuel as priest and made an offering (13:9-13). This was later followed by his disobedience in sparing Agag.

II. "To Obey Is Better Than Sacrifice" (15:20-23).

God had commanded that there must be utter destruction of the Amalekites and their possessions—something like the burning of a disease-infested house—a wiping out of a king and people who were condemned of God. We may not fully understand this act of God, but if we know Him we will not doubt that it was in accordance with His infinite wisdom and love.

Saul chose to disobey, later contending that it was done because of the people, that sheep and oxen had been spared for a sacrifice to the Lord. Samuel cuts through his hypocrisy and declares that God wants obedience rather than sacrifice. This is a lesson that many who profess to follow the Lord have not learned.

"All the sacrifices and ceremonies of religion are to aid and promote obedience, not to be a substitute for it. Disobedience can never be made a virtue, even though attended by thousands of sacrifices" (Stanley). The church or the individual who denies or disregards the teaching of God's Word and attempts to make up for it by sacrifices and ceremonies declares to the world that there has been a departure from true faith in God. Obedience is a virtue all too rare.

III. "The Battle Went Sore Against Saul" (31:3-6).

This quotation from verse 3 relates to a particular battle, but it may well be applied to the entire battle of Saul's life. Having once begun the downward path of presumption and disobedience, the descent became rapid.

The man to whom God had given a new heart and upon whom He had poured out His Spirit fell to such a low state that we find him in I Samuel 28 consulting a witch, a spiritistic medium, seeking opportunity to speak with Samuel, who had already gone to his reward.

Spiritism is an evil current in our day, and therefore it may be well to point out that while mediums do seem to have the power to simulate the dead, they bring this about through familiar spirits (I Sam. 28: 7), that is through communication with evil spirits. The dead do not actually return, but they are represented by demonic agents. When the witch of Endor called on her familiar spirit, God intervened and actually brought Samuel from the dead to the great surprise of the witch. No Christian should ever have anything to do with Spiritism. If he does he indicates that his spiritual life is at very low ebb and that he is in real soul-danger.

The death of Saul writes a tragic end to a promising life, destroyed not so much by outside influences as by the moral decay within. The wise man said that as a man "thinketh in his heart so is he" (Prov. 23:7). It may not show today or tomorrow, but eventually the heart that is wrong leads to a life that is wrong. "Keep thy heart with all diligence: for out of it are the issues of life" (Prov. 4:23).

CAPITOL COMMENTS

When I asked Attorney General Hubert W. Meredith to be guest columnist this week, to tell of his life and duties in office, he said, "I am just a one gallus country boy who still loves the country."

He was born on a farm in north part of Warren County, October 10th, 1880. Worked on the farm and attended country schools and schools in Bowling Green and is still a farmer.

He was admitted to the bar in May, 1904, taught in country schools when the school per capita was under three dollars, Commenced practicing law in Paintsville, Kentucky, after admission to the bar and removed from there to Greenville in August 1905 where he has been engaged in the general practice of law, served as Commonwealth's Attorney of the Seventh Judicial District from 1922 to 1928, appointed to the office of Attorney General by Governor A. B. Chandler, March 12, 1937; ran for election to fill out the unexpired term and was nominated and elected. His Majority in the primary was 77,669, his total vote in the primary of last year was 227,414, his majority over his Republican opponent in the November election last year exceeded a hundred and twenty thousand, and was the largest majority ever given a candidate for state office in Kentucky.

Member of the Christian Church since twelve years of age, holding membership at Greenville, Kentucky.

He has always favored the pay as you go plan in the operation of Federal, State, County and local governments insofar as possible. Actively opposed the proposed seventy-five million bond issue and made hunderds of speeches against it.

He has worked and fought for rigid economy in the conduct of public business and while a good deal has been accomplished in Kentucky along these lines, feels that there is yet a lot to be done and that the expenses of the State government may yet be greatly reduced by amendments to and perfection of the Reorganization act and elimination of unnecessary jobs and expenses. He believes that upon payment of the State debt and the practice of rigid economy the load of the overburdened tax payer can be materially reduced and he proposed to devote his efforts to the accomplishment of this purpose.

Duties of the Attorney General by General Hubert Meridith

Section 112-1 of the Kentucky Statues outlines the general duties of the Attorney General in the following language:

"The Attorney General shall be the chief law officer of the Commonwealth, and all its departments. The Attorney General shall appear for the Commonwealth in the trial and argument, civil and criminal, in the Kentucky Court of Appeals whenever the Commonwealth is directly or indirectly intrested; he shall also appear in behalf of the Commonwealth in any Court or tribunal in or out of this state in any case or proceeding in which the Commonwealth is a party in interest, except where it is made the duty of the Commonwealth's Attorney or the County Attorney to represent the Commonwealth. He shall institute all actions and proceedings necessary to cause the payment of all judgments and demands of the Commonwealth, payable at the State treasury, not discharged at the proper time. He shall, with the assistance of the Auditor of Public Accounts, investigate the condition of all unsatisfied claims demands, accounts and judgements in favor or the Commonwealth, and shall take all necessary steps, by motion, action or otherwise, to collect or cause to be collected such claims, demands, accounts and judgements, and pay into State Treasury."

Section 112-2 imposes further duties upon the Attorney General as follows:

"The Attorney General shall, upon the written request of any executive or ministerial officer of this commonwealth give such officer his written opinion touching any of the duties of such officer, and when requested by an executive or State officer, prepare proper drafts of all instruments of writing which may be required for public use."

The Attorney General is allowed six assistants, and, by recent enactment, three additional assistants, on to be assigned to the Department of Highways, one to the Public Service Commission and one to the Board of Alcoholic Control. He is allowed a comparatively small lump sum for stenographic and clerical assistance with which he can employ no more than six clerks and stenographers.

With the largely increased number of departments and divisions the work of the office of the Attorney General has been multiplied at least four fold during the last six to ten years. The large number of suits involving questions of taxation and the handling of the liquor problem together with the number of suits which are brought all over the state under authority of legislative enabling acts plus numerous federal court actions and the handling of railroad rate cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission and the briefing of all criminal cases which are appealed to the Court of Appeals greatly overwork our small force. In addition to all of this litigation and constant requests of heads of the departments of the state Government for advise we receive numerous requests every day from county, city and local officials for opinions and advice. With the increased work of the office it is next to impossible for the Attorney General and his small number of assistants to adequately and properly discharge all of these duties, although many of us frequently work until late at night, on holidays and Sundays.

Boone Homemakers Represented At Clothing Meeting

Seventeen homemakers represented Boone County in Covington at the Fall Style Trends district meeting last week. Clothing leaders from Boone County met with leaders of Campbell county for an all-day session at the John R. Coppin store in Covington.

Miss Iris Davenport, clothing specialist, University of Kentucky, conducted the class. Arrangements for the day's program were made by Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent, Boone County.

Miss Davenport outlined the general style trends of dresses, coats, accessories and millinery. She illustrated the leading trends by merchandise from Coppin's.

The lesson given at Covington will be given by the leaders at local meetings during September.

A TRIBUTE

To the late Rev. Charles D. Carter, pastor of the Latonia Church of Christ.

We the people staunch and true,
Give thanks for noble friends like you;
A band of pilgrims seeking truth,
While you the pastor, gave us proof
That man can be redeemed.

It was not you—your looks—or kind,
But Christ, the maker, the mastermind,
Who blest you with the power of speech
To lift men up within the reach
Of Heaven's portals.

God grant in the pattern of your life
Will fashion ours that daily strife
And sordidness, be laid aside,
As eights that doth beset and hide
The course that we must run.

A saintly leader, a friendly man
Who felt the power of God's great plan,
So shall we, struggling upward climb
In Christ-like fashion, toward realms sublime,
To meet our just reward.

Homemakers Visit Packing Plant

Foods leaders of the Boone County Homemakers inspected two food centers in Cincinnati last week. Twenty-four leaders and the county officers of the Homemakers' clubs visited Kahn Bros. Packing Plant, Krogers and WLW broadcasting studios.

They were interested in seeing methods of retail slaughtering and preparing cattle for consumption at the packing plant. The next stop was the Union Terminal where the Homemakers had lunch. Krogers was the first visit in the afternoon. The baking, candy and coffee roasting departments were shown to the women. The last stop was at the WLW broadcasting station to see the broadcast of "Charley's Singing School."

The following were on the tour: Mrs. Hubert White, Mrs. Lelie Kite, and Mrs. Lou Pope, Burlington; Mrs. George Kottmyer, Mrs. James Dye, Constance; Mrs. Charles Corbin and Mrs. Lewis Sullivan, Florence; Mrs. Lillard Scott and Miss Marion Rogers, Grant; Mrs. Wm. Wilson and Mrs. Christena Kirtley, Hamilton; Mrs. D. M. Pope, and Mrs. B. F. Hossman, Hebron; Mrs. Walter Pennington, Mrs. Harry Moore and Mrs. Sam Sleet, New Haven; Mrs. Lawrence Chambers and Miss Gladys Klopp, Petersburg; Mrs. Ray Beacom and Mrs. Oscar Fugate, Taylorsport; Mrs. Lorena Myers and Mrs. Walter Renaker, Verona; Mrs. R. Hughes Mrs. Leo Flynn and Mrs. Allan Gaines, Walton; and Mrs. Anna Engle and Mrs. Burnam Roberts, Bullittsville. Mrs. Pearl Pearl Bullittsville. Mrs. Pearl Haak, foods specialist, University of Kentucky and Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent, accompanied the leaders on the trip.

Man is an animal, all right. Ever notice that he growls like a bear when dinner isn't ready and then purrs like a cat after he has it?

Another trouble with the soft answer is that while it may turn away wrath it won't turn away a hard-luck story.

Nothing is more annoying than to have to sit close to a fellow who carries a $3 cough to a 10-cent picture show.

FOOT TEST

By N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist
at People's Foot Comfort, 9th and Madison, Covington

Now, friends, I am going to ask you to do something which I think will give you the answer to the trouble you are having with your feet.

No, you must do just as I say, so you will understand what is meant when I say . . . Most all weak feet roll inward. Now friends take off both shoes right now. Please stand up, both feet side by side about six to eight inches apart with the same amount of weight on each foot. Now, this is important! Relax all muscles in your feet and legs. About 7 out of 10 of you will find that your feet roll inward. In other words, your feet go down on the inside, some of them all the way down to the floor. You probably have one of the four stages of weak feet . . . first degree, about ¼ of the way down; second degree ½ of the way down; third degree, ¾ of the way down; and 4th degree, all the way down or what is commonly known as flat foot.

But, here's the important thing for you to remember, two important things in fact; when your feet roll inward and go down, you are shutting off the nerve and blood supply going into the bottom of your feet. The result is poor circulation which often lets chemical deposits or waste matter form at the joints of your feet and lower limbs.

Now, the second important thing is this, weak, inrolling feet also cramp nerves, then through nerve relaxes, some weaker part of the body is usually affected. Remember, when you cramp the nerves in your feet, you cause reflexes to be sent to some other part of the body that is more sensitive and has less resistance. Then old mother nature comes right back at you with bach aches headaches or something worse.

HOGS FURNISH 8½ PERCENT OF FARM CASH IN KENTUCKY

Although classed as a major farm enterprise in only a few counties of the State, hogs still account for 8½ percent of the total cash income of farmers in Kentucky, according to a new bulletin of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Hogs furnish 19 percent of the total income from livestock.

The cash income from hogs, the bulletin points out, does not show the full importance of hog raising in the state, since a large proportion of the hogs are consumed on the farms. During the 10-year period, 1926 to 1936, the gross income from hogs in Kentucky averaged $20,954,000, while the cash income average only $11,038,000.

In 1870 Kentucky was one of the leading hog-producing states, raising more than 7 percent of all hogs produced in the United States. Now it raises only about 2 percent of the total production. Commercial production is confined largely to the corn growing counties of Henderson, Daviess, Union, Webster and McLean, the counties along the Mississippi river, and to Barren, Warren, Simpson and a few other counties.

In much of the state insufficient corn is grown to make commercial hog raising profitable. A considerable number of feeder pigs are produced in the Bluegrass region.

The bulletin, which reports a study made by C. D. Phillips of the department of markets and rural finance, deals with the regional development of hog production in Kentucky.

EASTERN KENTUCKY FAIR SEPT. 29-30

The 13th annual harvest festival and fair will be held at the Robinson Agricultural Experiment Substation at Quicksand, Breathitt county, Sept. 29-30. Prizes will be offered for field crops, hogs, cattle, poultry, apples, potatoes, garden products and flowers, baked and canned foods, textiles, school displays, handicraft and miscellaneous articles. There also will be a complete 4-H club department.

An address by Dr. Alonzo W. Fortune, of Lexington, ballad singing and horse shoe pitching will be features of the first day's program; with a 4-H club program and parade on the second day. Competition is open to all eastern counties.

2,500 ATTEND 4-H CAMPS IN KENTUCKY

About 2,500 farm boys and girls attended the 14 camps held in Kentucky this summer by the 4-H club department of the State College of Agriculture. Also in attendance were about 200 local club leaders and several thousand visitors.

Instruction was given in swimming, handicraft, music, games and other forms of recreation, health and conservation of soil, game, fish and other natural resources.

The camps were conducted with the assistance of local men and women acting as 4-H club leaders, the State Y. M. C. A., the State Board of Health, the State Forestry service, the State Fish and Game Commission and local educators and ministers.

ANALYZE FACTORS IN GOOD FARMING

How crop yields, returns from livestock, labor costs and gross receipts affect farm profits in brought out in a study which the farm economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture made of business reports of 46 Bluegrass farm for the year of 1937.

Four men who excelled in these lines earned 19 percent on their investment, or an average of $5,406 while other farmers who did not excel in any of the factors earned as little as 4 percent on their investment.

Crop yields, in general, were better on the most profitable farms. Tobacco growing was stressed by the best farmers, and less corn was grown. Tobacco was grown on old son, and as result yields and quality were good.

The best farmers did a better job raising and feeding stock, some of them receiving $166 per $100 worth of feed. In general, the most profitable farms had more sheep. The best medium and large size farms had more feeder cattle.

Receipts per acre were $8 to $10 more on the best farm than on the least profitable ones. Receipts on all 46 farms averaged $30 an acre. Tobacco furnished 51 percent of the income; sheep, 12 percent; cattle and other crops, 11 percent each; hogs, 5 percent, and other sources, 10 percent.

When you drink Beer in a tavern . . . choose your tavern

WHEN YOU restrict your patronage to legal, respectable retail outlets, you not only encourage those better outlets but you've made a start toward driving out the bad spots in your community.

And that is exactly the aim of the great body of honest retailers of beer who, along with the brewers, recognize that Beer's only problem is to remove the anti-social conditions that sometimes surround its sale.

Existing laws can curb these evils. Help us by demanding their strict enforcement! Sales to minors, or after legal hours...or use of a beer license as a screen, for selling illicit liquor or for operating an illicit resort . . . all these are violations of the law and should be stopped. Public opinion, once aroused, can see that such practices are stopped!

GREATER FREE ENTERTAINMENT AT THIS YEAR'S STATE FAIR

The 36th Kentucky State Fair, to be held September 12th to 17th, promises to be one of the most entertaining and interesting ones ever undertaken. According to H. S. Cleveland, Manager of the Fair there will be a bigger and finer midway, free attractions in front of the grandstand day and night including circus acts and racing, free dog show and the widest representation of agricultural, horticultural, poultry and livestock exhibits that the Fair has ever seen.

The managament has this year provided for a free entertainment by the nationally famous WLS Barn Dance Troupe on Sunday afternoon and night, September 11. Some of the features of this program will include such outstanding performers as Henry Burr, nationally known ballad singer, and the Maple City Four. The performance of this group will be augmented by the addition of a number of guest artists from other radio stations, all of whom will be of national reputation and prominence.

Tickets of admittance at the outside gate, will admit the holder free to the barn dance performance either Sunday afternoon or Sunday night.

Johnny J. Jones and his troupe will be on the midway beginning Sunday, September 11, with new riding devices, lighting effects, stages, scenery and other equipment to give you newer and more modern midway shows than ever before.

Some of the many attractions include Captain Von Fendrick known as the Human Cannonball. He is shot from the mouth of a monstrous cannon for a distance of 200 feet. The Temple des Rhumba, with an all new cast of twenty Hawaiian and Cuban Singers, dancers, and musicians. The world's largest horse, the world's premier tight rope walker, Colonel Cliff Gatewood's Rodeo and a dozen more headline features.

A feature attraction has been procured for the nightly Grand Stand performance at the 1938 Kentucky State Fair. Col Cliff Gatewood's Flying X Rodeo, one of the nation's outstanding wild west performances has been secured for this featured entertainment. The cast of this show included more than fifty cowboys and cowgirls, whose skill will be demonstrated in roping and riding more than one hundred head of wild steers, horses and bucking mules.

This show included such specialty acts as Mary Graham, Champion Trick and Bronco Rider, the Roman Standing Jumping Team, whose act consists of jumping over an automobile while standing on horseback and the roping of steers from a speeding automobile.

The management has bone to a great deal of expense to provide this outstanding exhibition for the delight and entertainment of the patrons of the Fair. It will be presented each evening in front of the Grand Stand at 7:30 p. m. Col. Gatewood's exhibition has had a long and popular run at many of the important Fairs of the country.

WINTER STORAGE FOR VEGETABLES.

For the past few weeks special storage structures for the "cool" vegetables have been described; now "warm" vegetables storage will be taken up, discussing special structures, but pointing out that if the principles are observed, simpler structures may be used instead.

Whereas the temperature for the cool crops is not critical needing merely to be above freezing, that of sweetpotatoes, typical warm crops, decidedly is. It should be held digidly to 50 degrees. The same is true of humidity; whereas that in white potato storage may range between wide limits, the atmosphere in a sweetpotato house must be held distinctly dry.

The site of a sweetpotato house should be such that it is not inconvenient to visit it frequently. Preferably, too, it should be in the lee of another building, to serve as windbreak. No excavation is needed, but the housed should stand on posts, about two feet above ground. For permanence, these should be of concrete.

The wells of the house are framed of two-by-four studs, 16 or 24 inches apart. On each face, a thickness of sheeting is nailed and coverd with building paper. The wall is then lined with matched T & G ceiling, and the outer side is covered with weatherboard or with good plank, the joints stripped. The walls should be about 9 feet high, at the eaves.

On the floor joists sheeting should be nailed, then a thickness of paper placed, and the floor finished in matched T & G flooring. The roof should be peaked, the rafters coered with good plank and then with roofing material. To the bottoms of the rafters the ceiling may be attached direct, or a false ceiling may be made. It should consist of sheeting and paper, finished in T & G ceiling.

The entrance door opening should be placed on the leeward side of the house, and fitted with two full doors. The window openings should likewise be fitted with double sash or with sash on the inside, and a wooden shutter on the outside.

A stove should be set up, complete with a flue, or a coal-oil burner may be used, especially in small houses. Also, in the ceiling an opening should be provided through the roof, to receive a vent whose area in square inches is that of the floor in square feet. The vent should be capable of being closed tightly.

In the floor, close to the stove an opening should be made of the same size as the outlet and likewise arranged to close it.

A fairly good thermometer should be hung just inside the door, shoulder high.

In this house, the same principles apply as in the storage rooms discussed in the past weeks. Moist air rises through the ceiling vent, and dry air flows in through the ceiling vent, and dry air flows in through the vent in the floor. Thus, while sweetpotatoes are curing, that is to say, passing off their excess moisture, both vents are kept open and enough fire is kept in the stove to hold the temperature at 85 degrees.

Curing is complete when the potatoes begin to sprout. Then the vents are closed, the fire reduced or let go out to hold the temperature at 50 degrees. But even after they are "cured" sweetpotatoes pass off moisture. When this is noticeable on the ceiling both vents should be opened and kept open until the ceiling is dry again, the stove kept burning to hold the 50 degree temperature.

Next week, will be described a number of improvised storage methods for sweetpotatoes and for the "cool" crops, as well.

3,500 Bob White Quail Purchased

A total of 3,500 Bob White quail has been purchased by the Division of Game and Fish and distributed to the hatcheries in the state, Major Brown, Director of the Division, stated recently.

The Ashland Hatchery received 500 birds; the Gatliff Hatchery at Williamsburg 500 birds; the Jones-Keeney Game Refuge at Dawson Springs 1,000, and the Shelbyville Quail Farm, at Shelbyville, received 1,500.

These birds are native Kentucky Bob White quail and are adults.

Major Brown stated that the birds would be kept until next spring before being released in Kentucky fields. An additional 1,500 birds will be purchased from independent breeders during the next few weeks and sent to the above named hatcheries, Major Brown said. The birds are available now at a reasonable price, and, rather than risk not being able to get them next spring, the Division of Game and Fish prefers to assure a supply for stocking by this method.

The Ashland hatchery will produce several hundred birds of its own raising this year, at the present time having 500 or more birds of various sizes at its brooders and holding pens, with several hundred eggs setting in the electric incubator and the breed stock still laying. The Division now has three state quail hatcheries, which are gradually being expanded as the money is available to buy additional equipment and the operating personnel becomes more acquainted with the problems attending raising Bob White in captivity.

PREDICT MORE CTOCK FOR KENTUCKY FARMS

The prediction that livestock will become of increasing importance in Kentucky was made at a conference of feed manufacturers and dealers at the University of Kentucky Experiment Station. The agricultural conservation program it was pointed out, is bringing a great production of hay and grass, which already is stimulating the demand for livestock.

Feed ingredients, balanced rations, mineral supplements, the relation of feedin gto diseases, feed control laws and other problems in the manufacture and use of feeds were discussed by makers and distributors of feeds from several states.

There is a vast difference between offering a man suggestion and telling him how to run his business.

Observations and Impressions, Wise or Otherwise, During A 2,500 Mile Journey

By Ralph G. Maurer and Elmore Ryle

Not as romantic as Byron's Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, not as individualistic as Robert Louis Stephenson's "Travels on a Donkey" not as descriptive as Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales Travels," and not as interesting as Ernie Pyle's present day travels, but nevertheless a two thousand and five hundred mile trip which carried us into seven states, Dominion of Canada, and the Nation's capitol.

Leaving Cincinnati Monday morning, July 15, we traveled thruout the state of Ohio. A farmer's paradise—rich, deep, level soil. Field after field of towering corn bearing heavy ears of grain were seen on every side. Threshing machines blowing bright wheat straw from their stacks dotted the farmland. Outstanding in this great agricultural state was the almost palatial-looking barns, which leads one to believe that a good barn will build a good house but not in reverse order.

On to Lake Erie via Cleveland. Hitting the edge of the inter-United States commerce. Lake steamers carrying tons of coal and pig iron. Out on the docks where the little "river rats" divek like seals . . . just for their entertainment and incidently for a few of some traveler's coins.

From Fairport Harbor (part of Cleveland's network of lake harbor) around lake Erie on what is known as Lakeside Drive which brought us to Buffalo. The drive was through a highly prosperous section of Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, a section of beautiful homes, inviting speedways, beautiful views across the lake. The homes were truly of Dutch design, the highways were indeed American (three and four-lane and congested with roadway advertising as well as traffic.) The scenes were agriculturalistic, commercialistic and residential.

From Buffalo, a city of lofty smoke stacks and clanging steel, to Peace Bridge. Peace Bridge—not more artistic than bridges across other rivers, not more gigantic than our own Kentucky-Ohio bridges—a symbol of everlasting peace between two of the few remaining democratic operating nations of the world. On the Canadian side flags, both the Red, White and Blue, and the Union Jack waved in welcome.

Continuing around Lakeside Drive on the King's Highway—drive that would be surprising to the most wide-read visitor. We had expected the super-fine highway and gala-decorated villages, but not the rich rolling lands and the millionaire—ish homesteads. (On inquiry, we discovered that many of the homes were those of retired British business men who had taken residence in the mother country's grandest possession.)

Niagara Falls, where millions of gallons of water dropping many feet attract thronging crowds from year to year . . . a haven for honeymooners . . . a place where five men and one woman have tried to make an eternal name and fortune by barrelling the falls. Description fails when describing this, America's and Canada's most widely visited scenic spot.

Away from the splash of this rolling water almost wet with its enormous spray. Again on the King's Highway continuing around the lakes, this time Lake Ontario. The sights were more astonishing, the homes more beautiful, the highway more highly decorated and the people less American. A land where Scotsmen play their bagpipes, where polo takes a front seat to baseball, where restaurants are called groceterias and where change from a five dollar bill is in Canadian money.

On to Kingston, a typical English-Canadian city, just two hours late to hear President Roosevelt speak at the dedication of an American-Canadian bridge. The day was indeed a holiday for the entire province. They awaited with all anxiety for their southern neighbor's chief executive's address. His assurance of help to Dominion in case of invasion was music far surpassing the bagpipe.

From Kingston to Gananockwe (accent on third syllable) known far and wide as the gateway to the Thousand Islands. Here we crossed the St. Lawrence by ferry. The sight-seeing boats of Gananoque are amongst the finest examples of boat building. The excursion-like crossing which was ten miles from country to country took one through the channels of the Thousand Islands. Sights to behold from the deck were Lost Cannel, Devil's Oven, Lovers' Lane, Senator Hind's Home, Pullman estate, etc.

Once again on home soil—after routine Custom Agent questions and answers. Into the Empire State. New York from Jamestown to Albany—a land of Holstein cows and streamlined milk busses, a land of rolling alfalfa and grazing fields, a land of buzzing autos speeding madly down the Mohawk valley to the state capital. On our trip from the border to Albany—with lower New York yet to see—we easily comprehended the meaning, Empire State, and after visiting Albany with its magnificent capitol buildings we halted in our imagination as to what would come.

From Albany down the Hudson passing such spots of interest as the Hyde Park home of the Roosevelts, the Vanderbilt Estate, West Point Military Academy, and Sing Sing prison at Ossing. What was there at Hyde Park Just a typical New York town with activity at no higher pitch than in Ossing or Jamestown. The Roosevelt home was beautiful . . . and across the Hudson in the far-away background was Father Devine's Heaven.

On down the Hudson (and wonder what Henry Hudson would think of his namesake River should he view it today?) through Herkimer—known more to us as the home of Lou Ambers, and Schnectedy, the city of high voltage into the outskirts of New York City.

New York City: The most impressive was the size. Broadway, the longest street in the world . . . running from Albany to the tip end of Manhattan Island, a distance of 145 miles. Magnanimous, the whole thing. Wall Street . . . the Grand Canyon of the east; Chinatown, a place where ice cream and angel food cake would find no hungry mouths or at least no solid stomachs, a place where chinamen fight for existence and where degenerate whites bed on the sidewalks, a place where allegiance to far-away-China lurks heavy . . . for instance, to see throngs of the yellow men pushing and shoving to read bulletin board reports of the Sino-Japanese "incident"; Times Square, a spot where people and autos move like mad ants; Harlem, out where the Jitterbugs dress in gala colors, sing, swing and shout . . . some black and some not so black; Italian town, where "Waps" shove pushcarts containing anything from turnips to silk.

More New York: Greeley Square named after that famous journalist who said "Go West young man, go West to make your fortune." Incidentaly he made his in the East; The Little Church Around the Corner, a memory because of a church squabble that brought these works from one minister: "God bless the little church around the corner"; Martha Washington Hotel, a hotel for women only, a hotel where only one man may step foot, he being the electrician; Columbia College, a gigantic instiution of higher learning; Hotel by the dozens, theatres on every square, churches and cathedrals at every turn. . . . One, the St. John's Cathedral, we visited for several hours . . . a structure that has been in the making for 40 years . . . the present cost 26 million . . . about two-thirds complete.

Down Fifth Avenue (millionaire's row) . . . homes that resemble great institutions . . homes of such notables as Doris Duke, the world's wealthiest unmarried lady, Richard Whitney, former president of stock market and now doing time up the Hudson; the Gouds the Whitney's, etc. Across from Millionaire's row is America's largest public park—Central Park a beauty spot that the poor as well as the rich can enjoy.

Out on riverside drive—another beauty spot and the home of the disappointed president, William Randolph Hurst; to the City aquarium and the docks . . . a look at the Statue of Liberty and the Atlantic . . . a view of real ocean liners.

Still more New York: The subway, the elevated, Radio City, R. K. O., Grant's tomb, a glance at the New York Daily Sun of which Keats Speed, a youthful Kentuckian is managing editor, Carl Hubbell's alling arm of more interest than European War talk, traffic that makes Kentucky motorists appear like land turtles in a strawberry patch . . .

From New York to Jersey City through Holland Tunnell under the Hudson . . . the tunnel one and three-quarter miles. Jersey city, a huge city but overshadowed by its giant sister across the Hudson.

From Jersey City to Philadelphia—the city of brotherly love, the home of the Nation's first capital. . . . Liberty bell . . . original seats used by the nation's first statesman. Philadelphia, third largest city in the nation . . . narrow streets, towering buildings, all races, all kinds of work.

Philadelphia to Baltimore—the city of churches and cathedrals, the catholic center of America. . . a beautiful city . . . a city of oysters and fish . . . a city where darkies down on the wharf sell watermelons by the boatload.

Washington: Down Pennsylvania Avenue . . . down to the capital . . . a city where Dutch Cleanser salesmen and street sweepers are more scare than Maxwell cars . . . a city of 2,600 taxi cabs . . . a city of giant white office buildings . . . a city of wide avenues and fast-walking federal employees . . . a model city.

Sights: The White House, a beautiful place within and without; Buildings of Agriculture, Commerce, Interior, Justice and Labor; Folger Shakespearean Library, Government Printing Office, Smithsonian Institution, U. S. Supreme Court, Congressional Library, Archives Building; American Red Cross Headquarters . . . The capitol building (an hour tour with an intelligent guide).

Mt. Vernon: The home of George Washington . . . a typical southern plantation and mansion . . . original in practically every detail . . . Washington's tomb . . . a beautiful view of the Potomac.

Lee's home and Arlington National Cemetery—another typical plantation . . . a cemetery of national heroes . . . the tomb of the unknown soldier . . . "Known but unto God" . . . (a place where you stop in deep reverence.)

To Annapolis where future naval and marine officers drilled with precision . . . a place where the Star Spangled Banner brings spirited reflections . . . where routine and order prevail.

Across the Allagenies through Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio. Through historic towns and beautiful mountains, into homeland.

Those making this eleven-day sight-seeing tour were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Arvin, host and hostess, Mrs. Pearl Gulley, Mrs. G. C. Jarrell, Mrs. Effie Clifton, Mrs. J. W. Kelley, Mrs. Al Darby, Mrs. Joe Hogan, Mrs. Ella Metcalf and daughter Ann, Mrs. Lee McNeely and son Leroy, Mrs. Perry Mahan, Mrs. Ed Stott, Mrs. J. F. Jockey, Mrs. John Smith, Mrs. Epriam Clore, Mrs. Carl Rief, Mrs. Helen St. Clair, Mrs. F. Holton, Mrs. Annie Jeffries, Mrs. Laura Rogers, Mrs. Lizzie Beemon, Donald Kirk, Stanley Ryle and the writers.

Our sympathy goes out to the man who has to strain himself to live up to his wife's expectations.

The most surprising thing about Mussolini is that such a powerful man could be raised on spaghetti.

TWO YOUTHS GIVEN FINES

FOR ATTEMPTED ROBBERY EARLY SATURDAY MORNING AT FLORENCE FAIR GROUNDS BOTH DENY CHARGES.

Charged with attempted robbery of a trailer owned by Huxsoll and Thuermer of Aurora, Ind., two youths giving their names as John Ripberger and Oscar Lefler, both of Newport, were arrested early Saturday morning and ordered to appear in Judge Riddell's court for trial Monday of this week.

According to Harry Thuermer and his son Robert, they had the trailer on the ground for advertising purposes, and that it contained several hundred dollars worth of merchandise that was to be displayed during the fair. They had just retired in the trailer for the night, when they overheard the conversation of the two young men planning the robbery. The door of the trailer was opened slightly and they were being watched as well as being heard. As one departed to get their car in which to load the loot, the other came to the trailer and picked up a battery used on a radio. Young Thuermer opened the trailer door quickly, and grabbed the boy before he could get away. The other youth was captured a few minutes later by other persons attracted by the shouts for help given out by the Thuermers.

Sheriff F. M. Walton was called about 2:00 a. m. and after questioning the two young men, released them with instructions to appear in Burlington for trial Monday.

The trial was heard before Judge N. E. Riddell, and although both men denied all charges, each received a fine of $11.50.

DEMOCRATS TO GIVE BANQUET

ALBEN W. BARKLEY TO BE INVITED AS SPEAKER FOR THE OCCASION—OTHER PROMINENT PERSONS EXPECTED.

The Young Men's Democratic Club of Boone County will give a banquet at the Florence school building sometime during the month of October, it was announced at the close of their regular meeting Monday night at the courthouse, Burlington.

The banquet was originally scheduled to take place the last week in July, but it was postponed until after the primary election with the understanding that the winner of the primary was to be invited to be the principal speaker. Many other outstanding political figures were suggested to be invited, but no definite arrangements are made until the entertainment committee has an opportunity to make further plans.

This is always the largest event in the program of the club each year, it being a social gathering for all members of the club, as well as those who desire to become members. Tickets will be on sale soon, and may be obtained from President J. P. Brothers, Limaburg.

James A. Riddell Celebrates 95th Anniversary

James A. Riddell celebrated his 95th birthday anniversary Sunday at his home in Hebron. Mr. Riddell is well known throughout the county, and is probably the oldest resident of the county at the present time.

He has spent his entire life in this county, and been instrumental in the progress made in his community.

A large number of relatives and friends gathered at his home to help this fine old gentleman celebrate his birthday. Among those present were all of his eight children, six boys and two girls and one brother-in-law, R. S. Cowen who is 94.

Mr. Riddell appeared to enjoy the day just as much as the large number of youngsters who were present, and is still hale and hearty.

We join Mr. Riddell's many friends in wishing him many more happy birthdays, and continued good health throughout the coming years.

ACP Phosphate Supply Exhausted

The 1938 supply of 47 per cent phosphate available to Agricultural Conservation Program cooperators is exhausted, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Friday was the last day for receiving orders, according to official word received at the county office on September 8th.

Four hundred and two Boone county farmers to date have ordered 17 car loads totalling 775,100 pounds of 47 per cent super phosphate. If this amount was compared with regular 20 per cent phosphate, the equivalent would be 1,821,485 pounds. This would be by far the largest amount of superphosphate ever used in the county. Farmers who have used phosphate the last few years report splendid increases in hay and pasture crops. Greatest increases have been secured when used with limestone and a light covering of manure.

FLORENCE FAIR TO BE REPEATED

DATE SET FOR SEPTEMBER 30 AND OCTOBER 1ST—SAME PREMIUMS TO BE GIVEN AS ADVERTISED FOR LAST FAIR.

Due to the inclement weather, Saturday, the Florence Fair and Harvest Home will be repeated on Friday September 30th and Saturday, October 1st, according to Ben F. Zimmer, secretary of the organization. This date, Mr. Zimmer said, had been chosen on account the Florence Fire Department holding their picnic on Sept. 17-18 and the church will have an affair on September 24th, therefore the date has been set as above mentioned.

Mr. Zimmer stated that a large crowd attended the fair despite the rainy weather. Many requests have been made that he repeat the fair at a later date, and he stated that he would endeavor to give them the biggest and best affair ever held in Northern Kentucky.

Premiums will be awarded as advertised for the last fair and will be paid in cash and merchandise.

Business men who supported the fair and concessioniers will again support the fair, and will go far toward making it a huge success. The fair will be held on Friday night and all day Saturday and Saturday night.

The Simon Kenton band will be back to furnish music throughout the day, and Bill Swigel's famous orchestra will furnish the music for those who desire to dance.

The manager extends a cordial invitation to all, and promises a full day's entertainment for those who attend.

Miss Poston is the very attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elza Poston, of Burlington, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clore, of Belleview.

They were accompanied by Miss Rebecca Stephenson, of Burlington and Mr. Wilbur Dennison, of Belleview. After the ceremony, the party motored to Warsaw, Ky., and returned late that night.

Although they have not as yet announced their plans for the future, they have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy and prosperous journey through life.

CORRESPONDENCE DELAYED

Last week we were compelled to publish our paper with only a few letters from our correspondents over the county. This was due to the fact that Monday was a holiday, therefore, no rural carriers were on the job that day.

Most of our correspondents mailed their letters in, but they reached us too late for publication. Therefore we are publishing the delayed letters in this issue.

We regret that we were unable to carry this news last week, and hope that our readers will bear with us.

Letter Received From Boone Ryle

We were very glad to receive a letter this week from our good friends out in Hollywood, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Boone Ryle and family.

Mrs. Ryle stated that they had had quite a hot summer in Florida and that they were now getting a little much needed rain in those parts. She also stated that the four boys were all working and that the youngest son Paul, recently won a trip to Cuba with all expenses paid by a daily newspaper there.

Mr. Ryle, who has been in ill health for several years, is working again, but is not enjoying the best of health yet. We certainly hope that Mr. Ryle will soon recover and be able to return to Boone County someday to be with his many friends and relatives here.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Saint in New York."
Sun. and Mon.—"Lord Jeff."
Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 21 and 22nd—"Josette

Last seen as the ill-fated French aviator of "The Woman I Love," and the young doctor of "Condemned Women," Louis Hayward has the most unusual role of his career in the same studio's exciting melodrama, "The Saint in York," This picture will be shown Saturday night.

In this film verion of the popular Leslie Charteris novel, Hayward portrays a debonair killer brought in to rid New York City of its leading racketeers after the police prove unable to punish them. Kay Sutton has the femine lead in the production by William Sistrom, which was directed by Ben Holmes.

Freddie Bartholomew wears his first long trousers and his first short haircut, both of which give him immense pride in "Lord Jeff," in which he is teamed with Mickey Rooney at the Gayety Theatre on Sunday and Monday.

It is a far cry from the embryo British sailor he plays in "Lord Jeff" to his first picture in America, when he was introduced to the fans of the world in "David Copperfield."

Freddie was born in London on March 28, and when three years of age was adopted by his aunt, Miss Myllicent Bartholomew, who reared him at her home in Warminster, Wiltshire, England. He received all his schooling from his aunt. He learned poems and prose, and at the age of four was appearing in public at amateur theatricals in the Wilts area.

Mary gave the boys a close race for top honors in the sheep rings last year and came back to take top honors this year.

She and her younger sister, Jean, won fourteen premiums on their eleven head at Lexington. With the exception of one small prize, the girls made a "clean sweep" of all the prizes in this class.

These young ladies have their lambs entered at the State Fair this week, not only in 4-H classes, but also in open-to-the-world classes.

Curry-Hensley

The many friends of Mr. Robert Hensley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hensley, Burlington, were delightfully surprised to hear of his marriage to Miss Dorothy Curry, of Carlisle, Ky., on Wednesday afternoon, September. 7th.

The marriage ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Danv at his home in Carlisle, with Mr. Thomas (Buster) Hensley, brother of the groom and Miss Jean Harper, of Ft. Thomas, attending. Flower girls were Misses Mary Jean Hensley and Mary Curry Smith.

After the ceremony, the young couple left for Chicago to spend their honeymoon. They are expected to return to Frankfort where they will make their home, the latter part of this week.

The bride is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. D. M. Curry, of Carlisle. The groom has a very nice position with the State, with offices in Frankfort.

May both happiness and prosperity be theirs during their journey through life together.

13,000 Tons Limestone Needed By Boone County Farmers

Boone county farmers need to spread approximately 13,000 tons of agricultural limestone before October 31st to earn 100 per cent of their ACP allowance, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Approximately $24,000 of the county's $60,800.00 allowance remains unearned according to latest estimates.

The ACP phosphate supply has been exhausted and used of agricultural limestone and fall seeding of grasses and clovers are about the only means left for earning the allowances set up for the individual farms. Each tons of agricultural limestone used pays $1.50 on the allowances. Based on past records, the county as a whole will earn approximately $5,000.00 through fall seeding practices leaving $20,000.00 which must be earned chiefly through use of agricultural limestone.

Agricultural limestone is to be recommended to practically all farmers. One application of two tons per acre will give increased crop yields for approximately 10 years. It not only increases the yield of grass and clover crops but gives slight increases on grain crops as well. Under the A. C. Program, limestone may be applied on any land on the farm and credit is given.

The following dealers of agricultural limestone have reported they have limited amounts of agricultural limestone for sale and will either deliver or will crush stone on any farm in the county: R. W. Auton, Demossville, Ky., Phone Independence 1701; Orville Y. Kelly, Burlington, R. 2, phone Burlington 682-X; Charles Kraft, Ludlow, R. 2; Dance Brothers, Crittenden, Ky.

The following will also deliver limestone: Stanley Graves, Hebron, phone Hebron 341; J. W. Moore, Burlington, R. 1, phone Hebron 133.

Delivered prices on agricultural limestone varies around $2.00 per ton. Stone may be crushed on the farm at prices varying from 70 cents to 85 cents per ton.

Belleview Suffers First Defeat By Ward's Grocery

In a hard fought game on the Belleview grounds Sunday, Ward's Grocery turned back the Belleview boys 5 to 4. This was a very exciting game all the way through, Belleview holding a lead to 2 to 0 until the 6th, when the visitors scored five runs on 5 clean hits and a base on balls. Belleview scored one in the seventh frame to make it 5 to 3 and in the 9th looked as if the Boone County boys were going to tie the visitors and possibly win, with the first two batters getting clean singles. The next batter forced a man at third, and the fourth run came in on an out at first and an overthrow at third. Kirk, trying to take an extra base on the overthrow, was out, thus ending the game,

Ward's Grocery tallied 12 hits and three, while the Belleview boys chalked up eight hits, with only one error.

Ryle and Ryle formed the battery for Belleview, while Oliver and Eggleston served in this capacity for the visitors.

Belleview will meet Verona at the Belleview park Sunday Sept. 18th. You are invited out to see this game. Admission 25c and 15c.

TOBACCO MEET SET FOR SEPT. 21

RUSSELL HUNT, TOBACCO FIELD AGENT WILL BE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER—WILL DISCUSS TOBACCO HOUSING.

Mr. Russell Hunt, tobacco field agent at College of Agriculture, will speak to farmers in a series of field meetings on next Wednesday, September 21st, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Mr. Hunt will discuss tobacco housing and curing problems with coke, ridge ventilators and other artificial means of curing.

The exact place and time of the various meeting will be announced the last of the week from the county agent's office in Burlington. Everyone interested in tobacco curing work is invited to attend.

Boone county farmers this year have housed one of the finest quality tobacco crops in history. Until last Saturday, three weeks of splendid curing weather has been encountered. Friday night, Saturday and Sunday, damp foggy weather was begining to worry growers. Sunday a number of growers reported house burning was beginning to set in. Monday the weather had again cleared up and it is hoped favorable curing weather will follow.

13 Hebron Students Enter Various Colleges

The Hebron community should be quite proud of the fact that thirteen of their young people will enter college this fall to continue their education to meet the present day requirements. This large number to attend college from such a small community certainly speaks well for its residents and is a record of which very few communities can boast.

Among those to attend are as follows: Miss. Evelyn Conrad, Eastern State; Bink Shinkle, Transylvania; Geo. Hankins Riley, Transylvania; James Conner, State, Wood Edwards, State; Melvin Kenyon, State; Henry Holliday, Cumberland; Josephine Grant Georgetown; Gaines Stevens, to Georgetown; Roger Muntz, U. S. Navy Training; James Gordon Bullock, Ohio Mechanics Institute; Allen Kenyon, State, working on Master's degree, and Morris Earl Willis, Virginia College.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Bentham, of Balitmore, Md., returned home, after spending a delightful visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Hempfling.

HIGHWAY PATROL IS ABOLISHED

SOME MEMBERS STILL ON DUTY—STATUS OF PATROL TO BE TESTED IN A SUIT SANCTIONED BY GOVERNOR.

Officially, there is no Kentucky State Highway Patrol.

Some of the 200 members of the patrol, abolished Saturday by an order of Robert Humphreys, commissioner of highways, are on duty unofficially and without state-owned equipment.

Scores went to the State Fair at Louisville Monday at their own expense and are acting as "state fair guards." Others, refused gas-left the autos in highway garages. oline for their state-owned cars,

Status of the patrol probably will be tested in a suit, which will be sanctioned by Gov. Chandler, but filed in the name of some of the "dismissed" patrolmen, it was said at Frankfort Monday.

Abolition of the patrol followed expression of Atty-Gen. Hubert Meredith Saturday that the patrol was being paid from an unconstitutional highway fund appropriation of $300,000.

To bring the issue to a head, patrolmen may have to mandamus the state auditor for payment of salary, not being paid now.

The situation caused an uproar in Frankfort Saturday. Governor Chandler, just back from a vacation, indicated an independent lawyer will be employed to represent the patrol.

Mr. Humphrey has directed all patrolmen to turn in state-owned autos.

Fascinating Story of Local Stores' Service To Be Told During Forward Northern Kentucky Week Beginning Sept. 19

Four days from today—next Monday—northern Kentucky merchants are to launch one of the most interesting demonstrations for the public that has been here in years.

At a meeting of the Retail Merchant's Association last Friday at the Covington Chamber of Commerce, plans were completed for "Forward Northern Kentucky Week." Not only will the event formally launch the new season for the local stores, which have stocked their shelves with the newest and best fall style merchandise, but Forward Northern Kentucky Week has a much larger interest for the public.

The theme of the demonstration, in which the merchants will cooperate through display of their fall merchandise inside their stores and in attractively arranged store windows, will be a presentation to the public of the "Romance of Retailing."

Did you ever think when you purchase an article of clothing or household equipment or furnishings what a long trail of service lies behind the final supplying to you of the article over the counter?

Did you ever consider that what apparently is a push button operation when you go downtown to shop and hasten into your favorite store to buy something you want, is by no means as simple as it seems? Did you ever weigh the tremendous amount of service that store is rendering in supplying the goods, that six months or more before somebody somewhere had to design the article, style it and perhaps go half way around the world to find the material to make it for you?

Have you ever gone behind the scenes of a retail store and had revealed to you there the interesting story of how goods are received in the stock rooms, what has to be done to bring them out into the windows and in the show cases for your convenience when you need the articles?

These are just a few suggestions of the fascinating and highly interesting story which the merchants of northern Kentucky plan to tell to the women and men and children of this community beginning next Monday, Sept. 19th.

"Never before has anything quite like this ever been attempted in northern Kentucky," William Macklin, chairman for the Retail Merchants Association, said today. "We believe that everybody likes to go behind the scenes and see how the wheels go around. It is for the same reason that people like to go back stage or to visit a radio broadcasting station or a newspaper plant. And the northern Kentucky merchants have just as interesting a story to tell about the romance of their business and the great service they render as anybody else. Next week they are pooling their efforts to tell the public their story and in that manner present to their customers as fine a line of style merchandise for fall as we have ever seen."

Merchants at the Friday meeting decided upon the program for Forward Northern Kentucky Week. During this week the new fall fashions will be unveiled. Retail promotions and window displays will be turned to tell the romance of retailing in northern Kentucky. The importance of the business recovery movement and the growth of local retail payrolls will be brought to the fore. Next week the public will be let in on the secrets of what transpired six months ago to enable mllady to be served with a new fall outfit of clothing or to step to the counter and buy the latest fashion novelty in toilet goods. What was the buyer and stylest doing to determine in New York six months ago what men would wear this fall and what would be the leading fabrics for the fall ensemble? This just another of the phases of their fascinating story which the local merchants will be telling you during their big week beginning Sept. 19th.

A FAMILY REMEDY

We can't help but see, every now and then, some family who lack sympathy and co-operation with each other. Today's family may have more to confront it in the way of family problems, and when children look on their parents as "back numbers" the answers to family questions usually aren't answered satisfactorily. Often older people feel that youth is unappreciative of their advantages and this draws the parent and the child apart. It kills a certain comradeship that a family must have. One way for a parent to draw the youth into closer touch is by letting him into the confidence of the family with regard to money matters. Show him the results of honest endeavor and how every cent of the income stands for conscientious energy and toil and is therefore hard earned and must be treated accordingly. Make the youth a partner and he will be interested in making a success of his family's business. By understanding each other the closer contact between groups and the more harmony will be brought into the home. It has been found that more than half the boys between the ages of 14 and 21 chose their own clothing, sporting goods, radios and musical equipment. This is without the help of parents. The boy should be aware of how much labor there was attached to making the purchase possible. The Children's Bureau says that at the age of five a child should learn the value of a penny and a dime. Let the youth make family purchases. He will learn the amount of goods he can buy for a certain sum and the responsibility will bring worth-while results.

BACK TO SCHOOL

The summer vacation comes to a close with many mothers busy in getting school clothes and school books in order. Days of play will give way to hours of instructions and preparation for the years to come when summer mon't merely stand for vacation. There are always extra duties to perform when school opens, shoes that need attention, clothes repaired, supplies for study on hand so there will be no excuse when the bell tolls "Come." Your teacher is busy as well, brushing up on books, plans and schedules to pass on to the child during this new school session. The youngsters who depart for colleges are especially active. All seem to have some part in the bustle and ado.

We are proud of the schools in our district and we feel hopeful that every taxpayer is also. No community can endure without two things, churches and schools. Let us not neglect either, for the better we make them the more widespread is their interest and influence felt, and the better is the community in which they exist. We can rise no higher than these two, our schools and our churches. The community of the future can be no better than the educational advantages offered by these two groups of teaching. Speak a good word for our schools and our teachers at every opportunity. Your co-operation will pay big dividends.

EXTRACTING PAYMENT

There may be many a business man who would like to proceed along the lines of a dentist who took pains to get an account marked "paid in full." His reason might have been sensible but a court didn't think so, for they fined him on a charge of assault. It seems a lady patient had given an estimate of $47 for dental work and paid $25. When she did not settle for the remainder the dentist forced her into the chair and removed what he considered was $22 of his work. Most of us have to put up a good fight to go to a dentist in the first place, and then to have the good work removed by force would just about call for a return bout, as far as we are concerned.

Before you censor the dentist for being a heartless and unsympathetic fellow, consider whether any local merchants might light upon this idea as a way of settling old accounts. Many of us might lose some salt, shoes, coal—and even the newspaper—in the clean-up!

LET'S CHUCKLE

Someone said; "I always like to hear him chuckle,' 'and it made us think a bit. Could we name a man who chuckles that folks didn't like? There is something about a chuckle that wins you and it usually comes from a person at ease with his neighbor—and his conscience. He is unselfish, is not a hypocrite, is friendly, sociable and without guile. A chap who is a lover of humanity and is in accord with it, who like us and we like him. To review in my mind the folks who chuckled and the folks who didn't gave me the thought that the first ones you could trust, and love. It behooves us all to do a bit of chuckling now and then just to keep in practime and to hear how we sound to the other fellow.

—o—

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

Why is it that the more we do something the more certain we are that we can do it well, and the more assured we are that what we are doing is the best it can be done? As in the case of driving an automobile. A new driver, as a rule, is alert and cautious because he is more timid than daring. But give him about five years and he is veteran, then add ten more and he becomes a world-beater. The driver who is a skillful driver may become too sure of his skill and figure he can safely and surely dart in and out of traffic by depending upon the "other fellow" to give him right of way. Many folks have seen this happen every time they ride in a car and have often wondered what traffic would be if everybody thought he was the favored one. This action on the highways may work as long as two skillful but inattentive drivers don't try the same stunt at the same time, coming from different directions. Then the deluge!

PARAGRAPHS

Jewelry is jewelry, but no girl would as soon have gold fillings for her teeth as a diamond ring to denot her engagement.

Why is it that a congregation always expects so much more from a new pastor than it did from the old one?

Next to talking his business worries over at home, the biggest nuisance is the man who talks his family affairs over down town.

The cheapest thing to be found at any bargain sale is the husband waiting for his wife to make her purchases.

Why yearn for an ocean voyage? You see one wave and you see them all.

It looks as though the only thing left in this old world than can be shocked is the grain.

What has become of the man who used to make a friend of every boy by calling him "Sport?"

Many males feel that the cream used in creamed carrots might be put to better advantage.

In the old days when a man bought a horse it didn't fall off 20 percent in value and become a "used horse" after he had driven it a couple of miles.

Most folks wonder what has become of the old fashioned girl who saw her boy friend only on Wednesday and Sunday nights.

A bad road is a good deal like a corn—a little trimming will help it a lot.

It must be hard to spend half a life-time taking dancing lessons only to discover that you learned the wrong steps.

Truth may be stronger than fiction but most anyone can tell you that it isn't nearly as agreeable.

JONATHAN: COURAGEOUS FRIENDSHIP

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 20:4-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—A friend loveth at all times.—Proverbs 17:17.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Noble Prince Jonathan.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Noble Prince Jonathan.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Adventure of Friendship.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Cost of Being a Friend.

Without question, the most precious possession any man or woman has (apart from his fellowship with God if he is a Christian, and the love of his own family) is friendship. It is the flower that blooms by the side of the rugged pathway of life. Like many flowers, some friendships need to be cultivated and encouraged.

It has been said that the love of a woman for another woman is a beautiful thing, the love of a man for a woman an even more devoted and precious thing, but that the bond of love between man and man surpasses all in its strength and glory. Some might question such a statement, and yet it is true that between man and man there is the possibility of the highest type of friendship. David and Jonathan stand at the head of an inspiring list of men who loved each other with their whole souls.

The lesson for today calls for a careful reading of the incidents in the life of Jonathan and David recorded in I Samuel, chapters 14, 18, 19, and 20, as well as the first chapter of II Samuel. It is a story which will richly reward a careful reading. Considering the printed portion in the light of this background we note six things that characterized this great friendship.

I. Cultivated (v. 4).

Friendships must be "kept in repair." Foolish and almost wicked is that man who by boorishly offending his fellowmen, or by neglecting the thoughtful words and acts that cultivate friendship, drives men away from him. "He that hath friends must show himself friendly" (Prov. 18:24). Consider the admonition of our Lord in Luke 16:8, 9, where he urges the righteous use of even our worldly possessions to cultivate eternal friendships. Read what Jonathan did in I Sam. 18:3-5, only one of his many loving and thoughtful acts.

II. Courteous (v. 8).

David asked that Jonathan deal kindly with him, and the entire story reveals that he did just that, always. More friendships are wrecked on the rocks of little discourtesies than in almost any other way.

We live in an age which affects an outward veneer of culture but which is at heart often thoughtless and unkind. Let Christian men and women be courteous. They should be as followers of the gentle Jesus, and it will bring them countless friends.

III. Candid (v. 9).

Friendships that last must be built on absolute candor, not the kind that delights in telling an unpleasant truth, but one which speaks the truth in love. Jonathan told David the truth.

IV. Courageous (vv. 12, 13).

Jonathan was such a faithful son that when the time of parting came he stayed with his wicked father rather than go with David, whom he loved. But he was true to David even though he knew it would incur the wrath of his father if that friendship became known.

Things that cost us nothing are usually "worth it." Real friendship calls for sacrifice, standing by in the night hours, sharing burdens, loyal even though others may condemn us for it.

V. Covenant Keeping (vv. 16, 17).

Covenants entered into by solemn treaties in our time are soon discarded as "scraps of paper." People make promises to one another that they never intend to fulfill. Jonathan and David made a covenant and kept it. True friends do not violate their loving agreements.

This matter of trickery and falsehood in life and business is one that deeply troubles the writer of these notes. He sees unmistakable evidence that this perverse spirit has come into the precincts of the church itself. We should have a revival of honesty in office, home, state, and church.

VI. Complete (v. 17).

"He loved him as he loved his own soul"—such a friend was Jonathan. His devotion to David had no qualifying "strings" on it. He was not seeking something for himself. The closest he came to that was to bring his children into the covenant with David (v. 15), and who could question the propriety of such devotion between true friends? He saw that David was to supplant Saul as king, and in the face of his own interest as Saul's son, he put David forward.

Friendship is akin to our relationship to God in that it calls for a complete giving of ourselves, if we are to be true friends. This does not mean that individuality is lost, or special interests and abilities destroyed, but it does mean a wholesouled desire for our friend's welfare, and a complete devotion of our all to his good.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

by David M. Porter

In the next few weeks thousands of students will be going back to school or starting to school for the first time, and it is to them and their parents, we dedicate this column.

To you who plan to go to college, consider this: The colleges of Kentucky have ever course of study you can desire and as you are a Kentuckian and plan to make your future in this State, you will make more friends and valuable contacts by attending Kentucky schools.

In athletics, Kentucky has gained and will again attain national prominence, many athletes, however, go to out of state schools to become outstanding stars on court and gridiron. Please remember your skill can bring fame to Kentucky and no better coaches can be found than those who coach its colleges.

Kentucky would have the best football teams in the country if all its good athletes went to its colleges, so the coaches of the schools think, and we think so too, so we make this offer. If there is any athlete who sincerely wants an education in any Kentucky college, write us here in Frankfort and we will help you to secure a job to work for that education.

Apologies for the euphonic splurge. We got our neck broken at a Kentucky school and around this time of year when the days get cool and crisp we sort of yearn for the past.

Random Shots—While the Governor is getting a lot of fish up in Canada, the politicians are swarming on Frankfort because of shakeups in the Highway and welfare departments. It is easier to catch fish than to temporize with a disgruntled politicians, but hard on acting Governor Keen Johnson.

Mark this down in your election book. Entries for the Governor's race next year besides Lieutenant Governor Keen Johnson are Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, Chas. D. Arnett, Sectary of State, Attorney General Hubert W. Meredith, State Treasurer John Buckingham and Adj. Gen. Lee McClain. Mark off your entries Ernest Shannon who will run for State Treasurer instead.

We have this inside information direct. The Barkley, Logan, Rhea, Brennen machine has not comitted itself to a candidate for the Governor's race next year regardless of the broad hints of a young central Kentucky politician.

Mark this on your form chart: John Hunnicutt, floor leader and popular young politician from eastern Kentucky, looks like a sure thing for Lieutenant Governor, so claim Dame Rumor's children "The People in the Know" and those same children claim that Governor Chandler will become President of the University of Kentucky next year when President McVey reaches retirement age.

CELEBRATION IS SCHEDULED

AT LAWRENCEBURG, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 17—WILL BE KNOWN AS DEARBORN COUNTY'S CELEBRATION.

Every man, woman and child is invited to Lawrenceburg, Saturday, Sept. 17, to participate in Dearborn County's Northwest Territory Celebration, which will be the biggest affair ever held in that old historic county seat, settled at the turn of the nineteenth century. Festivities will start on Thursday evening, Sept. 15, when the Northwest Territory Dinner will be given at St. Lawrence auditorium on Walnut street at 6 p. m. Central Standard Time. The Honorable Russell Wilson, Cincinnati councilman and former Mayor, will be the speaker. Mr. Wilson's fame as an orator is nation-wide and the committee feels that they were very fortunate in securing such an able speaker to participate in the opening of the celebration. Music and entertainment also will be on the program.

Friday night, September 16, visitors will be treated to a two-hour free band concert by Smittie's famous concert band of Cincinnati. No other band in the Queen City is more in demand than Smittie's, nor more popular. If weather is favorable ,the concert will be given on an outdoor platform erected on the streets, but if inclement, it will be given in the high school gym.

The climax to the three days' festivities will come on Saturday afternoon and evening, Sept. 17. In the afternoon a mammoth historical pageant-parade, "History Passes in Review," portraying episodes in the history of America, from the time of Columbus up to the present time, will greet the thousands of visitors expected. More than 50 entires already are in and more are coming daily.

Thirty full blooded Indians from the Rosebud reservation at Mission, South Dakota, will be in the parade, accompanied by their chief. The group will be encamped on the Fair Grounds where tepees will house the red men in an Indian village. Both men and women will participate in tribal dances to the beating of the tom-toms. This is the same group of Indians who performed all last week at the Indiana State Fair.

The finale will come on Saturday night at 8:00 o'clock, Central Standard Time, when the Federal pageant, "Freedom on the March" will be given at the fair grounds by the Ox-team Caravan. If weather is bad, the new high school gym will be used for the pageant presentation.

An antique show, displaying 100-year-old relics owned by descendants of the early pioneers, a quilt show and a flower show will be attractions in downtown Lawrenceburg, Friday evening and Saturday. There is no entry fee at any of the displays, and people from surrounding communities are invited to participate, entries to be made at the McCullough building, 22-24 E. High street, Friday afternoon.

Thanks

We want to thank all of Boone countians for their attendance Saturday at our fair and also all who tried so hard to get to us under such terrible weather conditions, which of course none of us can help. The cooperation of the business men of our county and Kenton county was indeed over 100 per cent, also large band of concessioners who made such a wonderful display of amusements; Mr. Rel Wayman and Simon Kenton Independence School Band; the 4-H members who offered their services, and other friends who were so kind.

The enthusiasm and requests were so great we have decided to have it again.

I again thank you.

Hubby—This building is said to be entirely fireproof, my dear.

"I'm not surprised to hear it; the rest of his mind deserted him years ago."

LIKE A BARN

"How large is the apartment house you live in?"

"Well, I don't remember exact dimensions, but it's so big that when we asked the janitor for heat on Sunday morning, steam didn't get around to the radiator till the next Thursday."

CITY MAN'S VIEWS

Farmer—Yes, sir, I'm asleep by nightfall, an' don't have no fire in th' room.

City Man—Don't seem necessary w'en ye go t' bed with th' sun.

Miss Sharp—And that without going very far, I suspect, Mr. Small.

Invite Engaged People to Parties Together

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you please explain how far the obligation of inviting engaged people together must be considered? We are asking a business associate of my husband to dinner on a Sunday and while there has been no public announcement made of it, we know that he is engaged to a young woman whom we have never met but of whom he often speaks. Must I ask her to dinner, too?

Answer: After the engagement is announced, then a hostess may not ask a man to a party without including his fiancee. This does not mean that at some occasion he may not happen to take a meal in her house. In your case I think I would ask him whether he would like you to invite her. It is possible that he would rather you wait until the engagement is announced and she can meet people as his fiancee.

Housewarming Defined

DEAR Mrs. Post: I realize that the term "housewarming" is given to any type of party as long as it is the first real one given by new owners or tenants. But is one kind of party more usually given on this occasion, and tell me, if there is, how you would suggest going about giving it?

Answer: It is rarely other than an informal late afternoon or early evening at home. Very simple refreshments are set either on the dining room table or on a card table in the living room. The principal feature is, of course, that the entire house is open for the visitors' inspection. And this means the whole house!

LONG KEY—McLIN HANOVER DUEL TO HIGHLIGHT KY. FUTURITY SEPTEMBER 26

Lexington, Ky.—The most cock-eyed two-horse duel ever seen on the Grand Circuit will focus the sport world's attention on the 46th renewal of the $9,000 Kentucky Futurity here Sept. 26th during the annual Lexington Trots which climax the 11-track, 1938 major league harness loop. Long Key and McLin Hanover are the feudists.

With 22 three-year-olds eligible to the rich, colorful Futurity, McLin Hanover, owned by the Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa., and Long Key, owned by E. J. Merkle, Columbus, O., stand out as the chief actors since they have swapped victory with each other so often that no one is quite certain who has the edge on the other.

McLin Hanover, with Henry Thomas driving, is one up on his persistent rival at the moment, since this son of Mc. McElwyn copped the last stake at Indianapolis in 2:01¾. However, it was only a few days earlier that Long Key, by Peter Volo, and piloted by Ben White, thrashed McLin at Syracuse in 2:02½. This upset struck the harness turf fairly between the eyes since everyone had decided that McLin's victory in their last previous clash, in the Hambletonian at Goshen, had established him as supreme.

Although Long Key was highly touted to capture the Hambletonian, he ended up fifth in that classic, after trotting over McLin Hanover the week previous at Agawam Park, Mass. The whole seesaw began in New England, since the orange and blue Hanover stable did not ship into Toledo or Cleveland, where Long Key further distinguished himself by winning in 2:01½—without meddling by McLin.

If last previous performances mean anything, McLin will march to the post here Sept. 26th as the favorite to cop the rich three-year-old Futurity. This colt's victory at Indianapolis in 2:01¾ should make him odds on favorite, but there's going to be plenty of dough laid on the line for Long Key, as well, since he has a habit of doing his best footwork when he is the underdog.

Since Vesta Hanover, a stablemate of Greyhound's, also is in the Kentucky Futurity, during the six-day card, Sept. 24-Oct. 1, and this filly has beaten both of these colts, neither of the mere males is very happy about this feminine rival

AND SO ONE THING LED TO ANOTHER, UNTIL—

WHEN old Tim Jillis blew his brains out with a rifle, he also set off a box of fireworks that jumped about hither and yon and hit quite a few people. In fact, the body of the suicide was barely cold in death before an unsuspecting citizen was tarred and feathered, and the latter event caused another explosion because it forced a sergeant to desert from the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. At any rate, let's get back to the beginning.

Tim Jillis was a lazy, good-for-nothing sort, and a booze-fighter, to boot, all of which kept his hard-working wife, and his two fine children on the outermost edge of destitution and want. Neighbors did all they could, of course, for the sake of the youngsters, and just when things were about as bad as they could be, Mrs. Jillis had a bright idea. She would change the house a bit and take in a lodger, someone who would pay for good food and a warm room. With the income from the boarder, she could make it all right, she felt sure, and soon a Charlie Brown was part of the household. Now Brown was a sober, hard-working chap, and when he saw the general economic conditions in the Jillis household, he dug down into his pockets and provided plenty of food, some necessary clothing, and a nice pile of fuel.

Naturally, the heart of Mrs. Jillis was about to burst from sheer gratitude, and she put herself out to make Brown feel right at home. His slightest wish was law, and the Jillises began to emerge from destitution to a fair measure of comfort and well-being. All of this, strange to say, aroused the anger and displeasure of the no-account husband and father who spent his days in local barrooms bewailing the fact that Brown the lodger was stealing his wife and gradually breaking up the Jillis home.

Instead of shooting the lodger, as most people had expected, Jillis stuck the rifle barrel in his own mouth, pressed the trigger, and scattered his brains all over the bedroom walls. The coroner and the Mounted Police soon realized that it was a plain case of suicide, and the case would have been closed right then had not a gang of half a dozen masked men barged into the Jillis home and seized Charlie Brown, the lodger. They took him to a lonely spot and there they tarred and feathered him from cap to boots. They drove him back to the tiny settlement and threw him into the lobby (?) of the local hotel which was hardly more than an ordinary six or seven-room house. Hours later Brown found his way back to his room in the Jillis home, and about the only clue he had as to the identity of his kidnapers was that all the talking and all the orders had been spoken by a man with a distinctive western drawl such as was common along the Montana boundary.

Things quieted down, and Brown stayed on at the Jillis place. And then, months later he was sitting on a hotel veranda in Lethbridge, Alberta, when his ears caught up a voice that he would never forget as long as he lived. He knew he had found the leader of the kidnap gang, and in half an hour the owner of the distinctive western drawl was breaking down under stiff questioning on the part of Men of the Mounted. Later he admitted leading the gang, and was held for trial. And then, while assembling all the necessary data and information for the trial, the inspector of the Mounted Police in the district made a most startling and distressing discovery. Five of the six gangsters were accounted for, and the inspector, while moving heaven and earth to find out the identity of the sixth, found that the much-wanted lawbreaker was one of his own sergeants, a man with years of creditable service behind him, and a man who had always been above reproach in every way. At any rate, perhaps a bit enraged by this discovery, the inspector did all he could to make a strong unshakable case against the sergeant. But, as the days passed, it appeared that the inspector was more hell-bent on "getting" that sergeant than anyone else, and just when conditions looked bad for the three-striper, he turned up missing.

The fact is, the tiny settlement was loyal to the sergeant, and while the inspector was fussing and fuming over evidence and court procedure the sergeant's many friends dug into their pockets, made up a sizable purse of money, and staked the sergeant to a midnight getaway on one of the finest and fastest horses in the region. Moreover, while the inspector was looking up the law on this and that, a fair-sized escort of mounted citizens were escorting the sergeant over the border into Montana.

And . . . that's how one thing led to another, until . . . well . . . it was difficult to find out just where this all started and when and where it finished. At any rate, it added a few gray hairs to the inspector's scalp. No doubt about that.

KEEPING FRUIT

It is not unusual for farmers to keep vegetables in sand over winter, but there are fewer of them who realize that fruits can be kept fresh for a long time in the same way. Oranges, apples, lemons and your sweet potatoes can be kept for months. The skins or rinds, being poreous, the dry sand absorbs the liquid in the fruit that would otherwise cause decomposition. Do not wrap the fruit in paper but let the rind come in contact with the sand. Put a layer of sand about six inches deep, then fruit, then sand to cover them well. Do not bury over-ripe or spoiled fruit.

SAM HAYNES TO BE SHOW JUDGE

FORMER AURORA MAN TO BE HERE FOR REVIVED FARMERS FAIR FEATURE—HAS NATIONAL REPUTATION AS JUDGE.

Word was received this week from Sam L. Haynes of Columbus, O., that he will act as Judge at the Aurora Farmers Fair Saddle and Harness Show to be held in the High School Amphitheatre Saturday afternoon, October 1. Mr. Haynes spent his early life in Aurora and will be remembered by many of the older residents of this community.

As a judge of horses, he is known from coast to coast and has officiated in this capacity in some of the largest horse shows in this country, such as The National Horse Show at New York City, The Kentucky State Fair at Louisville, Ky., and the International Live Stock Show at Chicago.

He will judge all the Saturday afternoon classes which include the following: Walking Horse Class, Ladies' Horsemanship, Children's Horsemanship, Three Gaited Open, Fine Harness Class, Hunter and Jumper, Five Gaited Open, and Sweepstake.

Mr. John B. O'Maley of Richmond, Ind., has been secured as General Manager of the Show and will also act as announcer. Mr. O'Maley has had wide experience in the conduct of Horse Shows, having the reputation throughout Indiana as giving the best managed show in the State each year at Richmond.

Mr. John Campbell, of Ghent, Ky., will act as Ringmaster, and his many years of experience in the show ring make him exceptionally well suited for this position. Mr. O'Maley visited Aurora last week and was very much impressed with the high school amphitheatre as an ideal place for a horse show. It is estimated that there is ample room for several thousand spectators with unobstructed view of the large graded show ring. The large athletic field adjacent to the show ring provides plenty of room for parking spectator cars and for trucks and trailers of exhibitors.

On Friday, Sept. 30, beginning at 10:30 a. m. and continuing into the afternoon the Draft and Farm Horse Show will be held in the show ring. Classes included in this division are as follows: Draft Colt 2 years old; Draft Colt, yearling; Draft Colt, suckling; mule colt, yearling or under; farm mare or gelding under 1500 lbs.; farm team, hitched not necessary to be matched, under 1500 lbs.; match farm team hitched, any weight; draft mare or gelding, 1500 lbs. and over; draft stallion, any weight; span mules, hitched; draft team hitched, 1500 lbs. and over.

Sweepstakes, best draft or farm horse in show. Liberal premiums will be offered in all the above classes. Complete premium and trophy list and entry blanks may be secured at the County Agricultural Agent's Office or from W. D. Bachman, secretary.

Excellent Live Stock Opportunities

ATLANTA, GA., August ...—A leaflet issued by the Development Service of Southern Railway System tells of the great strides being made in the raising of beef and dairy cattle, hogs and sheep in the territory served by the railroad and summarizes the outstanding advantages of the territory for still greater progress in all branches of the livestock industry.

The leaflet says: "There is no other section in the United States where conditions are so favorable for the profitable expansion of the livestock industry. In 1937 farm income from livestock and livestock products in Southern Railway System states increased 9.22 per cent, compared with only 3.40 per cent in all other states.

Hereford Heifers in Alabama on Alfalfa Pasture in February

"Ability to grow pastures which may be grazed nearly all the year and to produce a great variety of forage crops is the basis on which the southern farmer can build up a more profitable agriculture than in any other part of the country."

The cattle tick has been completely eradicated from every locality served by Southern Railway System, bovine tuberculosis has been practically wiped out, and rapid progress is being made in the eradication of Bang's disease (contagious abortion).

The leaflet continues: "Under the soil conservation and acreage allotment legislation the area formerly devoted to clean-cultivated soil-eroding crops has been reduced by several million acres and additional lands have been made available for grazing and growing feed for livestock.

"There are varieties of grasses and legumes adapted to all of the varying soil conditions. Excellent pastures, affording long grazing, have been developed in each locality and pastures are supplemented by a wide range of plants available for forage and feeds. Many legumes can be interplanted with clean-cultivated crops.

"Another reason why southern farmers should embrace the present unprecedented opportunity to avail themselves of their manifold advantages for livestock production is the improvement in facilities for profitable marketing of livestock and livestock products. Meat packers keep fully advised of livestock conditions and prospects in all parts of the country. They realize the advantages of the South and know of the progress that is being made. Their faith in the future is shown by the fact that in some localities they have provided packing house facilities that are in advance of the present available supply of animals. They know, however, that the numbers of beef cattle, hogs and sheep are increasing and they know that the average quality of the animals reaching the markets is improving.

"Improvement in quality has not been confined to animals sold for slaughter. Agricultural Department figures show an increase in 1937 over 1936 in the annual production of milk per cow of 115.50 pounds, or 3.71 per cent, in Southern Railway System states, as compared with only 35.15 pounds, or 0.78 per cent, in all other states. Growing industrial cities and towns along Southern Railway System consume increasing quantities of milk and milk products, and the market for the dairy farmer is constantly expanding.

"The outlook for swine in the territory is most promising. Packing plants within the South are constantly in the market for increased supplies, and pork can be produced cheaper than in any other part of the United States.

"Equally encouraging is the outlook for sheep. An outstanding opportunity is the production of spring lambs for the early market.

"Every livestock shipper knows the advantages of being able to move animals from the shipping station to destination by a single-line haul and the Southern Railway System is able to give unexcelled service in this respect. Its livestock agents give constant attention to the proper loading, care in transit and prompt delivery of livestock shipments.

"Southern Railway System Agricultural Agents and Live Stock Agents are actively co-operating with farmers and all others interested in a full utilization of the manifold advantages of the territory, to bring about the development of profitable systems of agriculture in all localities. The most prosperous farming communities are those in which livestock is a leading factor and continuation of the progress now under way in the territory served by Southern Railway System will build up a level of agricultural prosperity unexcelled in any other locality in the United States."

AT PEOPLES FOOT COMFORT
(SHOE STORE)

No truer words were ever spoken than these—"When your feet hurt, you hurt all over."

And no wonder! When nerve centers in the feet are subjected to pressure through the improper make and fit of shoes, every part of our body is affected.

The average person takes twenty thousand steps each day, just multiply that by your weight and you see that you impose hundreds and hundreds of tons of weight onto your feet each day. The foot must have support under the vital arches.

Without the correct type of support for the arches of your feet, your entire body mechanism—520 muscles, 206 bones, 600 nerves—is thrown into confusion. Fatigue backache, muscle cramps and strain, nervousness and general debility likely to fellow. We are justly proud of the fact that we have successfully eliminated much of the needless pain, sleepless nights and suffering, caused by incorrect shoes.

Certainly it is worth the time it will take to have a thorough analysis made by our foot comfort specialists. It may be the beginning of a bright new world for you.

THE FARM AND HOME

Since it costs 25 percent more to add an outlet after the job has been completed, wiring the house for electricity should be carefully planned, with consideration to future needs, and with an excess of outlets rather than too few.

Shade and abundance of good drinking water are two requirements of livestock and poultry during the hot months. Where there are no trees, sheds should be provided for shade. Many farmers are using water tanks made of concrete or other materials.

Late lambs or lambs not ready for market by July 1 should be treated for worms when 10 weeks or three months old and every month thereafter. The whole flock should be treated during the fall and sent into winter free from worms.

Cold milk is a delicious summer drink. Either whole or skimmed, it is exceptionally palatable on a hot day, when properly cold, and serves both as a food and as a drink. Many persons who think they dislike milk, relish it cold in summer.

Dairy farmers who will need bulls next fall or winter should be looking for them now, suggests the dairy division of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. "Do not wait until the last minute and expect to find the bull you want at your price."

Eggs and mily always can be added to a child's diet to advantage. Milk is a nearly complete food, and eggs are rich in proteins, have some of the vitamins and calcium. The adult standard should be a quart of milk a day and two or three eggs.

Homemakers will have easier work later, if they check again to be sure that all winter clothes are properly stored. Gummed tape may be used to close boxes of clothes, applying it entirely around the edges so that no open space is left.

In cultivating the garden, the job is made easier if the plow is properly adjusted. With a walking plow, the operator feels the heavy pull if adjustments aren't just right, though with other plows he may not become aware of it.

One-piece suits for small children have several advantages. One is that they don't have the discomfort of elastic around the waist, or of leggings that may slip down. Young children cannot adjust clothes that slip.

One thing always pays both farm and city people—taking proper care of the eyes. Eye strain may show in many ways, including headache, excessive fatigue and irritability. Lights should always be adequate and properly placed so that reading won't cause a strain.

CASH OR WHAT-HAVE-YOU?

Nobody gets very far in the way of thrift these days, or lays up a very pretentious savings account, until he learns that it costs just as much to have anything charged as it does to pay cash for it. It may hurt to take the money right out of your pocket and buy a suit of clothes or a hat, having it charged only relieves the "pain" temporarily; and the chances are that next month will find it no easier for you to pay than it is right now. The man who finds it difficult to make both ends meet should try the "cash-and-carry" system for awhile and see if that makes it easier to stick to his budget. Laying down the cash may not seem any more sensible than having it charged, but just try paying cash and see if there is any difference. There's two sides to the question, and in your case the same thing may not work that works for the other fellow. Pay cash for a month and see for yourself.

New Melon Varieties Are Disease Resistant

Boone County melon growers the past six years have been experimenting with new watermelon varieties resistant to wilt. Wilt is a soil borne disease that destroys thousands of dollars worth of melons each year. The growers this year tried three resistant varieties that produced good crops of high quality fruit on vines that were free from wilt, according to Jack Dye, assistant county agent.

Those farmers experimenting with the new wilt resistant are A. H. Cook, L. W. Rogers, Howard Huey, Eddie Rogers, F. H. Brown, and J. J. Klopp. Three farmers who have reported to date on resistant varieties grew Thurmond Grey, Kleckley No. 6 and Stone Mountain No. 5. None of these were affected by the wilt, though on two farms 75 per cent of the plants of other varieties planted beside them died from the disease. On the third farm there was no wilt because melons had not been grown on the ground before.

The resistant varieties were found to be equal in quality, flavor and yield to the non-resistant varieties grown. Thurmond Grey was the resistant variety with the best quality and flavor and Kleckley No. 6 yielded heaviest.

TOBACCO CROP IS DAMAGED

BY WET WEATHER FARMERS REPORT — GROWERS USING ARTIFICIAL HEAT REPORT NO DAMAGE.

Numerous farmers are reporting the last ten days that wet weather has darkened the quality of tobacco, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Previous to this period the quality of tobacco in the barn was considered the best in years.

Each time the cured leaf comes in high case and goes out the color of the leaf is darkened. Heat is the only practical means of controlling the case of leaf hanging in the barn. A large number of County farmers are using coke heat for the first time.

A committee of Boone County growers composed of William Hill, Olan Elliott, Sam Blackburn, Joel Gray, S. B. Scott, H. E. White, L. D. Rennacker, W. A. Brown, J. J. Klopp and H. R. YOUR FIRE BILL

You, the reader of this article, possess the key to fire prevention. You possess the power to help reduce the nation's fire loss, which now totals about a quarter of a billion annually, to an insignificant sum. And you can help save the ten thousand persons who now die horribly each year from fire.

By the same token, it is you who must pay the bill for our collective national carelessness with fire and its its hazards. And it is you who suffer when fire strikes.

Many of us mistakenly think that fire prevention involves the purchase of expensive and complicated equipment, plus an involved system of inspections by high-priced experts. That is true only in a minority of cases. A very large proportion of all fires occur in homes and on farms—and these cases adequate fire prevention usually requires little expenditure of either time or money. Improperly stored inflammable liquids, uncared-for heating plants, amateur electric work, accumulated debris of various kinds in attics, basements, closets and out-buildings—these are major sources of fire. And these grave hazards can be done away with quickly and for little or nothing.

Next time you read of a fire, large or small, think of its cost as being partially paid by you. You pay it in decreased purchasing power, in community retrogression, in lost jobs, in higher insurance rates. Think of the thousands of such fires that constitute America's gigantic and inexcusable total waste. Then answer this question: "Is the little effort that would make my property safe, worth while?"

PIONEERS

It is always fascinating to read of the pioneers in any line of business or country. In looking at their pictures one is, in the majority of cases, struck by their ruggedness of feature—there seem to be facial characteristics that distinguish them as clearly as do the mental characteristics that made them leaders in their field.

A product largely of the present century is casualty insurance, an indispensable development of the machine age in which we are living. Inasmuch as this business now deals with practically every known hazard of daily life, it took men with keen vision, and inclination and courage to tackle the unusual, to establish it on a practical basis.

It has remained for Edson S. Lott, chairman of the Board of the United States Casualty Company, to compile the history of these men, all of whom are now dead and all of whom were conspicuous citizens, in a book entitled "Pioneers of American Liability Insurance." The following facts compiled by Mr. Lott regarding the lives of these pioneers, may offer a helpful thought to many men and women seeking their place in business today:

Of the 19 pioneers in the casualty field, only one began his career in the insurance business. The greatest of them all was 41 years old when he took to insurance. Others were 47, 45, 42, and 39—most of them ranged around this age. Forty-two per cent were college graduates; 58 per cent were not. Many were notable outside of the insurance world. Four began as lawyers, ons as a store salesman, one in the diplomatic service, one as a bookkeeper, one as a mining engineer, one as a manufacturer's apprentice, six as office clerks, one as an office boy, one as a printer's devil, and two as sailors.

As Mr. Lott says, it seems remarkable that so many men of such extraordinary attainments, should have embarged in the same unknown enterprise after acquiring success in other undertakings. While risking much themselves to develop a business to alleviate the hazards of the machine age, these men evolved an insurance structure to protect the public against material loss in the most rapidly changing period of the world's history.

IT'S OUR COUNTY

Do you ever get tired of Boone County? Have you ever longed for brighter lights and more people, more noise and bustle? Why not get away for a couple of weeks and satisfy the longing? Don't make the mistake of selling out and packing up the household goods before you go. Just hop in the family bus and look around where you figure you can "do better." Study living conditions, cost of keeping your family, schools and check up on tax rates. See how about securing credit at the stores if you are sick and off of a pay-roll for a few weeks. Fill up on real information, but find out yourself, not believing everything that is told you. Come on back home and figure those costs and the living expenses and conditions in this county. We know the answer. You will become a more enthusiastic booster of the home county than you were before you went away.

ANOTHER SAFETY RULE

As much as most of us tinker around automobiles there is still a lot we don't know about them. But in these recent years as the auto deaths increase by leaps and bounds, and when we are faced with accidents on all sides, we have come to the firm conviction that by far the most important part of the automobile is its brakes. If you go into the study of the cause of accidents in this territory, you will be convinced that a good number of them could have been prevented had the brakes been working as well as the balance of the car. It is strange that all drivers don't realize this. There is not much of an excuse for not keeping brakes adjusted and in good condition. It costs nothing if you are mechanically inclined, and it only costs a small amount if you have to pay to have the work done. But repairs, doctor's bill and lost time, all of which blame fault brakes, quickly run into big money.

SOMETHING ACCOMPLISHED

Few of us work as hard as we feel we do and it is rare indeed to find a man or woman who does not waste time at work. It isn't the number of hours a man spends at his employment, it is what accomplishes while there. Under stress of trouble and worker's unrest this is a severe statement when it is much more emphasis is put on "hours." We waste time failing to reach decisions and in delivering which task to undertake. Too, there aren't many men who work at high pressure less forced to do so, yet we are doing more than our fellow. System is necessary in order for us to really get through our business efficiently. System is as important to the housewife as to the office worker. The housewife who lacks system usually lacks a neat and orderly home.

WOMEN'S FALL HATS LOOK QUEER TO MEN

Women's hats may look like inverted saucepans, assortments of knife-points and other kitchen paraphenalia to the men, but to women they look particularly styled this fall. This is the opinion of Miss Iris S. Davenport, clothing specialist for the Kentucky College of Agriculture. She urges that to be well-dressed it is necessary to study the buyer's personality and buy for that, instead of just taking at random something everyone is wearing. Miss Davenport declares: "This fall and winter, since styles in hats are accented, they must be chosen with special care. Women must study themselves to find out their good points that they want to emphasibe with their hats, get the style they need in mind—and then stick to it through thick and thin and the salesgirl's persuasinns."

INSPIRATIONAL

"And thin ears shall hear a word behind thee saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left.—Isaiah.

Most any girl is pretty sure that she would make a good match for the man with money to burn.

DAVID: TRIUMPHANT FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Psalms 23 and 27:1-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. Psalm 23:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Song of the Shepherd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Song of a Shepherd Boy.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Songs of Faith and Courage.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Steadfast and Triumphant Faith.

What a fitting conclusion to our three-month study of Old Testament characters it is to sound the note of "triumphant faith." The life stories which have passed in review have been true to life, as they have shifted from strength to weakness, from fear to courage, from moral responsibility to moral weakness. But God is the one who changeth not—and we would not close our series properly without the encouraging reminder that the man who truly believes God may know strength out of weakness, courage in place of fear, may like David rise out of degrading sin and defeat into the joy and victory of faith.

Two elemental needs are common to all mankind—provision for the maintenance of life, both physical and spiritual, and protection from the enemies of soul and body. Our first Scripture portion declares the faith of David in God as his providing shepherd and the second as his security from fear.

I. Provision (Ps. 23).

"The Lord is my shepherd." Putting God first in every detail of life means that there will be

1. No want (vv. 1-5). "My cup runneth over," and surely then there can be no lack of any good thing. God is able and willing. We, like David, should trust Him.

2. No weakness (v. 3). "He restoreth my soul." The world is puzzled by the rejuvenating power of the grace of God in the Christian's soul, but it becomes very real to us through the Word, through prayer, through the indwelling Holy Spirit Himself.

3. No wandering (v. 3). "He leadeth me." In an unknown or dangerous country the essential thing is to stay close to one's guide. In the wilderness of this sinful world, we must keep close to our divine Leader. He knows where the still waters and the green pastures are to be found, even in wildest and most barren land.

4. No worry (v. 6). "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life." It was true of David, it is (or should be), preeminently true of the Christian. Someone has said, "If we trust we do not worry; if we worry we do not trust."

5. But—blessed assurance. Not only will the goodness of God follow us all our days, but we shall "dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

II. Protection (Ps. 27:1-6).

"The Lord is my light and my salvation"—could there be any greater certainty that we shall be delivered from every danger and difficulty? To the one who walks in that light there can be

1. No fear (v. 1). "The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?" He is the perfect and final answer to all the fears of life.

2. No failure (vv. 2, 3). "Though an host should encamp against me . . . in this will I be confident," that they shall but stumble and fall. One of the fears that dogs the footsteps of a man is that after all his effort and labor some enemy will come in and destroy. The Christian must often meet wicked and troublesome enemies — but though they be a host, he may be serene in his soul, knowing that if he is right with God the devices of man or devil against him shall only fail.

3. No falling (vv. 4, 5). "He shall set me up upon a rock," and that rock is in "the secret of his tabernacle." The assurance of the believer in Christ is in Him, His work upon the cross and His certain word of promise.

David longed for the house of the Lord; he wanted to return to the temple from which his many wanderings so often separated him. How blessed is our lot as Christians for we have in our own bodies the temple of the Holy Spirit (I Cor. 3:16, 6:19); we have Christ in us as the hope of glory (Col. 1:22). We also long to be in God's house (that is if we really love Him), but if we are born again we have the temple of God wherever we may be.

4. No fainting (v. 6). "Now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me." Just when, humanly speaking, we would faint because of the enemies all around us, or by reason of the heat and pressure of the fight, then God causes our heads to be lifted up and in the moment of apparent defeat there is victory.

5. But—a song. "I will sing praises unto the Lord." The atmosphere of praise is one which the enemy of our soul cannot stand. It is too rare, too pure, too holy for him. Next time he tries to defeat you—why not "Try Praise"? It works!

CANADA'S 1937 TOBACCO CROP LARGEST ON RECORD

The tobacco crop of Canada for the 1937 season was the largest produced in that country and the quality is considered locally to be very good, according to report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. Production from 69,000 acres was rendered at 72,457,000 pounds for the season of 1937 compared with 46,116,650 pounds harvested from 55,000 acres in 1936. The acreage increase for the 1937 season was almost entirely confined to the flue cured type. The low-yielding crop of flue-cured tobacco in the 1936 season, the short of stocks on hand, and the steadily increasing demand for this type of tobacco, were the main reasons for the increased acreage in 1937.

Our idea of a supremely happy citizen is the man who feels as important at home as he does in a lodge room dressed up in a lot of regalia.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

By David M. Porter

Extra! Extra!

We bring you the News Scoop of 1939 and 1940 and place it on your laps.

After consulting the Oracle, Madam Knowsall, the Palmist, and Dame Rumor and all her children we present the Political panorama of the next two years.

In 1939 Senator Logan will be persuaded to run for Governor by his friends and will run on a ticket with John Y. Brown as Lieutenant Governor. The ticket will be backed by the Rhea, Barkley, Brennen, Seldon Glenn machine and will win. When Senator Logan becomes Governor, he will appoint Tom Rhea to fill out his unexpired term as Senator. In a short time after that, he will be appointed to a Federal Judgeship and will resign as Governor to accept the appointment and John Y. Brown will become Governor of the State of Kentucky.

We base this on the fact that the Chandler faction will be split by Frederick A. Wallis, Chas. D. Arnett, Hubert Meredith, John Buckingham and Lieutenant Governor Johnson who will divide the vote and that the other faction will have the Federal machine and a united front.

On asking the Oracle on what it based its opinion, it remained mute. Dame Rumor said, "That's what I hear," and Madam Knowsall, with a woman's perversity, took her eyes off my palm and said, "I see it in the stars."

Random Shots

A test suit will be filed to prove that the Highway Patrol is necessary for the upkeep and maintenance of the highways. This is so they continue to operate, as the Attorney General ruled they could not draw funds from the Highway Department to operate on, and unless they win this suit the Highway Patrol will be abolished.

* * *

Work on the new ten-story office building here in Frankfort will cease because Attorney General Hubert Meredith ruled that the funds collected for the Highway Department could not be used for that purpose.

* * *

If you have a state job, start worrying, because the most drastic cut ever made by any Governor will be made this next month for economy reasons.

The Garden

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

WINTER PREPARATION

September is by no means a winter month, but it is the month in which preparation is made for the garden to pass the winter in comfort. Whether gardens actually can feel is doubtful, but certain it is that if they could speak, many of them would protest to high heaven the loss of plant food, and of garden soil itself, they sustain by reason of winter downpours of rain and snow.

The best way for a garden to pass the winter is under a growing crop, for, thus covered, there is assurance that fertility is conserved instead of flowing away; also, that, by virtue of the matted roots of the "cover crop" tying the soil together, it is held, rather than allowed to float off, down the ditches. Important as these two roles of a cover crop are, it plays one other, namely that, turned under, it becomes humus. Humus, broken down vegetable matter, is essential to regulating the soil's moisture and to enhancing its condition. Much of the common complaint about soil "running together" arises from humus shortage.

Most commonly sown as cover crops are the small grains, rye, wheat and barley. Of these, the first two are more generally used because they are winter-hardy throughout the state, whereas barley, though better, because of its finer, softer straw, can be depended upon to survive severe winters only below the latitude of Lexington.

The small grains furnish no plant food beyond that they have saved and stored within themselves, but there are several legumes that mey be used with them, to manufacture new nitrogen, taken from the air. These are hairy vetch and crimson clover. Vetch is dependable to withstand the winter's rigors anywhere in Kentucky, but crimson clover's survival is not certain, except in the southern two-fifths of the state.

Seeding rates are as follows: Small grains, alone, 2 bushels per acre; in combination with legume, small grains, 1½ bushels, hairy vetch, 20 pounds, or crimson clover, 12 pounds. Alone, small grains may be sown as late as October 15, but the combination, only during September, and in the northern counties not much after September 15.

Home gardeners seldom have a whole acre to sow at one time. In fact, their program should be to sow intermittently—plots and rows as they become available. A good plan is to estimate the total to be sown, procure the seed, and use it at the rate of ¼ pound to 80 square feet. The fall greens may be sown with the cover crop with no harm to either. Soil preparation is not critical. All that need be done is to chop in the vegetable tops and the weeds, with a hot or a mattock, and level with a rake.

Even though only half the garden is sown to cover crop, that much is gained, and the stable manure contemplated to cover the whole garden, may be spread over the unsown portion. Better, is to segregate the "warm" crops in a "late garden," using the stable manure there, to make it the "early" garden of next year. The early or "cool" part of the garden offers opportunity for sowing a cover crop which is let stand to make maximum growth before it must be broken to receive the late or "warm" vegetables of the next year.

The point is to sow something for turning under ,to take the place of warming supplies of stable manure. Commercial vegetable growers respect the part cover crops play in this business; home gardeners may well learn from them.

Supposing, however, that it is not feasible or easily possible to put in a conventional cover crop, there is one other, namely the greens of the cabbage family and which, though they lack in volume of matter to turn under, and fall sort in complete hardiness to grow through the winter, are better than nothing.

The suggestions so far are for those gardeners who cannot have the manure their needs to keep it in first-class condition, and a majority of gardeners fall in that class. There is, however, a lesser group who do not have that difficulty, but who find each year enough stable manure to cover their gardens thickly, with the result that their humus problem is no problem at all. These should so continue, but perhaps change their practice slightly, as follows:

When gardens are level or only slightly sloping, so there is no serious run-off, breaking should be done in late fall, after there have been several severe frosts. The land should not be turned completely over, but the furrow slices should be left on edge.

Breaking at this time, the weeds and crabgrass are given all winter long to rot down. This same coat of dry weeds is sometimes a liability, turned under just before gardening is to begin. There is, too, the aesthetic value of putting the debris out of sightfl

Breaking after cold weather has driven the insects to winter cover interfers with their plans, turning up the deep-lying ones to freeze, and burying so deeply those that hibernate just at the soil surface that they fail to reac the top again.

Likewise, many garden diseases are controlled in part, by turning under the spore-laden vegetable plants as they rot down; many disease organisms are destroyed.

Again, with the garden surface rough, winter rains and snows are more readily absorbed, this moisture becoming of service next season.

If the stable manure is spread early in the winter, its soluble plant food is leached into the broken soil, and its fibers are softened so that it rots down readily to become humus, instead of perhaps plaguing the gardener by making soil "drouthq," spread just before spring-breaking. A fall-broken garden may need plowing again in the spring, though not always. Often merely a deep disking is enough. In fact, a garden broken in the late fall and disked amply in the spring may be earlier by several weeks than a garden whose spring plowing is delayed by unsuitable weather.

That is to say, plow under your garden in the fall, if the humus source is stable manure, but spread the manure soon after plowing. If manure is scarce, grow a cover crop of green manure. Preferably let it be rye or wheat or perhaps barley in combination, with the legumes, hary vetch or crimson clover, where the latter is safely winter hardy. But the time to sow a cover crop is slipping by.

Thus ends the gardening season for 1938.

FATIGUE MAY COME FROM ABUSED FEET

No one is in tip-top working condition when his feet hurt. Aching feet bring on fatigue, irritability, and general nervous strain. After all, most people use their feet harder and more constantly than their heads, anyway—so why not have the equavilent of a "hot oil shampoo," a rinse or even a facial for the feet once in a while?

It pays to pamper the feet, preferably before they get in such a bad shape that nothing will help, not even constant attention. A mild borax solution used several times a week toughens the feet. Carefully fitted house slippers should be worn as much as possible, not just an old pair of run-down shoes that should be discarded. The toe nails should be trimmed weekly, finishing them off with a nail file or emery board. If this is done, then rough edges won't be left to start runs in hose.

It is well to remember that nothing thrives without air, and this includes the feet.

As a final point, and perhaps the main one, wear shoes that are stylish. This merely means shoes that have good lines and are comfortable. It is the ultimate in style to wear shoes that really fit the feet. Extremes of fashion should be avoided.

QUICKSAND FAIR TO BRING BIG DISPLAY

With good crops in most of Eastern Kentucky this year, the annual Robinson Harvest Festival at the Experiment Substation at Quicksand, Breathitt county, Sept. 29-30, will bring out one of the best displays of farm and home products ever seen in the eastern counties, according to Roger Jones superintendent.

Most of the eastern counties of the state will be represented in the exhibits and in many of the events connected with the festival. The displays of garden products and the exhibits of field crops, fruits, flowers, baked and canned foods, house furnishings and home-made articles are expected to be among the best ever seen at this fair and festival.

One division will be devoted entirely to 4-H club work. A 4-H club singing and speaking program will be followed by a club parade in which several hundred farm boys and girls and their parents will participate.

The principal address of the festival this year will be delivered by Dr. Alonzo Fortune, pastor of the Central Christian church at Lexington. He will be presented by Dr. Thomas P. Cooper, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station and dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky.

As in former years, ballad singing will be a feature of the festival.

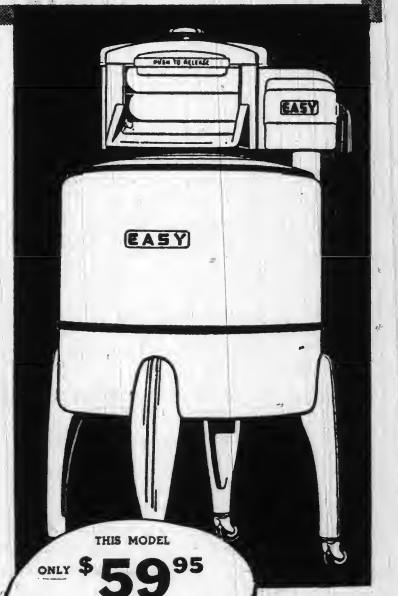
WOODEN CORKS USED IN GERMANY

The Reich Ministry of Economics has announced that various German firms have started the production of corks made of poplar wood for the sealing of bottles, demijohns, cans, and other containers of liquids, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. In order to speed up the introduction of these new corks, the "Raw Stuff Supervisory Bureau for Miscellaneous Materials" has issued a decree making is compulsory for manufacturers of lacquers, oil paints, and other viscuous materials to use corks made of poplar wood for 50 per cent of this production. It is added that 25 per cent of all glass bottles must now be sealed with poplar wood corks, with the exception of cottles containing wine and other alcoholic beverages.

CZECHS BUY MORE U. S. CONDENSED MILK

The sales of American produced condensed milk to Czechoslovagia during the first six months of 1938 were 300 per cent greater than for the corresponding period in 1937, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. This development was ascribed particularly to the recent spreading of the hoof and mouth disease, to important dairy district in Czechoslovakia which has led to a marked preference for canned milk on the part of the consuming public. Basically, the Czechoslovakia market for foreign canned milk is not a wide one, due partly to the preference for fresh milk and cream and partly to local manufacture by a new Czechoslovak firms and one Swiss firm.

KHAKI DYE NOW MADE IN JAPAN



After years of importing khaki dye from Germany for military uniforms Japan is now producing the dye, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. The product is rated by a Japanese Army clothing expert as superior to the German dye. The dye was given six months testing before its manufacture on a commercial scale was started. Technical details of the manufacturing process are being kept secret. The product is said in Japan to be superior to the German dye in resistance to fading by sunlight, wind, rain and perspiration.

GOOD TASTE TODAY by EMILY POST

World's Foremost Authority on Etiquette
© Emily Post.

Should Divorcee Have Shower Second Time?

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is it in questionable taste to give a shower party for a friend who is still young but who is divorced and marrying for the second time?

Answer: It certainly should not be expected, but if some of her friends want very much to give a shower for her there is no reason against it.

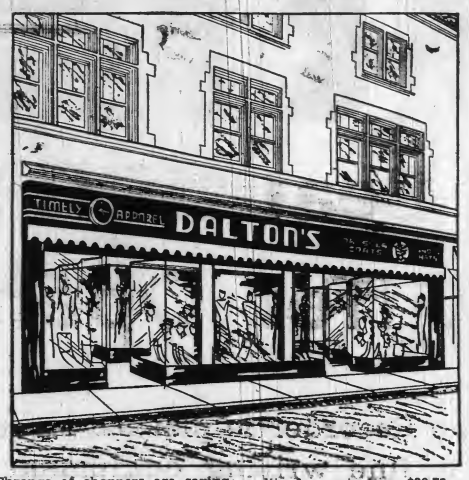
• • •

Wedding Requires "Tails."

DEAR Mrs. Post: It is the custom here in the deep South to give evening weddings. In our community many of these take place at home. In the case I am specifically referring to the bride wants to make the wedding at home as formal as possible, and the groom insists that because the wedding will take place at home the men should be allowed to wear tuxedos instead of "tails." Will you give us your opinion?

Answer: Correctly, the men should wear "tails" — absolutely. Tuxedos are proper in small communities where few of the men have formal evening clothes. It is true that a house wedding may seem to have less solemnity because we know it is not taking place on consecrated ground, but apart from this consciousness of the fact a house wedding can be just as ceremonious and beautiful as a church wedding.

• • •



Meet Miss Sally

DEAR Mrs. Post: Isn't the form, "To meet Miss Sally Brown," in bad taste when most people already know her? I am giving a large tea for Sally, who is a young friend of mine whose engagement was just announced, and the invitations are for the most part going to Sally's own friends whom I have never met. In other words, I am the stranger and not Sally. Will you explain this?

Answer: "To meet" is merely a phrase used to indicate a guest of honor. The fact that she may be known to a guest personally is not considered.

We hear a great deal of talk about "cheap politics," when the fact of the business is all kinds of politics are costly.

Little did the grandparents of we oldsters think the day would come when girls would do any painting except on china.

A likely tale: Once upon a time a man told his boss just what he told his wife he was going to tell him.

We often wonder why it is that the youngsters working their way through college by selling things always try to sell you something you don't want.

Saturday—Law of the Underworld

—"Swiss Miss"

A dangerous romance with two young lovers entangled in the schemes of a ruthless group of gangsters, provides suspense in RKO Radio's "Law of the Underworld." Chester Morris has the chief menace role, with Anne Shirley and Richard Bond as the romantic couple. Eduardo Ciannelli and Walter Abel are in the featured cast. This picture will be shown Saturday.

Frank Borzage was born in Salt Lake City, Utah, and obtained his first dramatic experience from a correspondence course and a backstage job with a stock company.

He worked as a Hollywood extra for Tom Ince before he was given a chance to direct. When the public and critics saw "Humoresque" his status as a big time director was assured.

Such picturs as "Seventh Heaven," "Bad Girl," "A Farewell to Arms," "A Man's Castle," "Mannequin" served to increase his popularity.

Borzage directed Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullavan, Franchot Tone and Robert Young in "Three Comrades," to be shown at the Gayety Sunday and Monday.

An unsung character actress who has been stealing scenes from Hal Roach-M-G-M players for fifteen years makes her latest appearance in "Swiss Miss," Laurel and Hardy musical production which will be shown at the Gayety Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 28th and 29.

She is Dinah, veteran comedy burro, trained by Tony Campanaro, caretaker of the Roach ranch for fifteen years.

Dinah has appeared in more than fifty shorts and features throughout that period. A favorite pet of studio aides, the burro is completely camera-wise and the Roach company has refused several offers up to 500 for her purchase by other studios.

In "Swiss Miss," Dinah pulls the sleigh that carries Laurel and Hary, mouse-trap salesmen, turu Switzerland. Because of her advanced years, special wheels were placed on the runners of the sleigh to lessen the burden of hauling the 322-pound Hardy and his partner.

"Swiss Miss" is a musical-comedy extravaganza laid in the Swiss Alps, presents Laurel and Hardy in their first co-starring appearance in more than a year. Featured in support of the comedy stars are Dell Lind, noted European singing start in her American film debut, Walter Woolf King and Eric Blore.

362,000 POUNDS IN YOUR SHOES

By N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist, People's Foot Comfort, Covington, Ky.

You actually pound 181 tons of weight into your shoes every mile you walk. (Figures based on 150 poundperson).

Do you realize why feet let down, hurt, develop corns, bunions, callouses and more serious ills?

Science has made an amiazing advance in orthopedics of the feet—as great an advance as in other modes of transportation. Science has discovered many new things about feet, and how vitally your hurting feet affect your entire system. It's hard to believe that 50% of maladies traceable to feet are above the hips, but it's true. Do you wonder that when your feet hurt you are utterly fatigued, depressed, nervous, discouraged? Poor feet cause much misery, BACKACHE, HEADACHE, and many body ills may be traced to feet.

Even symptoms like those of rheumatism and arthritis now are being banished with proper surgical and prescription shoes.

Stop crippling your feet today and let's get everything back to normal. Normally there should pass through the feet 15 gallons of blood every 24 hours, then the feet are properly nourished—waste matter properly carried away—and bone repair, as should be, when all this comes to pass, (normally) our feet are healthy and we'll walk briskly (not timid) in walking briskly, we breathe 85,000 gallons of air, that will help to purify the blood that make us feel better all over.

If your feet hurt, is it not wise to check up now and WALK IN HEALTH WITH HAPPY FEET?

LET US EXAMINE YOUR EYES THE MODERN WAY

CLEAN TEETH

If you have trouble with your youngster not doing a severe enough job on his teeth you can help the situation by putting powdered pumice on a damp cloth and rubbing it on his teetth. This can be done every now and then without harm to the teeth. He may take more interest in his daily brushings and the appearance of his dental work.

Shaking Hands Is Matter of Impulse

DEAR Mrs. Post: Should a woman, when taking leave of a small family group, several of whom she met on this occasion for the first time, shake hands with everyone? And would the fact that she shook hands with each one an hour or so before when meeting them have any bearing on your answer? While I know that shaking hands is not so much practiced today as it once was, I wish I knew at what times it was still the polite thing to do.

Answer: The question of whether to shake hands under the circumstances you mentioned is far more a matter of impulse than of rule. If these whom you have been talking with are standing directly next to you, your natural impulse would be to shake hands. But if they are sitting in different parts of the room you would certainly not go from one to the other. Again, if one of them goes with you as far as the door, you would probably shake hands with her, or him, as you say goodby.

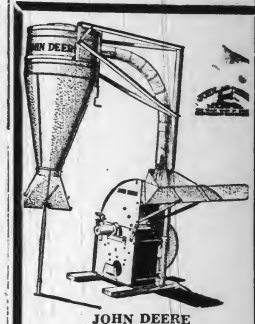
Serving Young Guests.

DEAR Mrs. Post: I would like to give an evening surprise birthday party for my son, asking a dozen or so of his high school friends. Everything is to be simple and the evening will probably be spent in playing a variety of games, as our house does not afford space for dancing. For refreshments, would chicken sandwiches and milk be sufficient? I know all the young people drink milk and hardly any of them drink coffee, and I thought milk would be very easy to serve. Or can you suggest something that you like better?



Answer: If you are sure they like milk better than anything else, this is an excellent reason for serving it. Otherwise, I think I would suggest that you have cocoa for a change, and also because a hot drink would taste better with cold sandwiches.

HOMEMAKERS TO HAVE PROMINENT PART IN RURAL LIFE MEETING

Sessions of special interest to homemakers will have a prominent place in the programs of the annual convention of the American Country Life Association at the University of Kentucky at Lexington Nov. 1-4.

Nov. 2 the national conference on the rural home will be held as part of the National Rural Forum in connection with the Country Life Association meeting. Miss Grace Frysinger, senior home economist of the extension division of the United States Department of Agriculture will preside. Following a general session addressed by Carl Taylor, noted economist, eight discussion groups will be formed. Each group will consider phases of the problem of country-city relations. A summary of findings will be presented at the general meeting the following day.

On Tuesday, Nov. 1 the national Master Farm Homemakers' Guild will meet in Lexington, with representatives from every state. Miss Bess Rowe, of The Farmer's Wife magazine that originally sponsored the homemakers' guild movement, will have part on the program. Members of the Kentucky guild recently met to forms plans for the day.

The National Home Demonstration Council, made up of home demonstration leaders and agents, will also meet Nov. 1. Among problems they will consider will be ways in which women can further the cause of world peace. At a dinner in the evening, Dean Thos. P. Cooper of the Kentucky College of Agriculture will be the speaker.

EVER THUS

Mrs. Clatter — Those Kidmores actually seem proud of their child's nasty temper.

Her Husband—Well, I suppose your parents were just as proud of you when you began to talk.

KITCHEN TOPICS

Mr. W.—Did you see this item about a hen adopting a little of pigs?

Mrs. W.—Well, there's nothing unnatural in the association of ham and eggs.

NO BARBER BILL

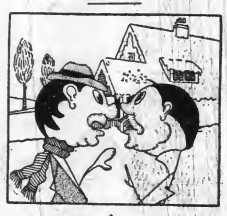
"Say, Jim, don't yer never shave?"

"Naw; jes' let me whiskers freeze, den knock 'em off."

BASE AND BASS

Friend—What instrument would you say were the lowest in the scale of music?

Performer—Those that are base, of course.



FORESIGHT

"What did Tom say when you told him there were seven figures in daddy's fortune?"

"He asked where our five sisters were."

FAIR WARNING

"The wicked stand in slippery places."

"That's right; you'd better watch your step."

HIGH PRESSURE

"Pa, what is scientific salesmanship?"

"Selling a dress-suit to a man who went into the store to buy a collar."

There is many a radio listener who used to think a village band made the worst noise in the world, but who now thinks that would be sweet music compared with some of these modern "swing" orchestras.

TON-LITTER METHOD OF FEEDING PAYS IN HOPKINS COUNTY

Ray Cardwell of Hopkins county made a net return of $123.33 above feed, pasture and labor on the litter of pigs that he fed in the ton litter contest. The corn was valued at 45 cents a bushel and skimmilk at 2½ cents per gallon. These two feeds made up the principal part of the ration; although 8 bushels of wheat and 6 bushels of beans were fed in addition. The 11 pigs weighed 2,460 pounds when they were 165 days old. They sold for $9.30 per hundred or a total of $228.78.

This was near the peak in hog prices for the summer months, thus emphasizing the fact that as the high point in price changes it is well for producers to keep close watch on the changes and vary their farrowing dates accordingly, points out Grady Sellards, extension field agent in swine husbandry for the Kentucky College of Agriculture. The Cardwell litter was farrowed on February 3, 1938, thus after full feeding them for 165 days they were ready to go to market when prices were at about the high point.

The Cardwell pigs weighed 440 pounds wen 8 weeks of age or 44 pounds per pig. This is considered a good weight for pigs of that age. During the gestation period the sow was fed on corn and skimmilk and had some pasture, which accounts for the fact that the pigs when they arrived were strong and vigorous.

Counted in the cost of producing these pigs was a total of 102 hours of labor, including 82 man hours and 20 hours for horse. This was valued at $12.30. The clover pasturage was valued at $9.07 for the litter. Adding this to the labor charge, the total is $21.27 for pasture and labor.

"Ton litter feeding remains one of the most effective means of interesting communities in good methods of hog feeding and management," observes County Agent H. W. Whittenburg.

BARKLEY SUIT THROWN OUT

ATTORNEYS LESTER AND REIDINGER FAIL TO FILE AMENDED PETITION—SUIT FILED SEPT. 16.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 26—A suit contesting the re-election nomination of Alben W. Barkley, Democratic majority leader of the U. S. Senate, was dismissed today by Judge W. B. Ardery in Franklin Circuit Court.

The petitioners, who failed to file a requested amended petition, had no right to sue because the action was not brought in the name of a candidate, the court declared.

Lawrence Riedinger Jr., who, with Charles E. Lester, filed the suit, said he would apply for ruling in the Kentucky Court of Appeals. Both are Newport attorneys.

"We did not file the amended petition in the name of candidate because we 'found out' all of them are Barkley men," Mr. Riedinger declared after the Circuit Court ruling.

Shackelford Miller, state Democratic campaign chairman, said he also knew that Judge John P. Haswell, Republican nominee opponent of Sen. Barkley, "was not interested."

Mr. Riedinger indicated that he was aware Gov. Chandler would not lend his name to the action.

The suit was filed Sept. 16. It charged Sen. Barkley had knowledge of allaged coercion of federal government employes, including Works Progress Administration workers, in connection with his campaign for nomination. Violation of the Corrupt Practices Act was allaged.

ENROLLMENT FIGURES UP

FOR BOONE COUNTY SCHOOLS, ACCORDING TO D. H. NORRIS, SUPERINTENDENT — BUILDINGS ARE REPAIRED.

The schools of Boone County opened Monday, September 12th with every indication of the largest enrollment in the history of the county, according to D. H. Norris, Superintendent. There was a decided gain in the enrollment of several of the schools, while a few showed a slight decrease from last year.

Improvements made in the buildings during the year, include: Three new rooms added to Florence school to take care of a crowded condition in that school; the Petersburg school was redecorated and other minor improvements made in some of the other buildings.

The busses have been overhauled, painted and five new chassis added to the transportation equipment.

This year marks the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the public schools in Kentucky. Plans are being made by the schools for an appropriate celebration of this anniversary. Announcements will be made later as to the time and place of this celebration.

Everything points to a splendid school year. Get behind your local school and be a booster for it. A better school may be the result of your support.

CHANDLER AND BARKLEY JOIN

IN ACTION OF STATE COMMITTEE.—SHACKELFORD MILLER NAMED CHAIRMAN OF STATE DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE.

Frankfort, Ky., September 23—Shackelford Miller, Jr., who managed United States Senator Alben W. Barkley's successful campaign for renomination, was elected chairman of the State Democratic Campaign Committee by the State Central Executive Committee here today.

Choice of Miller was unanimous at a harmonious meeting at which Barkley and Governor Chandler, whom he defeated in the August primary, joined in pledging their support to "every Democratic candidate" in the November election.

The Senate majority leader was Chandler's luncheon guest at the executive mansion prior to the committee meeting.

The pair sat together at the meeting and once interrupted it to talk and shake hands for the benefit of a photographer while Lieutenant Governor Keen Johnson was reading the resolution naming Miller.

"Will the Sergeant At Arms restore order!" shouted Robert Humphreys, Committee Chairman, causing laughter that drowned out Johnson's voice.

Miller, who has been counsel in Kentucky for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said later he would give up that Federal agency employment in view of his selection as campaign manager.

Barkley announced a meeting in Louisville with the nine Democratic congressional candidates to discuss the campaign would be called as soon a convenient date could be selected.

Both Chandler and Barkley urged efforts to pile up the largest Democratic majority this November that "Kentucky has ever had." Barkley urged it "not so much for individuals but for the principles of democracy."

"There has never been a time when democratic government was subject to such a challenge as it is today. not only in this country but throughout the world," the Democratic senatorial candidate declared.

Chandler pleaded for support of all Democrats to "help me make a success of my job" as Governor "for the sake of the party and its candidates, not only this year but in the future," and added:

"As long as we keep faith with the people and give them the kind of good government they want, they will keep us in office."

Barkley and Chandler both caused laughter by their remarks in a lighter vein. Barkley opened his brief talk by saying "This is no time for speech-making. I think Governor Chandler and I will both agree we did too much talking during the primary campaign," and later added, "but when that little family skirmish was over he congratulated me and sent me the kind of pledge of support that I would have sent him had he won."

"I didn't say anything to offend any Democrat in Kentucky," said Chandler with a smile. "I did talk about your trips to Europe and then you went again right after the primary. Those trips must be lucky and next time you go, I'm going with you."

Chairman Humphreys and three Representatives in Congress—Beverly M. Vincent, Second District; Joe Bates, Eighth, and Emmet O'Neal, Third—predisted Democratic success in Kentucky this year "without question," as did Bert O Rowland, Democratic nominee from the mountain Republican stronghold, Ninth District.

"Even in the Ninth the Democrats got out more votes in the primary than the Republicans did," said Rowland, "and so I feel somewhat cheered."

The resolution naming Miller Campaign Chairman and pledging the committee's support to all candidates on the Democratic ticket was introduced by former Attorney General Clifford E. Smith, a Chandler backer.

Barkley said he would return to Louisville and then go to his home in Paducah for Sunday and added he would be in the state until November.

Mrs. Walter Brown, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lee Huey, sister Mrs. Earl Smith, Mrs. M. A. Yelton and Mrs. Genie M. Green attend the annual W. M. S. meeting at Bullittsburg Baptist church Friday.

Tobacco Wilt Is Controlled By Resistant Varieties

Boone County farmers of the Ohio River bottoms have demonstrated that Fusarium Wilt of tobacco can be controlled, according to Jack Dye, assistant county agent. For many years this wilt has caused serious losses to the tobacco growers in the bottoms.

During the past two years, leading tobacco growers of that section have been trying resistant strains of tobacco developed by the Kentucky Experiment Station at Lexington. Three strains Nos. 31, 32 and 33 were grown by A. J. Cook, L. W. Rogers, J. E. Hodges, Ezra Aylor, Howard Huey, J. J. Klopp, and George Shinkle. These men report the following results:

No tobacco of the three resistant strains was affected by Fusarium Wilt though tobacco grown on the same ground in the past had been seriously affected. Non resistant varieties on the check plots this year averaged 20 per cent wilt infection.

The resistant strains were found to be equal in quality and yield to the other varieties grown in that section with the exception of No. 16, which was superior in both points, but was not wilt resistant.

Of the three strains, No. 33 made the largest growth, matured earlier and had the highest quality leaf.

The men who grew Nos. 32 and 33 are saving seed and plan to use these strains next year.

WEED QUOTA WORK BEGINS

ACTUAL WORK IN COUNTY TO BEGIN WITHIN TWO WEEKS—350,000,000 POUNDS ALLOTTED GROWERS IN COUNTY.

The Boone County 1938 AAA tobacco marketing quotas county committee attended the first district meeting held at Falmouth on last Tuesday. The committee hopes to begin actual work on preparation of the quotas in about two weeks.

Growers last spring voted to have AAA tobacco marketing quotas on pounds to sell of 1938 crop. These pounds were set at 350,000,000 to be divided among the producers of burley tobacco. The estimated production this year is in excess of 402,000,000 pounds.

The 1938 marketing allotments on pounds will be based on the 1938 acreage grown, the average number of pounds per acre sold from the farm in the years, 1935, 1936 and 1937, the acreage diverted under the AAA programs during these years, land, labor and equipment with special provisions for farms with allotments under 2400 pounds.

Farmers will need their 1935, 1936 and 1937 warehouse sales bills to verify sales during these years. Meetings will be held over the county in the near future to explain the 1938 marketing quotas, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Every effort ill be made to have the market allotment cards in the hands of producers well in advance of the market season.

NEW BUILDING IS CONSIDERED

BY BOONE FISCAL COURT—WILL CONTAIN OFFICES FOR COUNTY AGENT AND OTHER SPACE FOR ACTIVITIES.

On account of the increase in work now required in the office of the farm agent, it has become necessary to rent quarter outside of the courthouse for the work of the farm department.

The Fiscal Court has under consideration the erection of a building west of the courthouse of five rooms to provide the necessary quarters for that department and also provide space for other activities of the county. The proposed plan provided for a connection with the present building also an entry from the street on the west. Other offices in the courthouse are crowded and in a few years will need necessary room.

The Fiscal Court is planning to ask for a PWA grant for 45 per cent of the cost of the construction and equipment for the building, but the court does not desire to ask the people to vote a bond issue to provide funds for the remaining 55 per cent of the cost of construction. The court desires to erect this building provided that it can be done without an additional tax levy or a bond issue and the court may not be able to do so.

The court will proceed with making the necessary application for the PWA grant and if funds can not be provided without an increase in taxes it may be necessary to drop this project for a time until the court can find a satisfactory way to finance the proposition.

Sixty Five Growers Attend Weed Meetings

Sixty-five growers attended four tobacco curing demonstration meetings held in Boone County last Wednesday, September 21st, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The meetings were held at the farms of Wm. Hill, Idlewild; Joel Gray, Burlington; John Delahunty, Beaver and James Pennington, Walton.

Russell Hunt, tobacco field agent of the college was a principal speaker at each meeting. He was assisted by leading growers who had been conducting fire curing work or had constructed improved type barns. High spots found at the meetings were as follows:

1. The best tobacco seen had been fired and kept dry during the last two weeks of wet weather. The wet weather was found to have darkened many crops.

2. Tobacco that was allowed to get in high case had darkened even though heat was used to dry it out later.

3. The consensus of opinion of leading growers was—tobacco is in danger of changing color and darkening as long as it is hanging in the barn. Color and quality resulting from color are changing factors.

4. Experiment Station No. 16 was found to be the best all around quality variety where Fusarium Wilt was not present.

5. Spraying the plant beds with Bordeaux mixture when two leaves were showing and again two weeks later controlled most leaf spot diseases and prevented the lower leaves for the ripening plants dropping prematurely.

SCHOOL BUILDING TO BE ERECTED

AT BURLINGTON IF PLANS MATERIALIZE—PRESENT BUILDING IN BAD STATE OF REPAIR.

The high school building at Burlington is in bad condition and the school board has under consideration the proposition of erecting a new high school in place of the present building as it is the opinion of architects that the present structure can not be repaired and reconstructed to properly provide for the necessary needs of the school.

The board of education will make application for a PWA grant which will amount to 45 per cent of the cost of the building and equipment. They will sell bonds for their part of the improvement. This will be done by a holding company, and the fiscal court is authorized to act in that capacity without any liability on the part of the tax payers of the county.

The plan is, that the board of education pay as rent for the building is completed, a sum of money that equals the insurance, payment of interest and sum sufficient to retire the bonds as they mature. After the bonds have all been paid the building and equipment becomes the property of the board of education.

It is regrettable that the present building has deteriorated to such an extent that to repair it is practically impossbile.

NO DUST BOWLS

Dame Nature is a most fickle lady. Two and three years ago she swept havoc and despair in her wake, across the western plains in what we term the "dust bowl." Winds carried away as much top soil as the floods of the Mississippi could in a thousand years. Well can we remember the death and destitution those dust storms caused, and this year of blessed rains has given us cause to be thankful that there was no repetition of this sad occurrence. The plains have been given a chance to grow crops and grass with an abundance. But let not man undo what Nature has done for him. Let him not forget those years of famine in the season of plenty. To put into wheat the acres of ground that have been planted with special grasses that keep the soil in place and which guard against dust-winds, to allow seep to graze and destroy the grass roots on this land, is to court a return of disaster. The farmer has learned his lesson and surely realizes the results of drouth. Conservation work has proven effective and rain has been kind, but it behooves all of us not to forget the waste lands, emaciated cattle and disheartened men. Nature has given her "dust attentions" to the west in the past. She may turn to the middlewest and Atlantic coast the next time, for one never can be sure of her intentions. Let's protect the land and ourselves.

TASTY MEDICINE

Did you ever get into a group of more than six people that someone in the gathering didn't turn out to be a complainer? Never saw it fail that some person didn't have to bring on an ailment or two to discuss in public and when they cover one disease they usually have another to take its place. Seems to most observers that the folks who have the most wrong wit them are the quietest about their ailments. And if medicine was pleasanter to take something warns us that there would be more people enjoying illnesses. Doctors and hospitals will benefit if they can find a way of improving the taste of the stuff they serve in spoons and pills. Being sick might become more of a rest-cure and less of a pain if some chemist would find a way to make medicine smell and taste better. And the more valuable the medicine the worse it is. Consider digitalis, quinine and castor oil. If you've never tried them—just wait! Figure how much quicker you'd recover if the medicine had a lilac and carnation scent and tasted like steak and shoe-string potatoes. Most of us find it bad enough to be sick but some medicines make it harder to get well. How about somebody getting busy and making being sick a pleasure and giving us all something entertaining to talk about.

FAMILY MOVIES

Today almost everyone has seen heard about the series of family movies that are produced by several companies, much to our enjoyment. Another studio is planning on making a series of pictures dealing with comic-strip characters. These family pictures are popular and some of their characters are by-words in many homes. It is pleasant to see the typical American home and family with all our ordinary problems and concerns with the real thing brought on the screen. Our hope is that the movies won't kill the American scene in trying to make money so rapidly that they run them "into the ground" as they have gangster, musical and newspaper films, just because the first were good box-office. With all there is to draw on from real human episodes of family life we hope these wholesome pictures we have seen so far, will not become exaggerated and made anything but good family movies.

CONSIDER THE "COP"

We read, the other day, of a mid-western motorcycle officer who said he was going to spend his vacation in a large city close to his home-town. He says that when he gets there he is going to ignore all stop signs and traffic lights, all parking rules and will pay no attention to rights of other motorists. He figures on pulling out on a main highway and parking in the middle to talk to friends. He declares he will laugh at speed laws and maybe go so far as to call a motorcycle policeman a "hick."

This sounds like this officer has suffered mightily at the hands of many motorists and no doubt there are lots of other officers who feel the same way. Perhaps there have been Boone County drivers who have helped contribute to the cause by displaying poor manners and poorer judgment.

ONE OF US

Have you ever noticed that big city papers have long ago ceased to poke fun at the small town because of its easy-going way of living and the very naturalness of its rural resident The best explanation is that a large number of the men editing dailies in big cities originally came from small towns. They know the conditions that exist and when they reach the large city they miss this human touch. Of course we are apt to know more about our neighbor's finances and our children's love-affairs, but let anyone in the family get sick and the whole neighborhood is on hand to help. In many a crowded city folks don't know their next door neighbor's name! Folks aren't allowed to suffer from pain, hunger or lonliness if most of our small town friends know about it. Lacking all the kindliness of a small town is no doubt what makes city editors a lot more generous in their "kidding" of the small town, for he sees the difference between the two, for he used to be one of us.

GAME VALUABLE TO FARMER

The only hunting grounds that could be made available to the general public without the wholehearted support of the farmer would entail the purchase of great tracts of land, to be managed by government officers at a great expense. This is a fantastic picture, even in this area, and most active sportsmen are more interested in gaining the cooperation of the farmer by insuring him real benefits from game.

Every farmer knows game is of value to him in various ways. He, better than anyone else, understands that every form of life is dependent upon many others. He can see the quail, dove and other birds busily devouring the grasshoppers, crickets, cutworms and beetles that would otherwise destroy his crops. He appreciates this to the extent that he can overlook an occasional raid on cultivated food.

As for those values that cannot be weighed in dollars and cents, rare is the farmer who can turn under a bird's nest with his plow; wildlife in its many forms lends to his existence a richness that makes his labor at least a little lighter. In another very personal way game and fish mean much to him. In the past three or four decades many a farmer has sadly taken leave of his boys just as they were coming into manhood. The city with its many attractions had lured them away. This is, of course, bound to continue to some extent and, if the farm loses any more of its appeal, it will be increasingly harder for the farmer to keep his sons around him. Every normal boy loves to hunt and fish. But if wildlife is allowed to be completely destroyed, this hold, too, on the boy will be lost, for what would farm life be without a chance to bag a few rabbits or catch a string of perch or bass during the occasional free hours

There are, of course, many problems to be worked out, but where sportsmen and farmers have joined together in sincere cooperation, practicable game management plans satisfactory to both groups have almost invariably been devised. The Division of Game and Fish urges this cooperation between the sportsmen and the farmers and asks both parties concerned to put their shoulders to the wheel to make Kentucky one of the best hunting and fishing states in the Union.

A COURSE WORTH TEACHING

The Division of Game and Fish states that the fact there is no regular course in the public schools of the counties of Kentucky covering the conservation of wildlife and natural resources does not mean that it is not worth teaching.

No better instruction can be given by any teacher than the simple methods of protecting the trees, birds and small animals of the neighborhood in which is or er school is located. A few moments now and then devoted to the value of planting trees, and protecting those now growing, will serve to impress the youthful mind with the value and importance of conservation. The same is true regarding our outdoor life. Children may be destructive by nature, but leading them into new paths is an easy matter.

Tell them so their childish minds can understand why this country must conserve its natural resources, such as timber, game and fish, and they will realize the necessity of conservation laws and carry this realization with them on through to maturity. The teacher who realizes the value of such instruction is worth more to the community he or she serves than the one who never mentions the subject simply because it doesn't happen to be a part of the regular school course.

—o—

A COMMUNITY SCHOOLHOUSE

We often notice in exchanges that reach our office a tendency in other rural communities to use school houses for other purposes than teaching There are many sections where the school house and the church are the only places in which to hold public meetings, lectures and various forms of entertainment. Often it is not possible for citizens to maintain public halls and that is when the school house affords a substitute and is an added asset to its community.

We should encourage the use of our schools for outside interests as there are many advantages offered that we may overlook if we are not reminded of them. For instance, it is possible for an enterprising town may secure an entire course of lectures and entertainments which can be brought to a small center and will last throughout the winter. Boone County people would find this interesting and beneficial and make a social center of the school house. Today it is possible to install a radio set for an evening's use and provide the residents with many delightful and instructive programs. Speeches can now be heard in this way, and be discussed afterwards before the gathering. Nation-wide topics can be received by air and a regular civic meeting could follow. We are advancing and should make ourselves aware of events that are happening outside of our own circle. Use the school house whenever possible as a civic auditorium.

COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE

No one can overlook the fact that we have at our command more comforts and conveniences, more labor-saving devices, than any other generation before us. It seems that each day holds something new in the way of equipment and time-saving. Women are greatly responsible for many of the recent conveniences that all of us enjoy, and take for granted, in most cases.

With the greatly increased electrical power that has come to many sections of our country where before there was none shows that the majority of homes are now able to boast of electrical appliances. This means there are numerous homes using electric sweepers, washing machines, water pumps, and the greatest of all—electric light. Of course there are many sections which have not benefited by electrical distribution, due to lack of water power. Water power is, therefore the greatest and most convenient power of all and from it the rural communities should all be, if not now, getting electrical energy for use on farms and farm homes.

The wives in any town will tell you of the advantages of having labor-saving devices at hand and many women of the entire country are demanding more and more of these conveniences as relief from backbraking toil. It will be a happier day when every state and community has water power, nature's gift to man.

STORING FRUIT

Do not expose canned foods to freezing temperatures although they should be stored in a cool, dry place. Freezing may cause the glass to break and the food will spoil. If your storage room isn't dark slip paper bags over cans or store them in cardboard containers. Light affects the color of fruit. During hot weather watch your canned foods carefully. If your food is canned properly a temperature of 60 or 80 degrees is not injurious. Jelly is less apt to spoil than fruit due to the larger amount of sugar. Canning in glass is very popular and the fruit will keep for several years though it might become softened.

Give the neighbors half a chance and they'll do all the necessary worrying about your affairs.

Lesson for October 2

THE ONE TRUE GOD

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:2, 3; Isaiah 45:22; Mark 12:28-34; I Corinthians 8:4-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.—Deuteronomy 6:5.

Today we begin a series of studies which should be of unusual value, a consideration of the Ten Commandments in the light of the teachings of Jesus and related New Testament passages. It is appropriate to point out that, far from being outmoded, the Ten Commandments are really the basis of all moral law. They need a diligent re-study and re-emphasis in our day of disregard of moral standards. As interpreted by the Lord Jesus and applied to our daily living, the truth of these commandments should be brought home to every boy and girl and man and woman in our Bible schools.

The lessons begin at the right point, for the first commandment properly deals with our conception of God. What a man thinks about God determines his entire outlook on life. We begin right when we declare that there is but one God.

I. The Truth Stated—There Is One True God (Exod. 20:2, 3).

Jehovah means "I will be what I will be," or "I am that I am." (Exod. 3:14). His very name declares God to be the self-existent, eternal one. How infinitely gracious then is the use of the word "thy" in verse 2! He—the great I AM—is my God.

There are many things concerning which we do not speak dogmatically. There are even Christian doctrines about which spiritual and earnest men may honestly differ, but regarding God we say with absolute assurance and complete exclusiveness—there is but one true God. If He is what He claims to be, if God is not to be declared to be a liar, then it is beyond the realm of possibility that there could be any other God. Hear it, ye men and women of America who in an enlightened land and age bow down in heathenish worship "before the god of gold, the god of self, the god of wine, the god of success, the god of fame, the goddess of pleasure, the god of licentiousness." The one true God says, "I am Jehovah . . . thou shalt have no other gods before me."

II. The Truth Explained.

1. God is our Deliverer (Exod. 20:2). He who brought Israel out of the bondage of Egypt is the one, and the only one who can deliver men from the bondage of sin. If you think that a sinner is not in bondage read Titus 3:3 and Romans 6:16 and then read the verses following in both passages, and not only see but follow the way of deliverance.

2. God is our Saviour (Isa. 45:22). Again note that "there is none else" who can save. "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

It was this verse that led one of the world's greatest preachers, Charles Haddon Spurgeon, to accept Christ as his Saviour when he was just a humble lad. Perhaps some boy or girl who reads these lines may do likewise, and become a great instrument in God's hand. Teacher, perhaps the Spurgeon of the next generation will be in your class today. Win him for Christ!

3. God is Love (Mark 12:28-34). In I John 4:8 the truth is stated in all its glorious simplicity. "God is love." He not only loves us, and calls on us to love Him, and enables us to love both Him and our neighbors, but He "is love." Love is of the very essence of God's nature. He is the source of all true love. He is love.

It was for this reason that Jesus replied to the question of the scribe as He did, directing the whole life of man into love toward God and his fellow man.

It is worthy of careful note and emphasis in our teaching that the recognition and appreciation of this truth on the part of the scribe brought him near to the Kingdom of God, but not into it. He was "not far from," but he was not in it. It is terrifying to think how close men may come to entering without doing so. Reader, have you entered into eternal life through Jesus Christ?

4. God is our Father (I Cor. 8:4-6). Paul is speaking of the eating of meat offered to idols, and points out that such false gods are really nothing. This is true not only of the idols of wood and stone, but of supernatural beings, demons worshiped by primitive peoples. There are such spirit beings, active even in our day in such cults as spiritism, but they are not divine, not true gods (v. 5).

The true God is a Father, yes "the Father," of whom are all things and we in Him (v. 6). As there is but one God, there is also but one Lord, Jesus Christ through whom the one God has wrought all things, and through whom we also come to God. If we have Christ we have all; if we have not Him we have nothing. Is He your Saviour?

BEAN GAME

Fill partly with dried navy beans individual custard cups. Give each person a drinking straw. The object of the game is to remove beans, by means of suction, from the bowls through the drinking straws. Everyone starts at the same time and the object is to see who can remove the most beans within a designated period. Adults better play this—children may get excited and choke on the beans.

Three Types of Overweight

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

WHILE about nine of every ten overweights acquire their excess fat from overeating and underexercising, there is the one in ten that is entitled to the care and treatment that will, to some degree, rid him or her of much of their surplus fat. This one is known as the gland type and the overweight is due to lack of activity of the thyroid gland in the neck, the pituitary gland lying on the floor of the skull, or, in a few cases, the sex glands — gonads and ovaries. Sometimes there is a lack of activity in two or more of these different glands.

Thus when the thyroid gland in the neck is not manufacturing enough juice there is usually a certain amount or degree of what is called "myxoedema," the name given to a condition where the skin is thickened, dry and rough to the touch, and the perspiration is almost entirely absent. The mind and the senses are blunted, memory is poor, and there are obscure pains in the legs; and all the movements of the body are slow and languid.

Dr. Barton

"As a result of this lack of juice there follows an increase in the bulk of the body, with a firm, non-elastic swelling of the skin which does not pit when pressed with the end of the finger. The face loses some of its expression. The temperature and pulse are below normal, and there is a tendency toward constipation."

The above description is, of course, for severe cases, but you may see some little part of the above symptoms in all cases where the thyroid gland is not making enough thyroid juice. And in these cases due to lack of thyroid juice, the extra fat is deposited all over the outside and inside of the body.

The Pituitary Type.

The type of overweight when the pituitary gland on the floor of the skull is not manufacturing enough juice is found as often in men as in women and the excess fat is distributed over the shoulders, chest, abdomen, upper arms and upper legs, but not over the forearms and lower legs. The neat, small wrists, ankles, hands and feet are in great contrast to the heavy body, shoulders and hips.

This pituitary type of overweight begins just before puberty (twelve years of age in girls and fourteen in boys) and commonly attracts attention because of the great amount of starch foods—sugar, candy, bread, potatoes, pastry—that the youngsters are able to eat.

Even in this type of overweight the food intake should be reduced, but in addition to cutting down on the food intake, there is another or extra method of reducing and that is by the use of thyroid extract in the thyroid type, pituitary extract in the pituitary type, and the use of both extracts when both glands in the body are not manufacturing enough juice.

Flatulence in Children.

A few years ago when an infant had an attack of gas (flatulence) and colic very little was thought or done about it, except perhaps to give a little "peppermint water," and sometimes, unfortunately, some paregoric or laudanum. Today the mother visits or consults her physician—usually a child's specialist—and asks what change she must make in the diet to prevent the gas symptoms. The modern mother knows that when there is vomiting, pain, belching of gas, constipation or diarrhoea there is something "wrong" with the diet.

These symptoms of indigestion are usually due to excess fermentation in the stomach and intestine which is made worse by food containing too much sugar or too much fat; so the treatment first given is to cut down on sugar and fat.

"Most of the gas in the stomach and bowel is air which has been swallowed. Air is swallowed not only when food is taken but by many infants suffering from indigestion at other times."

These gas attacks and colic, in addition to upsetting the youngster's digestion and causing him to lose weight, also disturb his sleep, thus further reducing his vitality by lessening the number of hours of rest.

While many remedies will give considerable relief in these cases—baking soda, magnesia, peppermint water, tincture of ginger—the best treatment, as mentioned above, is to use a diet that will not cause gas or colic.

Often the youngster is able to expel the gas readily and no treatment or change of diet seems necessary; but, if not, some distension of the bowel takes place and this pressure is what is known as colic.

PEOPLE'S FOOT COMFORT
9th and Madison Covington

How many times have you said these five little words, "My feet are killing me!" If you have said them only one, you are only one of the millions who walk up and down on this great North American Continent with aching, paining feet.

There are approximately 136 million pairs of feet in the United States and Canada. Experts say that fully 75 per cent of these feet suffer with painful corns and callouses. 45 per cent trap miserable miles, tortured with burning melatahsalgia, (pain at ball of foot and heavy callouses) and bulging bunions. Many believe they are suffering with rheumatism and arthritis and spend hard earned dollars in vain for relief. Misguided millions fall for the age-old last straw of steel arch supports, pads, ointments, liniments and gadgets that finally find their way to the attic or ash can while the unfortunate continues to trap the painful path to foot ruin.

In addition to these tortures that afflict the feet itself, toxin infections, nervousness, irritability and general fatigue, while affects the body above the hips, cause many to age and succumb prematurely.

An amazing discovery developed through foot research has done away with old methods of trying to find relief from foot troubles. This new discovery is changing dreary lives of fatigue and pain from men and women to lives of healthy activity and happiness.

Fall Fun Frolic To Be Held At Rising October 14-15th

The annual Legion Carnival which has been staged in Rising Sun for the past several years, has been converted this year into a Fall Fun Frolic which will be held in this town Friday and Saturday, October 14th and 15th. Giving promise of being something different in the way of public entertainment, huge crowds are expected to attend the two-day event.

In addition to the usual carnival rides, the celebration will be more of a local nature than ever before, with a Soap Box Derby being scheduled for the high light of the second day. Radio talent, contests of all kinds in which every body will have an opportunity to join, and an old fiddlers' contest are only a part of the full two-day program plan.

The Rising Sun Rotary Club is cooperating with the Noah O'Banion Post of the American Legion in staging the affair, and other organizations and clubs of the city are making plans to aid in making it a success.

The Soap Box Derby, the only one to be held in this part of the country this season, will be open to contestants of nearby counties with the only regulations being those of the National Soap Box Derby contests. Generous prizes, which are to be announced later, are to be given to the winners.

NEW THEATER NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT ERLANGER, KY.

The above is an architect's drawing of the New Gayety Theatre, nearing completion

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Go Chase Yourself" Sun. and Mon.—Shoproom Angel Wed. and Thursday, October 5-6, "Kidnapped"

Four members of national radio programs are prominently involved in Joe Penner's new solo starring vehicle, "Go Chase Yourself."

Penner himself is one of the foremost comedians on the air, star of "The Park Avenue Penners," which is rated among the top comedy shows of the airlanes.

Richard Lane, who portrays a bank robber in this film, is also featured on the same radio program.

Making her debut as a leading lady in "Go Chase Yourself," blonde Lucille Ball is currently appearing on Phil Baker's weekly radio broadcast.

"Go Chase Yourself," a rollicking comedy about a group of bank robbers who kidnap a crooning bank teller in his own trailer, was originally written by Walter O'Keefer, well-known Broadway comedian and master of ceremonies.

Hollywood's famous "corn fed" chorus girls are reverting to their original form.

Figures show that fifty percent of them came from farm homes and reduced weight to conform to chorus requirements. Recently dozens of them were ordered to return to their "corn-fed" comfort.

This order followed the signing of dancers for "The Shopworn Angel," which will be shown at the Gayety Sunday and Monday. The period of the picture, starring Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart, is 1917 and research disclosed that chorus girls of that period were from ten to fifteen pounds heavier than their contemporaries.

The much-expected and much-dreaded initiation given every freshman class came yesterday. (Monday). The sophomores acted quite innocent all week and then much to the "greenies" surprise, they were called down into the school basement and "put through the ropes." The punishment inflicted was not very severe. They were fed "river" mud with "worms" in it, spanked, ammonia was applied to their nose. This week the boys have to wear their shirts backwards, green ties, one pants leg up and one down, and different kinds of shoes. The girls are supposed to wear their dresses wrong side out and backward, hair tied up on their head, and no make-up. The freshmen are taking their punishment very good-naturedly.

EXPERIMENT STATION BULLETIN STRESSES CROP-STOCK BALANCE

The importance of a balance between crop production and livestock raising is stressed in a Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station bulletin dealing with farming in the bluegrass region of the state. The proper fitting together of crops and livestock is necessary to provide steady labor for men and teams and also to produce the largest continuous income, it is pointed out.

The long rotation system practiced in growing burley tobacco involves relatively large acreages of grass, and livestock is necessary for the economical use of pasture. Hence, the emphasis placed on livestock, and the factors to be considered in determining the numbers and kind of stock to be raised on a farm.

This 96-page bulletin presents a mass of information about Bluegrass farming, including the production of tobacco, grain, hay and pasture, and all kinds of livestock. Farms studied were located in Fayette, Bourbon, Clark, Woodford, Jessamine, Scott and Harrison counties. Periods covered extended from 1921 to 1929 and from 1932 to 1936.

The purpose of the study was to determine the physical requirements and production obtained for each farm enterprise. In addition, the costs and results were ascertained for each crop and livestock enterprise and for the farm as a unit.

The authors are W. L. Rouse and Geo. B. Byers of the department of farm economics.

MANY PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED AT STATE RURAL LIFE MEETING

Problems with relation to tenants and share croppers, people on low-income farms and on poor lands, the dependency of farm and city people on each other, consumption and production will be discussed by noted speakers at the annual meeting of the American Country Life Association. This meeting, which attracts delegates from all over the United States, will be held at the University of Kentucky at Lexington Nov. 2-5.

Rupert B. Vance, sociologist of the University of North Carolina and well-known writer in his field, will discuss the tenant and share cropper situation. Vance has specialized in studying conditions in the Appalachians. Dwight Sanderson, the president of the Association and one of Cornell University's most noted men in the field of farm economics, will speak at the evening meeting Nov. 2.

"Rural Statesmanship in the South" will be Dr. Frank L. McVey's subject. Nov. 3. President William J. Hutchins of Berea College will also be on the program with President McVey.

"How Can Farm Women Express Themselves?" will be the subject of Mrs. Raymond Sayre, Ashworth, Iowa. Mrs. Sayre has been on the Farm and Home Convention programs in Kentucky and is well known to the farm women of this state.

Carl C. Taylor of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will lead several discussion groups.

Features of the separate meetings of the Youth Section will be talks and discussions by students from various parts of the country. For instance, at the round table discussion on "Major Trends and Issues in Rural Life" young people on the program are from Michigan, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Kansas and Maryland. Handicraft, fine arts and recreation, rural philosophies, hobbies and similarly diverse subjects will be discussed at the youth section.

Many of the Youth Section meetings will be held in cooperation with the general session.

Miss Byrd Kendall of the University of Kentucky home economics department, secretary of the South Section, will preside at a fellowship luncheon the first day.

Historic points in Kentucky will be described by Mrs. Maude Lafferty, of the university extension department.

The last day of the session, Saturday, Nov. 5, a tour will be made of the Bluegrass stock farms, of Berea College and of a rural school to observe the work in manuel training and community improvement.

STYLES TURN BACK TO 18TH CENTURY

Miss Iris S. Davenport, clothing specialist for the Kentucky College of Agriculture, points out in a circular on fall styles that things fashionable in the 18th century are high style for 1938-39. Colors that are rich and yet muted old sway, as do ornaments and hair dress not seen for many a day.

Europeon celebrations, such as that commemorating the 300th anniversary of the birth of Louis XIV of France, and even foreign wars affect styles in every community in the United States, Miss Davenport believes. The birthday celebration and the movie "Marie Antoinette" are responsible for tiny waists, emphasis on sleeves, the featuring of bows, buttons, braid and embroidery as trimmings, and for use of smoother, richer fabrics. The distinct Chinese influence often seen has come from interest in the Orient at the present time.

Miss Davenport calls attention to the high hair dress, and to long sleeves. The trend is toward narrow shoulders, she says, though sleeves are full at the top. The should arrangement and the fullness of bloused effects all serve to accent the tiny waists that American women have not sought for some time.

MAKE LATE TURNIPS INTO SAUER RUBEN

Preserving turnips in a way much like sauerkraut is described in United States department of agriculture Circular No. 389. The product is called "Sauer Ruben." Preserved in this manner, turnips add variety to the daily winter fare, just as sauerkraut does. The characteristic turnip flavor is changed somewhat and much of the strong odor is gone.

Fall turnips make the best sauer ruben. For finest flavor and texture select medium-sized turnips, those ranging from 2½ to 3½ inches in diameter. Smaller ones lack flavor and larger ones are inclined to be woody and tough. Those with the highest sugar contest give best results.

Wash and shred the turnips, using a shredder if possible. Do not peel. A little less salt is needed for sauer ruben than for sauerkraut—about 3½ ounces of salt to each 10 pounds of shredded turnip. Mix thoroughly in enamel pans and then put into open stone jars until the desired acidity is reached. At this point the product can be packed in various ways. The main thing is to exclude air thruout the fermentation and storing process.

If the sauer ruben is packed in glass jars, the lids are left loose to allow the gas released by fermentation to escape. Once each 24 hours the lids are removed, the shreds pushed down into jars by means of a wooden spoon or blunt wooden stick any overflowed juice returned to the jars, and the lids replaced. Gas ceases to be given in about four days, after which time the jars are sealed tight and stored at room temperature. The fermentation period is about 12 to 14 days and the product is then ready for use.

GRANT HOMEMAKERS

The Grant Homemakers' Club met at the home of Mrs. Lee McNeely, September 23, for their regular monthly meeting. There were eight members present and several visitors. We are always glad to have visitors meet with us.

We had a very interesting lesson on "Fall and Winter Styles."

We will install our new officers at the October meeting, since we were unable to do so at this meeting for various reasons.

Times change, but you can still learn more about a girl by being married to her ten minutes than you can by courting her ten years.

UTOPIA CLUB MEETS

The Boone County Utopia Club held its first meeting of the autumn on Thursday evening at the home of Mary Rector, Petersburg. Mr. J. W. Whitehouse, State Leader of 4-H club work at the University of Kentucky was the guest of the evening.

The girls spent a few minutes discussing and making buttons from such things as walnuts, acrons, buckeyes, etc., while the boys talked of farm accounts and their value. They decided to take up a discussion on weeds at the October meeting.

Following the short business session at which several interesting reports were given, the program was led by Mary Rector, who gave a very good talk on the settlement of Petersburg.

The girls furnished recreation and refreshments for the evening as they were losers of the membership contest.

An enjoyable evening was spent by all.

BURLEY TOBACCO PRICES

The size of the crop is the most important single factor in burley tobacco prices, says the fiftieth annual report of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. The quality of the crop is of next importance, and the amount of tobacco in storage the third most important factor affecting price. Allowance, of course, must be made for the general level of all commodity prices. The consumption of burley tobacco has been increasing at the rate of about three and a third million pounds a year.

TWINS AND TRIPLETS MAKE MERCER FLOCK HIGHLY PROFITABLE

Forty-four ewes making up the flock on the farm of Fred D. Martin in Mercer county, Kentucky, this year produced 32 pairs of twins, three sets of triplets and nine single lambs, and returned a gross income of $667, according to a report to the State College of Agriculture.

Thirteen of the 82 lambs died, but the 69 lambs remaining brought a total of $576. The ewes, which were two and three-year-old Idahos, sheared 9 pounds of wool each, which sold for 23 cents a pound.

Twenty-four lambs averaging 82 pounds went to market on May 7, bringing $10.55 a hundred. On May 21, 26 more were sold for $10.25. They averaged 81 pounds. June 18 the remaining 19 lambs, averaging 80 pounds, sold for $10.10 a hundred.

On August 1, Mr. Martin put three registered Southdown rams with the 44 ewes, dividing them in three flocks and changing the rams every Monday until October 1. Then one ram was put with the whole flock until December 1.

Mr. Martin began feeding the ewes about December 15, using a mixture of three parts of corn, two parts of bran and one part of cotton seed meal. The lambs received coarse corn meal in a creep from the time they were three weeks old until they were sold.

SMALL FLOCK PAYS IN LOGAN COUNTY

A small flock of sheep kept around the place at practically no feed cost, other than pasture, added more than $900 to the income of Meade Berry, a Logan county farmer, in the last three years. Berry cooperated with County Agent John R. Watlington in demonstrating the profitableness of small farm flocks.

In 1936, 26 ewes produced 34 lambs and 168 pounds of wool worth $372, and this year from 30 ewes he produced 33 lambs and 221 pounds of wool which sold for $358. Receipts for the three years totaled $1,056, with a feed cost of approximately $129, not including pasture.

Mr. Watlington believes that small flocks would be profitable on many Logan county farms.

Squirrel Season Closes Saturday

The squirrel-hunting season which comes to a close on October 1st, was a very successful one, according to reports received from all sections of the state by the Division of Game and Fish.

The squirrel season, which opened a month earlier this year—formerly August first and now July 1st — seemed to be unsatisfactoray to a majority of sportsmen. Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish stated that he had been informed by large numbers of hunters of their desire to have the season moved to a later date. This action, according to Major Brown, could not be taken until the next session of the Kentucky Legislature which will be held during the winter of 1940.

With the closing of the squirrel season on October 1st, the only game left to hunt in season will be the dove. The dove season closes October 31st.

The duck season, which opens 15 days earlier this year, due to changes made by the federal government, starts on the 15th of October and closes November 28th.

The rabbit and quail which are hunted by more sportsmen than any other type of game in Kentucky, will be open for hunters on November 24th through January 9th.

The open seasons being arranged in this manner gives a continuation of hunting on through the fall and winter months up to January 9th, when all seasons are closed.

Dr. T. B. Castleman, of Florence, was a brief caller at the Recorder office Monday and has his farm on U. S. Highway 42 posted against hunting and trespassing.

FORMER CITIZEN ARRESTED SAT.

IN ERLANGER BY KENTON COUNTY AND ST. LOUIS, MO., OFFICIALS—WANTED IN NINE CITIES.

J. K. Hicks, 116 Crescent Avenue, Erlanger, former resident of the Union neighborhood, who police say is wanted in at least nine cities and four states on cold check charges was arrested Saturday night by Kenton County Patrolman Harry Nuxoll and John McCann and Modesto Gentilini, St. Louis deputy sheriffs.

Sheriff Henry Bernat is holding Hicks on a Kenton Circuit Court bench warrant issued Feb. 3, 1938, following a grand jury indictment.

The indictment charged Hicks sold to R. H. Prebble, Lexington a trailer in the name of the Miller Morgan Co., Cincinnati, and accepted a down payment check of $144.75, although he, Hicks, was not employed by the company.

The Kenton County sheriff's office said Hicks sold an auto under similar circumstances in Covington while posing a representative of the Covington Auto Sales Co.

"Cold checks and these fake auto sales have been Hicks' racket. Hicks is the greatest pen and ink artist in the business today, Geo. Langley, county police chief said.

Deputy Sheriffs McCann and Gentilini said an attorney representing Hicks in St. Louis was influential in getting the Erlanger man a $1000 bond he subsequently skipped. The fugitive from justice warrant followed.

Officers said Hicks is wanted on cold check or swindle charges in Covington, Campbell county Mason county, Louisville, St. Louis, Atlanta, Columbus and Cincinnati.

His arrest was preceded by an investigation of St. Louis, Indianapolis and Kenton county authorities.

Al Seiter, Covington detective said Hicks was arrested in Covington several years ago, but that the charge was dropped when a cold check was "made good."

Daily was brought to Burlington, where he received treatment by Dr. M. A. Yelton. McCormick escaped injury.

FISH AND GAME CLUB TO MEET

THURSDAY NIGHT, OCTOBER 13 —FARMERS ARE REQUESTED TO ATTEND MEETING, SAYS EDWIN JOHNSON, WARDEN.

The Boone County Fish and Game Club will hold a meeting Thursday night, October 13th at the courthouse, Burlington, at 7:00 p. m. This will be the first meeting held by the club in several months.

Game Warden, Edwin Johnson, stated last week that all farmers and landowners are especially invited and urged to attend this meeting.

At this time there is only one species of game to be hunted, and that is the dove. Mr. Johnson believes that if the farmers and landowners of this county will cooperate with the conservation department, many of law violators will be brought to justice.

Mr. Johnson explained that with the closing of the squirrel law Oct. 1st, many hunters from the larger cities will come into the fields, killing any kind of game he can find. If any landowner seeing hunters on his property, will notify the warden, the hunter will be investigated, and if guilty of violating the law will be arrested.

Many interesting points of fish and game conservation will be discussed at this meeting, which will be of interest to everyone. Don't forget the date, Thursday night, October 13th.

BOONE COUNTY ACP NEWS

By H. R. Forkner County Agent

Tobacco growers are urged to secure their 1936 and 1937 tobacco sales bills for use in establishing their 1938 tobacco marketing quotas.

One thousand seventy-five of Boone County's 1400 farms cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation program have been checked by field supervisors for 1938 benefit performance. The field work is expected to be completed in two weeks.

The tobacco acreage on all farms must be checked before a 1938 tobacco marketing allotment card can be issued. The 1938 tobacco marketing allotment will be based mainly on two important factor: (1) The acreage grown this year and (2) the average yield per acre sold from the farm during the last three years. Land, labor, equipment and special consideration for small allotments will be included. This means that farms growing tobacco but not cooperating in the A. C. Program will need to have a report on the 1938 acres of tobacco grown.

Farmers normally growing more than 8 acres of wheat but not selling more than 100 bushels on the market were notified of their 1938-39 wheat acreage allotments the past week. This statement included only the acreage to be harvested in 1939 without deductions in ACP payments. Wheat seeded with a mixture of at least one peck of rye or barley per acre does not count as wheat if harvested.

Commercial growers have not been notified of their 1939 wheat acreage allotments because the county committee is contesting that the allotment is too low.

Present reports indicate Boone County farmers are going to make a record in earning their 1938 soil building allowances. Lime pulverizers are beginning to operate day and night and a heavy fall seeding of grasses and legumes is under way. Boone County's 1938 soil building allowance is $60,800. That part of the 1938 allowance not earned before October 31st, is lost. Be a 100 per cent farmer, earn 100 per cent of your 1938 allowance before the closing date.

4-H Clubs Completing Best Year On Record

The members of Boone County's 4-H clubs are completing the biggest year since the beginning of club work in the county. They have had the largest enrollment, the most successful fair and Rally Day and showed a high quality of project work on the tours.

Now they are completing that work as the seventh series of meetings is being held. Members are turning in their project record books and officers and leaders are working to get them all in this week. A record book from every member is their goal, according to Jack Dye, assistant county agent.

The final meeting of the year, which will be in November, is the community achievement day when the work of members and leaders is given recognition. This will also be the reorganization meeting.

NATURE VERSUS MAN

Nature provides for her creatures and when man interferes with her plans of survival of the fittest the outcome may be not only distastrous to man but unhealthy to all nature. There is a scheme of things to protect these creatures man terms the "dumb animals." A forest ranger recently explained about the bounty that had to be lifted on mountain lions. Due to the deer that had been killed in large numbers by the lion a prize was put on his head and there was a wholesale shooting along with the annoying coyote, much to the pleasure of the deer and rabbit. Previously it had been mostly the old, slow and ill deer ensnared by the mountain lion. Now by clearing the field for him the deer become more numerous and gathered in large herds, becoming diseased and ill, leaving the old to survive and thinning the ranks of the young fawn. Needing more food the deer robbed the streams of their greenery where trout feasted and this resulted in fewer trout. Mr. Cottontail, because of more freedom since the coyotes had been shot, riddled crops to his heart's content and caused much sorrow in the land. Nature had provided for all these emergencies with her plan of having the mountain lion kill the old deer, the coyote keeping the rabbit in his place and the trout supplied with its stream-greenery in peace. Man feels his superiority in handling a situation, but nevertheless he lifted the bounty on the head of the mountain lion —with apologies to Mother nature.

WHENCE WHITTLING?

To have the pencil sharpener replace the pocketknife may be a step forward in our civilization, but it sort of does away with the old custom of whittling. In the old days you found more of this than you do today, in fact you even find folks around Boone county who don't carry pocketknives. Whittling served as a means of attracting attention to such objects at watch charms, paddles or paper knives, which took form while the whittler meditated a horse trade or merely shaved for the sake of shaving. The pocketknife was an American institution and whittling the art of the idler as he leaned against the barn-door or the rail-fence or perhaps with his foot on the hub of the wagon wheel as he passed the time of day. Maybe cigarettes have taken the place of the knife for when men meet they are more apt today to reach for a cigarette than a stick. Of course a plug of tobacco was necessary to a good whittling job, it seemed to give it a finish. A knife could fashion a tooth pick as well as sharpen a pencil, it could clean nails and cut hang-nails with ease. It was as essential in a man's pocket as automobile keys are today. We know that all whittlers haven't disappeared and we hope they won't for they remain a sign of the contentment of the yesterdays and a symbol of something typically American.

CONSIDER CHILDREN

Everything seems to be boiled down to the easiest way and we are more confirmed in our belief when we hear that they have discovered a way to take the curse off of spinach by making sherbet out of it. It may be of interest to many a local youngster who has eaten it with forbearance and distate—and sometimes not at all. Once in while you come across a child who likes spinach but we'll bet even he would prefer to get it in the form of ice cream.

Then they follow up this innovation with the practical suggestion that instead of feeding children cod liver oil direct, it can be fed to the cows who give the milk to the children to drink.

There will be many an oldster who will hoot at the idea of making "babies" out of their children by making things too easy for them. But consider the many sugar-coated items made easy for adults. Why not give the children a break?

—o—

HORN HONKERS

One thing living in a small town does, it eliminates the need of an ordinance against horn-honkers. It has been necessary to make laws governing this situation and though they aren't always enforced they are still on the "books." This is true in many of the large cities. It is a nuisance to have a driver back of you persist in honking a horn for you to be on your way, and this often happens when you are stopped for a red light. It is mighty annoying for a sleeper to be awakened at night by someone in his neighborhood tooting an automobile horn. There is more chance for this to occur in larger communities, but every community has someone who will be inconsiderate of the other fellow. We might ask for a ticket for the horn honker as well as for any other automobile infraction.

CHARACTER IN KNEES

Now that skirts are shorter it is wise to warn the women-folk that a Hollywood dance director, Leroy Prinz, states that knees denote character. Long knees indicate a considerate nature, loyalty and dependability; round knees, talent and artistic temperament; chubby knees, laziness; hollow knees, true feminity. Ladies, look to your knees! It would be almost impossible to tell about a girl's nature in the days of the long skirts but even then they could be read at the beach. It isn't nearly so difficult now, and especially with day time dresses getting shorter. Of course the disposition can chance it at a down-to-the-floor dress party but with such wisdom from such a source as Mr. Prinz, it is better to wait for the street costume. The sweetest looking gown at the ball may hide the nastiest disposition in the home.

—o—

A GOOD CITIZEN

You will not be able to vote until you are 21 years of age, but that does not mean that you must wait that long to become a citizen. Every boy and every girl can be a good citizen, in an important sense of the world, now.

One duty of the good citizen is to obey laws. And this includes those minor regulations which every community has for the benefit and protection of its members. For instance, the good citizen picks up paper and banana skins after a picnic. He obeys the park regulation. He is careful not to damage equipment at the playground or recreation room.

Boys and girls can also take an active part in improving their neighborhoods. Often juvenile clubs undertake such projects as cleaning up an unsightly vacant lot, planting trees and flowers where they are needed, and doing similar work to make the community a more attractive place.

All these things are the test of your citizenship today. They also offer a chance for you to show your qualities as a leader.

LEADERSHIP

The engrossing problems of the past quarter century have called for leadership of a high order. The problems to this day call for leadership of even a higher order.

But they require more than mere political leadership, important and vital as this may be. They call for industrial leadership; for intellectual leadership; for moral and spiritual leadership that will lift us out of the sordid considerations of the moment and lift our very souls into the clear perspective of imperative duty and mutual obligation.

Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln were unwilling that posterity should remember them for what the people had done for them. They were unwilling that their future status in history should be measurely merely recounting the offices and honors which the people heaped upon them and which they bore with diginity.

They wished to be remembered by a grateful posterity because of what they had done for the people and not for what the people had done for them.

As we reflect upon the great spirits from whom we have inherited our traditions, whose memory puts to shame every mean or selfish thought of self-aggrandizement or world preferment, may we not exclaim with the poet:

"True as the dial to the sun,
Although it be not shined upon,
Our loyalty is still the same,
Whether it win or lose the game"

The challenge to democracy we find not only in our midst. It is world-wide. On extended fronts in every hemisphere autocracy raises its head and dares the democratic process and concept to enter the lists in their own defense.

We in America are passionately devoted to peace, and all the agencies and powers of government are being exerted to preserve it here and to reestablish it abroad. It is the fervent prayer of every sincere believer in the peaceful advancement of society that these exertions shall be crowned with success.

LONG WINDED SPEAKERS

Josh Billings once remarked that when some speakers strike oil they forget to stop boring.

After an hour and a half of preaching, a clergyman who was given to both long-windedness and fanciful flights of oratory, was just getting warmed to his sermon on immortality.

"I looked up to the mountains," he shouted, "and I said, 'Mighty as you are you will be destroyed; but my soul will not.' I gazed at the ocean and cried, 'Vast as you are, you will eventually dry up, but not I.'".

And then he wondered why his hearers smiled.

Lesson for October 9

SPIRITUAL WORSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:4-6; 32:1-8; John 4:19-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.—John 4:24.

"The First Commandment bids us to worship God exclusively; the Second bids us to worship Him spiritually. The First Commandment forbids us to worship false gods; the Second forbids us to worship the true God under false forms" (Farrar). Israel had lived among the Egyptians, a people known for their worship of images, and was about to enter into Canaan where there were many false gods. The Lord was therefore careful not only to forbid the worship of other gods, but also to forbid the making of images of any kind, whether they represented the many gods of heathendom, or were attempts to symbolize the true God. In studying this lesson we need to exercise care lest we miss the point by talking only of the gods of wood and stone which the heathen worship, and fail to apply the truth to any improper use of images which may prevail in our land and in the present day. Let us lay aside any preconceived notions and face the facts in the light of God's Word.

I. True Worship Required (Exod. 20:4-6).

This commandment expressly forbids idolatry in any form. The injunction is twofold. (1) Men are forbidden to make any material likeness which to them represents a being to be worshiped. It matters not whether it be an image of what men believe God to be like, or the image of an angelic being, a heavenly body, in fact "anything that is in the heaven above," or on the earth—such as a man or animal; or under the water—such as a fish. (2) If such objects have been made either by ourselves or others we may not bow down to them, nor render any service to them. Let us all examine our religious ceremonies and practices in the light of God's commandment.

Observe that obedience to this command brings rich blessing to "thousands" (v. 6), whereas disobedience is a curse not only to the man who disobeys, but also to his descendants. Spiritual blight so often runs through whole families, while spiritual life just as often blesses those who follow us. Blessed is the man who gives his children and his children's children a true spiritual heritage, but woe be unto that man who passes on the darkness and spiritual death of unbelief to his children!

II. False Worship Established (Exod. 32:1-8).

It comes to us as a real shock that a people so highly privileged, so well-instructed and so ably led as Israel should turn to idolatry. The story reveals the depravity of the human heart. Their excuse that, Moses was gone was only an excuse without foundation. They did what their hearts wanted to do, and they used his absence to put forward their wicked desires.

Let us be careful lest we be misled or indeed, mislead ourselves into creating a God after the concept of our own heart and mind. We, like Israel, may be tempted to "make us gods" to which we will bow down and worship. It may not be out of place at this point to warn against a folly which seems to have laid hold of the church, that of almost deifying our Christian leaders. A man who is called to speak for God is a highly privileged man, worthy of our support and our respect. But let us remember that he is only a servant, an instrument in God's hand, and let us never be guilty of worshiping and serving "the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever" (Rom. 1:25).

III. True Worship Defined (John 4:19-24).

One would suppose that a truth so vital and fundamental as that stated in these verses would long since have completely saturated the life of the church as well as of the individual believer. "God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

Even in this year of our Lord 1938, countless men and women still believe that worship has something to do with place (vv. 20, 21) or race (v. 22) or some other external device or formula. What a pity that this should be true when the gracious and delightful way to worship is through personal spiritual communion between God and man.

Deadening formalism is not our only enemy. There is the powerless preachment of modernism—and in all honesty must we not admit that even some so-called fundamentalism has in many respects lost the true spirit of the faith for which it rightly contends. We who cherish the truth of God's Word will shun modern liberalism. We may not be tempted to obscure the worship of God by formalism. But we may be in danger of a dead orthodoxy, being as someone said "orthodox about everything except I Corinthians 13"—or failing to worship God in spirit and in truth and not living out that spirit in loving service to our brethren.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

By David M. Porter

Charles K. O'Connell, Clerk of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, at thirty-three years of age, is the youngest state official of the present administration. He became Clerk January 7, 1936, upon the death of his father, W. B. O'Connell, who had been twice elected to that high office. His father was connected with the Clerk's office for approximately twenty-five years and was a Deputy Clerk in 1904 when Charles O'Connell was born in Frankfort, Ky.

Moving to northern Kentucky at an early age, Mr. O'Connell received his elementary education at the Notre Dame Academy, Newport, Ky. The family moved to Louisville, Ky., where he was graduated from high school. In 1929 he was graduated from the University of Louisville with a degree of Bachelor of Arts.

During his college days he was co-director of a dance orchestra, the Cardinals, which enjoyed much popularity in Louisville and central Kentucky. He became a Deputy in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals, serving in that capacity until 1932. He is single, a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity, the Elks, Kiwanis International, President of the Frankfort Y's Men's Club, and an active member and past President of the Frankfort Community Players.

(By Charles K. O'Connell, Clerk of The Court of Appeals)

The Clerk of the Court of Appeals, termed a constitutional officer, is elected by the people for a term of four years, elected at the same time and in the same manner as the other state officials. The office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals was originally called the Office of the Supreme Court of the District of Kentucky. The first Clerk, John May, served in 1785. There have been twenty-four clerks down to the incumbent.

There are three ways of appealing a case to the Court of Appeals: On an appeal granted by the lower court, on an appeal granted by the Clerk of the Court of Appeals, and on an appeal granted by the Court of Appeals. The latter covers actions in which judgment of between two hundred and five hundred dollars is involved. The three terms of court held each year are known as the winter, spring and fall terms and begin respectively on the first Monday in January, the second Monday in April and the third Monday in September. To enable the court at the opening of each term to proceed with the business before it, the clerk dockets the Commonwealth and civil cases from the seven appellate districts. If parties have filed briefs at the call of the docket the cases are ordered submitted.

When an opinion is handed down by the court, copies are made in the clerk's office and sent by him to the attorney's on each side and also to the Kentucky Law Reporter and the West Publishing Company. Statistics show that the Kentucky Court of Appeals decides more cases than any other Supreme Court in the United States.

Part of the duties of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals include the handling of applications for the taking of the State Bar Examination. Two examinations are given each year and all applications and fees are filed with the Clerk. These records are carefully kept. Upon the filing of the report of the successful applicants, licenses are prepared by the Clerk and embellished with ribbon and the seal of the court. The Clerk's office receives no renumeration for this service,

The Clerk of the Court of Appeals is exofficio Chairman of the State Board of Election Commissions. This Commission is composed of a Republican and Democratic member appointed by the Governor. The duty of the Commission is to appoint Republican and Democratic County Election Commissioners for the state. The same are made from lists of names submitted to the Commission by the County Executive Committees. The State Board canvasses the returns of Primary and General Elections and issues certificates to the successful candidates.

There are other duties of the Clerk in connection with the items mentioned which are of a clerical nature and too numerous to embody herein.

Random Shots

James Cammack, popular young official who was appointed to the Court of Appeals to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Judge Clay, was called to swear in his successor on the Public Utility Commission, John Kirtley, of Island, Ky.

Surface Harmony holds sway with the Democrats in Kentucky. Shackelford Miller has agreed to resign from the RFC and will be campaign chairman for the Senate rate this fall. He served in the primary as Barkley's chairman and it wasn't until after the primamry that it was discovered by the opposition that his place with the RFC made him ineligible for the place.

Finis was written to the Governor's poisoning case last week when the Grand Jury turned in a report that they believed he was poisoned but could find no criminal intent.

The reduction of employees has actually started. More than twenty employees of the Welfare Department were let out last week, among them were Dr. Watters and Assistant Commissioner Brewer.

Don't Worry About Heart

By
DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

WHEN you feel a pain in the region of the heart—directly over it, below it, above it or to one side—and you are not doing any work, and it is not after eating a heavy meal, it is not likely that there is anything wrong with your heart.

Again, you find yourself getting out of breath easily, and you have been rightly told that this is the first sign of a failing heart. If, however, you have been eating too much acid food—eggs, bread, cereals, meat, fish—the blood and tissues are likely to be acid and are asking for more oxygen, which would mean having to breathe oftener.

Dr. Barton

Perhaps also, you find your heart beating rapidly, perhaps at a rate of 84 to 90 instead of the usual 72 beats to a minute. If you are under any tension or strain, or have just eaten a hearty meal, it is normal or natural for the heart rate to increase.

Your Doctor Can Tell.

However the thought is not that you should ignore or tell yourself to "forget" the pain in the chest or under breast bone, the getting out of breath easily or the rapid beat of the heart. The very fact that you have these symptoms and they "get on your nerves" should cause you to say to yourself, "I either have heart disease or I haven't, and I'm going to find out about it."

Fortunately your family physician can tell you in a very few minutes whether or not your heart is sound. And if he finds it sound then you can give the pain, shortness of breath, and the rapidity, even some irregularity, no more thought. And even if he finds some actual heart trouble, does this mean that you are doomed to the life of an invalid till you pass away?

By simple tests—exercise, holding the breath, and others—or by means of the electrocardiograph and fluoroscope, your doctor is able to estimate just what your heart can do "safely." He will give you some simple instructions as to rest, exercise, and food; (medicine is sometimes given to steady the heart, and also to a great extent to steady the upset mind).

By following this simple advice faithfully there is no reason why you should not live your allotted span of life.

So, don't worry about your heart. It is sound or it isn't. Even if not sound, all you need to do is to follow the doctor's advice, and so live "safely."

Food Supply in Body Fat.

When an overweight individual decides that he or she is going to reduce weight for health or appearance's sake the first and longest step toward attaining the normal figure and weight has been taken.

The second step is to get a thorough examination by the family physician, particularly heart, blood vessels and kidneys. There have been cases of collapse and death following a strict reducing diet which could have been avoided had the overweight undergone examination and taken six months to a year to reduce instead of three or four weeks.

If the physician considers it safe to reduce and supervises the amount and kinds of foods that will be eaten during the reducing period, then there will be no going back to the full diet on the first sign of a little weakness or faintness. This is when so many overweights give up the struggle and if they are not under a physician's supervision they are wise to give up and get a fresh start.

The third step or point to remember is that whether the overweight eats a large or a small quantity of food, his body is going to require just a certain amount. If he eats more than this the extra food will accumulate as fat in and on his body; if he eats less than this required amount of food, the body is going to get that extra food needed from some place. And the place the body gets the extra food it needs is from the overweight's own body—his excess of stored fat.

"From the standpoint of nutrition the increased fat deposits or fat depots of the body represent so much excess energy; consequently in reducing the weight an attempt is made to call forth these fat deposits. This is done by supplying a diet which has less than the amount needed to maintain the body structure and supply it with the energy needed for its daily work. This compels the body to draw on its reserve energy—the fat depots."

If in addition to this the body is required to do more work or exercise, then an even greater call is made on these fat depots to supply this extra energy. This is the reason that less food and more exercise will always be the ideal method of reducing weight. This method builds muscle (strength of body) and reduces fat (an inactive tissue).

Supply Of Game Fish Decreasing Due To Soil Erosion

Thousand of fishing sits that once were the joy of fishermen are providing less sport and are yielding fewer fish this year than ever before as a result of soil erosion.

In all parts of the country muddy waters and silt are diminishing the stock of fish. The reason is plain. Eggs laid by game fish cannot survive when streams are full of mud and erosion debris. Also, blanketing of the bottoms of streams with ooze and silt is destructive to food supplies, such as insect larvae, worms and small plants.

The decreased supply of game fish in our streams has not come about suddenly. Unwise use of the land over a period of years, resulting in an excess run-off of rain water, which washes tons of soil into the streams, has been steadily cutting down the rate of propagation.

There is another reason why soil erosion can be blamed for spoiling once-popular fishing locations. Many species of fish will thrive only in deep-clear water and when silt fills stream channels the fish leave, because they cannot live in the sluggish, muddy waters of shallow streams.

Until there is more general control of soil erosion fishing conditions will not improve greatly. Unless silting of stream channels is stopped, there is no reason to expect that the fish can be brought back and stock restored in any great numbers.

The farmer, as well as the fisherman and the hunter all will benefit by controlling erosion and all should be heartened by the knowledge that a real effort is being made in this State to improve their sport.

Warning Issued

It has come to the attention of the Covington, Ky., field office of the Social Security Board, according to Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager, that a number of merchants have accepted the Social Security Account Number as a basis for cashing checks or extending credit with a resulting loss in funds and merchandise.

Just recently a number of merchants have cashed checks for a party who used his account number card as his sole means of identification. Mr. Decker, therefore, issued the following warning.

"The public is warned not to accept the account number as the basis for cashing checks or extending credit. It is possible for a man to go to one of our offices, giving a false name and a fictitious address and thus obtain a Social Security number. Any one who cashes a check on this supposed identification is very foolish in my opinion.

The same is true is an even greater degree in the case of metal checks or other devices used as a permanent records. We don't object to the use of any type of permanent records, but we do say that there is only one official Social Security card and that is issued by the Social Security Board thru its fieldoffices."

Mr. Decker further added that the Social Security Board has not authorized any firm to sell metal plates on which permanent records of Social Security numbers are recorded.

NEW POULTRY YEAR STARTS IN OCTOBER

Persons who make a business of poultry raising begin a new year of record keeping in October. The pullets now are ready to begin producing eggs, and the period of advancing prices is at hand.

"Poultry Pointers for October," issued by J. E. Humphrey of the Kentucky College of Agriculture, indicates that feed prices are down considerably from last year. This fact helped poultry raisers make a profit in the year which ended Sept. 30. Owners of 41 demonstration flocks reported a profit, compared with a loss for the preceding year.

Mr. Humphrey advises flock owners to give careful attention to housing, feeding and disease control. The layers should have comfortable and clean quarters. The best feeding method is to keep grain and mash in a hopper. Since eggs are mostly water, there should be a clean supply always before the birds.

Overcrowding is a serious matter, since it prevents proper feeding and laying and tends to spread disease. There should be 30 feet of hopper-feeding space for every 100 pullets, and a nest for every five or six birds.

Bluegrass, alfalfa or clover range reduces feed costs and makes for health and egg production. If not available, then supply alfalfa hay or some other green feed. Every effort should be made to control lice and mites.

PRODUCTION AND WEIGHT DETERMINE DAIRY COW RATION

The weight of the dairy cow and the volume of milk she is giving determine largely the amount of feed necessary during the winter months when pasture is no longer available, recent research shows.

George Harris, extension dairyman at the Kentucky College of Agriculture, cites experiments conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture at the National Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., which show that most economical production is maintained when each cow receives about 3 pounds of silage for each 100 pounds of weight. A 1,000-pound cow should have 30 pounds of silage. Twice each day the cow should also have all the good hay she will eat.

The amount of grain depends on the breed, the volume of milk produced, and the quality of the roughage. A Jersey cow producing less than 10 pounds of milk and receiving all the good roughage she can eat should need no grain, but for every pound of milk over 10 pounds she should get one-half pound or slightly more of grain. A Jersey giving 20 pounds of milk thus would receive 5 to 6 pounds of grains. A Holstein that is giving 16 pounds of milk or less, needs no grain, but for every pound over 16 she should get four-tenths of a pound of grain, the experiment showed.

Feeding tests were not conducted with Guernseys and Ayrshires, but it is probable that Guernseys should have a half pound of grain for every pound of milk over 12, and Ayrshires a little less than a half pound for every pound of milk of over 14.

The feeder must also be guided by the condition of the cows. If cows are getting thin, give them more grain. If they are getting fat, reduce the grain. They should be kept in a medium state of flesh, neither fat nor thin.

Every time someone mentions about the man who swallowed a fork, it brings to mind what a consolation it must have been to his family that he didn't eat with his knife.

REMOVING SOOT

You can remove soot from any heating unit with salt. Heat two pounds of medium grade salt (barrel salt prefered) to remove all moisture. Scatter it on bed of red-hot coals in fire bowl of stove or furnace. Open all drafts and allow it to burn. Fumes from salt will destroy carbon in soot, leaving a fine white ash which will be carried away by the natural draft in the chimney.

TO PRESENT KENTUCKY NATIVE CULTURE AT NATIONAL CONVENTION

Kentucky's native culture will be presented to young people and farm leaders from throughout the United States when they gather Nov. 1-5 at the University of Kentucky at Lexington for the annual meeting of the American County Life Association. This is the first time the association has met in this state.

David Donoho, of the Breathitt county schools at Jackson, will talk on "Developing the Rural Arts" at a luncheon Thursday, Nov. 3. He will discuss work in the rural arts in the county he represents. "The Culture in Agriculture" will be the subject of Dr. Willem van de Wall at the same luncheon. Dr. Van de Wall is professor of music education at the University of Kentucky and director of the Carnegie Community Music Study.

Other subjects of wide import will be taken up at the meeting. One of the most significant will be a discussion on "The American Farm and the International Situation" by Dr. Chris L. Christenson of the University of Wisconsin. What about markets for American goods? Can we sell to foreign countries without also buying from them? How would a war affect the situation? These questions may be dealt with by this Wisconsin educator.

Few problems have received more attention recently than that of producer-consumer relations. How much can and should consumers pay for a given product? Can they pay high prices very long unless wages and salaries receive a proportionate boost? What is a fair return for the producers? What part does speculation play in raising prices to the ultimate consumer Murray D. Lincoln, of the Ohio Farm Bureau, is to take up the whole problem of "Producer-Consumer Relations" at a dinner at the closing session.

Dr. William J. Hutchins, president of Berea College, will be on an evening program to consider "Programs for Rural Improvement in Appalachia." On the same program will be President Frank L. McVey of the University of Kentucky, who will report on "Rural Statesmanship in the South."

The national picture as to people on low-income farms will receive the attention of Louis H. Bean of the United States Department of Agriculture. Practical programs for improvement will be presented by Dr. B. L. Hummel of Virginia. A panel discussion on the subject will be led by Dr. Carl C. Taylor, noted sociologist and author within that field who is on the United States Department of Agriculture staff.

The convention will be held in the Memorial Building at the University of Kentucky, and will be attended by hundreds of Kentucky farm men and women, and agricultural leaders, sociologists, religious workers, educators and other persons interested in rural life.

Unfortunately, every town has a citizen or two who has never done anything more than add to the population.

FEET AND THE LAW OF TISSUE

By N. Tulch at People's Foot Comfort Shoe Store, Covington, Ky.

There is a natural law constantly at work in the tissues of the human body. We must understand that bone, muscle and nerve consist of millions of ever changing tiny bodies called cells. These cells are held together with the tissue bluids and substances of the body.

Therefore bone, muscle and ligament respectively share the influence of this law, that constant tension causes wasting especially in the feet in the body weight which they carry about and support is not evenly distributed and balanced throughout the twelve major bones of the foot framework.

If ligaments are stretched, due to long and careless standing especially those which bind the weight-supporting and key bones together, these ligaments finally yield in about the fifth or sixth year to strain and abust, and pull away from the bone attachments.

The rest which the night affords is not enough to counteract continuous strain during the day.

This same law holds true of the muscles and tendon attachments of the feet which lift the body weight on the metatarsal heads or pivots. On the other hand, constant pressure causes wasting of tissue.

If the muscles do not hold the weight-bearing joints of the feet in proper dovetailing and interlocking action, these joints become deranged, misshaped and deformed because of the pressure of the body weight upon their point surfaces.

When we consider that we drive hundreds of tons of aggregate weight into the twelve major bones of each foot every day that we lice, it is easily understood why feet degenerate.

Can you be well with unhappy feet? Those headaches, those backaches, those leg pains may be caused by the shoes you are wearing.

ONCE, pins were so expensive that only the rich could afford them. There was a law allowing the sale of pins only on the first two days of the new year and on those days, the women of wealth would obtain from their husbands "pin money" to shop for their pins. The expression held through the years, extending its meaning when pins became cheap, to any money used for personal expenses.

ABC's in Manners. Red Nails Are Tabu

SHOULD schoolgirls ever use bright red finger nail polish either in school or at parties after school hours?

Answer: I think deep red finger nail polish atrocious on any one, but on a schoolgirl quite as bad as vivid make-up, or if anything, worse. Nails neatly manicured are of course proper as long as the color of the polish is not too conspicuous—especially while the girl is very young.

• • •

Answer Own Bell

WHEN entertaining a young man and the door-bell rings and there is no servant to answer the door and the other members of the family are upstairs, should the girl go to the door or should the young man offer to go for her?

Answer: I think she should go in her own house.

• • •

Or Needs a Hint

IS IT ever considered proper for a girl to assist a boy with his coat?

Answer: No, not unless he has a broken arm or is otherwise disabled.

• • •

Note of Sympathy

WHEN a school friend's grandparent dies, and one has often stayed in this school friend's house and therefore knows the family, would it be nice to write a letter to her mother when it is the father's parent who has died?

Answer: Under most circumstances you would write to the mother, but if you know the father equally well, then it would be equally proper to write to him direct.

• • •

Light Evening Dress

MAY light colored evening dresses be worn in the winter time? I don't mean velvets or any of the heavier winter materials, but am referring to chiffon and taffeta?

Answer: I think this is a question of fashion. At present dresses of light colored thin materials are being worn everywhere, and such being the case, they are particularly suitable for young people. Clothes in winter are somewhat more elaborate in design and less skimpy in their use of material.

USES GARDENS TO COMBAT PELLEGRA

Gardens are helping Miss Mary Louise Scott, home demonstration agent in Breathitt county, Kentucky, combat pellegra, that deficiency disease that still persists in some regions. Vegetables and fruit will prevent pellegra, and Miss Scott conducts a year-round campaign in the interests of more and better gardens and orchards.

Making more effective the health work of Miss Scott, the Robinson Experiment Substation, a branch of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station located in Breathitt county, has demonstrated that good fruit can be produced on the hills of Eastern Kentucky. Many kinds of large and small fruits are being successfully grown on the Experiment Substation land.

Miss Scott has been stressing late gardens, so that fresh vegetables may be had until winter. Her program of home canning goes on from mid-summer through late fall. Lest some family fail to have a good garden, Miss Scott visits hundreds of farm homes to give more or less personal supervision to vegetable production, and to the canning of the surplus products, in order that there may be no "winter" diets, which too often mean pellegra for both children and adults.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday "Gun Law"
Sun. and Monday—"3 Blind Mice"
Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 12 and 13—"Port of the Seven Seas"

A perilous romance on the old Arizona frontier backgrounds the thrill-laden adventure of a U. S. Marshal in "Gun Law," starring George O'Brien.

Saved from dying of thirst on the Painted Desert by a girl and her preacher-father, O'Brien accompanies them to the town of Gunsight. While in realty O'Brien is a federal officer investigating outlawry in this area, he poses as a notorious desperado to gather evidence about the bandits' organization. His plan lead to a series of exciting complications, numbering a hold-up, a near-lynching and half a dozen thrilling battles.

The swift action is tempered by a romance between O'Brien and Rita Oehmen, a dark-haired newcomer. Ray Whitley is also featured under David Howard's direction of "Gun Law."

* * *

Wallace Beery has seen as much action in his pictures as any member of an Arctic or African expedition.

Before Beery began work in "Port of Seven Seas," which will be shown at the Gayety Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 12th and 13, Director James Whale had a conference with the star.

"Wally," he said, "let's try and get through this picture without an accident. I appreciate the fact that you throw your heart and soul into your pictures, but try to keep the realism down to a point of safety."

In "The Bad Man of Brimstone," Beery accidentally shot himself in the leg. In "The Good Old Soak," he caught his hand in a slot machine, and while doing the fishing sequence in "Old Hutch," he had to have a fishhook cut from his hand.

"China Seas" found him in excellent form. He didn't get hurt. But his luck didn't carry into "O'Shaughnessy's Boy" when an elephant stepped on his foot and a tiger barely missed clawing him.

KITCHEN KINKS

Too much water in pie crust makes it tought and hard. Too little flour allows crust to break easily . . . Never open a waffle iron until the steam ceases to come from the iron. The waffle is then done . . . Tissue paper makes an excellent polish for window glass and mirrors. Wash, dry, and polish with paper . . . Allow one teaspoon of cream or hot water for each egg when making omelets.

Most fathers today wouldn't know they owned a car if it wasn't for the repair bills the balance of the family runs up for them.

New softer-riding coil springs; new high-torque engine performance; new "true-steady" steering and a new "safety signal" speedometer with automatic warning lights head the list of innovations on this "Roadking" 2-door sedan.

Diet Note — Dr. James A. Rev. Noble Lucas, pastor of the Bullittsville and Petersburg churches informs us that the International Convention of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Churches) will be held in Denver, Colorado, in October from Sunday the sixteenth, until Friday the twenty-first, 1938. This is an annual Convention represting nearly two million members in the United States, Canada, and other parts of the world. The attendance at these conventions has ranged from five thousand up to thirty thousand. There are prospects this year of an unusually large attendence.

The purpose of the convention is to give consideration to the great Social and International problems which are confronting us today. Direction is also given to the plans and programs of the various National Organizations such as the Home. and Foreign Missions Societies and departments of Religious Education, Benevolences, Pensions and Evangelism.

Speakers of world reputation such as E. Stanley Jones; Charles Clayton Morrison, Editor of Christion Century; Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, President of the Federal Council of Protestant Churches; and many others equally noted will appear on the program. Fraternal delegates from Britian, Australia and Canada, will also bring interpretative messages of conditions existing in their countries.

Many delegates are planning a vacation either before or after the convention. The month of October in Colorado has record over a period of fifty years, of warm comfortable weather with sunshine almost every day.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Curtis left Monday for Watanga, Tenn., to visit his mother, Mrs. Helen Curtis. They will visit the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee, and before returning home will visit friends in Virgina and North Carolina. Sergant Curtis completed his ninth year Friday, Sept. 30th in the U. S. Army, and Saturday, October 1st he reinlisted for three more years. He is stationed at Ft. Thomas, where they will make their future home.

One year has passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away;
God took him, it was His will,
But in our hearts, he liveth still.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANNING MEALS

A meal planning circular, issued by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, gives the following suggestions:

Distribute the protein, carbohydrates and fats throughout the day, so one type of food does not predominate at any one meal.

Do not serve the same food twice in one meal, as tomato soup and tomato salad, or creamed carrots and carrot salad.

Do not serve more than one strongly flavored food at a meal, as onions and cabbage.

Balance the soft, solid and crisp foods. That is, do not serve all soft foods at one meal and all solid or dry at another.

Do not serve several acid or several sweet foods at one meal.

Season foods mildly, but tastily.

Avoid serving several foods difficult to digest at the same meal, such as pork chops, other frieds foods and pie.

Serve left-overs in a new form and always attractively. When possible, do not serve them at the next meal.

Have foods prepared in a palatable form. Greasy meats and vegetables and poorly seasoned foods are not appetizing to most persons.

Serve light desserts, as raw fruits, fruit sauces or simple gelatin and ices, with a heavy meal.

Serve rich desserts, such as pie, steamed puddings, shortcakes and rich ice creams and rich gelatin desserts only with a light meal.

Why is it that it is easier to get most men to make the third payment on a car than it is to get them to make the first payment on a home?

TOBACCO QUOTA MEETINGS HELD

BEGINNING FRIDAY OF THIS, WEEK—GROWERS TO BE NOTIFIED BY MAIL AS TO TIME AND PLACE OF MEETINGS.

A series of community meetings on the 1938 AAA tobacco marketing quotas will be held beginning Friday of this week and carrying thru next week, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Growers will be notified by mail of the meetings in their respective communities.

The 1936 and 1937 tobacco sales from the farm must be secured before the 1938 tobacco marketing quotas can be set up for any farm.

A series of all day community meetings beginning this Friday will be held over the county. Each farmer attending these meetings will receive personal attention in filling out his quota forms.

Growers will be notified by mail the date and time of the meeting in their community. Those attending are requested to bring the sales bills or farm account records from their farm for the 1936 and 1937 years. The 1938 quotas, to a large extent, will be based on the average yield per acre sold from the farm the past three years times the number of acres grown this year.

The Carrollton warehouses have sent Boone County growers' weights to the county office. Growers selling their tobacco at other warehouses and who have lost their weights should write for same. The county office is glad to be of any help possible in this work.

Prof. E. E. Kirkwood Receives Appointment

The many friends of Prof. E. E. Kirkwood, former principal of the Burlington high school, were very glad to welcome him back to this community this week and to learn of his recent appointment to fill a position at Austin Peay Teachers College, Clarksville, Tenn.

His duties will be to serve as a regular member of the faculty, which is a study job with no summer vacations. He will start immediately and he and his wife expect to make Clarksville, their permanent home.

Prof. Kirkwood has been completing his Master's Degree at the University of Cincinnati, at which place he had obtained the position of department assistant. He was chosen from a group of some 200 teachers at the University to fill the Clarksville vacancy, which is in itself a very honorable attainment.

We will miss these fine people here in Boone County, but wish them the very best of success at their new post in Tennessee.

ALLOWANCES, SAYS H. R. FORKNER—FARMERS URGED TO EARN 100 PERCENT OF THEIR ALLOWANCE.

Farmers are advised that only 13 days are left to earn the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program allowances, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Those allowances not earned by October 31st are lost. Last year farmers lost $13,559.00 through failure to carry out sufficient soil building practices to earn 100 percent of their allowances.

Farmers this year have a golden opportunity to profitably earn 100 percent of their allowances. The minimum seeding of 10 lbs. of seeds other than straight timothy on old pastures pays $1.50 per 10 pounds used. Seed this fall is the cheapest in years. For example the seeding of 10 pounds of unhulled sweet clover seed would cost the farmer only 75c; 10 pounds of crimson clover only 78c; 10 lbs. of Korean lespedeza unhulled, (this year's seed) only 60c; a mixture of lb. of timothy seed and 5 lb. of korean only 55c and for such seeding the farmer will receive the 1.50 per 10 lb. used on their farm allowances.

Any mixture of timothy or red top with one or more pounds of blue grass, orchard grass or any of the clovers also pays $1.50. The seeding of 15 lb. of vetch in small grains pays $1.50 per acre. Most farmers however, will seed all their cultivated land this year to a small grain and grass seed this fall. Vetch will be used if the small grain is to be turned under next spring. Every old pasture has a few thin points and if seeded to either this year's Korean, sweet clover or a similar crop and top dressed with a light coat of manure or straw, will give good results.

The following list of lime dealers are working day and night to supply farmers with agricultural limestone delivered to farm in truck load lots.

Charles Kraft, Ludlow, Ky., R. 2 crushes stone on farm and will deliver for $2.00 per ton.

Orville Y. Kelly, Burlington, R. 2 crushes stone on farm for around 80c per ton.

John W. Moore, Burlington R. 1, delivers for $2.00 per ton and will spread lime at an extra charge of 50c per ton.

S. M. Graves, Hebron delivers at $2.00 per ton.

R. W. Auton, Demossville, Ky., crushes on farm and delivers, Walton, $2.00 per ton. Delivered in Burlington $2.15 per ton.

W. J. Craig, Burlington for $2.00 per ton and will spread at an extra charge of 50c per ton.

Each ton of agricultural limestone used counts $1.50 per ton. More farmers will use agricultural limestone this year than ever before in the history of the county. Agricultural limestone properly used lasts for 10 years and brings the greatest increase in clover and grass yields.

Only 13 days remain to earn 100 percent of their allowances. Certainly with the splendid opportunities offered this year, every farmer wants to earn 100 percent of his allowance. Farmers having any questions on their allowances are urged to come to the county office or call Burlington 412. Credit can be arranged for all farmers who do not have sufficient available funds to carry out soil building practices.

Camp Ernst Road Receives Blacktop

The Rural Highway Department of Boone County blacktopped the Camp Ernst road to the foot of the Camp Ernst hill last week. This improvement will add much to the road and will no doubt lengthen the life of the road and reduce the upkeep.

The Rural Highway Department has blacktopped several roads in the county during the past few months, and if this set-up continues in operation, practically all of our roads will receive this treatment.

No matter how this first game ends, Belleview will play Bob & Gene in second half of the double header at 3 p. m. fast time.

These should be the best two games of the season as Belleview can be eliminated by losing both games.

Don't forget the first game will start at 1 p. m. fast time.

Mr. Daniels, died of a heart attack, according to James P. Riffe, Kenton county corner. He was 79 years old.

Besides Roy, he leaves two other sons, John W., of Dillsboro, Ind., and Edward of Pendleton county, and three daughters, Mrs. Mary A. Chandler and Mrs. Genie Kidwell, both of Covington and Mrs. Nettie Lilly.

Rhode Island Hen Makes Laying Record

A Rhode Island Red hen, belonging to W. E. Osborne, Florence, has taken the year 1938 to make an all-time laying record that will probably be unbroken for years to come.

As the story goes, Mr. Osborne owns but the one hen, and she starting laying on the 12th day of January, did not miss a day until the 28th day of September. Her record is 259 consecutive eggs without a day's rest.

The writer is not so well posted on the egg situation, but this sounds as though it will take a mighty good hen to beat this one.

HICKS RETURNED TO ST. LOUIS, MO.

WAS TRIED MONDAY BEFORE J. G. VALLANDINGHAM AT OWENTON — WAS ARRESTED IN ELSMERE.

James K. Hicks, who was to be tried in Burlington Monday morning on an insanity charge was taken before Hon. J. G. Vallandingham at Owenton as the Governor of Kentucky had grated a requisition from Missouri, where he is under indictment for a felony.

Judge Vallandingham upon a hearing ordered him turned over to the officials from St. Louis Mo.

Hicks had been arrested in Kenton County and Judge Northcutt ordered him returned to Boone County as he had been sent to the State Hospital, Lakeland, from this county.

Judge Vallandingham decided that there was but one question before him, that Hicks was the person wanted in St. Louis, and for which the Governor of this state has issued his warrant. The question of whether he was sane or insane or had escaped from the institution could be used at the trial of the offense of which he was charged in the St. Louis courts.

Red Clover Seed Threshed For First Time In Many Years

Red clover seed was threshed in Boone County this fall for the first time in several years. Some of the men threshing seed were Reuben Kirtley, of near Hamilton; T. W. Rice and Dr. R. C. Garrison, of Burlington and E. J. Aylor and J. C. Aylor of Hebron. Growers reported yields of from one to two bushels per acre.

Experimental work shows that failure to use adapted varieties is one of the greatest causes of crop failure. It would probably pay many Boone County farmers to secure good Kentucky adapted strains of clover and produce seed for market. Farmers could profitably pay from one and a half to two times as much for known adapted seed as for seed of unknown adapted qualities.

BE WORLD-MINDED

It is necessary today to teach our children tolerance and sympathy for others in becoming Children realize the importance of opinions of embittered oldsters. world-minded and less biased by world trade through their study of geography, its nations, peoples and commodities. They are aware of the importance in our lives of these goods from foreign shores. They are appreciative of what other nations offer in the way of literature, art and music, which is the property of the world in its beauty, rather than the possession of one country. Travel books are widely read by our young and that is worthwhile reading. To be sure that all literature that is placed before them is unbiased and free of propaganda is most necessary in cultivating a true appreciation for world-mindedness. There is a great difference between the two. It takes more than a childish mind to distinguish between the two. It takes more than a childish mind to separate them and should be handled by old heads, and level opes! Our boys and girls are our ambassadors of good will and neighborliness and it is in their hands that lies our future. We must show them the need of understanding the rights of individuals and the need of love and harmony in dealing with nations as well as with men. They must realize that international affairs affect them and to admire world heroes of peace rather than of war. This nation is a democracy and a country able to instruct its children in the ways of nations not called democracies. But to do this it is necessary to be cautious and aware of both sides of every discussion. Better still, drill into the young mind the fact that religion and government cannot be separate states, they must go hand in hand—no nation is great without religion, and our children have been taught the principles of love and faith.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Oct. 9 to 15 has been designated as Fire Prevention Week. If one cared to take an active part in the observances of the numerous weeks on the calendar set aside for special consideration it would keep us a nation of observers. However foolish some of these weeks may be the calendar needs Fire Prevention Week for its usefulnes s in the preservation of lives and property. It will be well for all citizens to call attention to safety programs presented by fire departments, schools and insurance companies. By means of efforts this week has averted a fire loss of $1,000,000 every day for the past ten years, according to the General Manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. But the 10,000 lives and more than $300,000,000 a year in property damage still remains a factor. Let every home owner check up on all heating equipment, to clear out all rubbish that may be a fire hazard. Children should be cautioned concerning the handling of matches and of building fires during play. Use common sense but surely this isn't necessarily a precaution and concern for simply one week's observance. The loss of lives and property goes on throughout the year. Consider the fact that the loss of life due to fire averages twenty-seven people a day. Consider!

HITCH-HIKERS

There are a large number of motorists who still pick up thumbers as they go along the public highways. This, in spite of all warnings to the contrary. One would think the various instances of this with dire results to the motors, which can be read in most any large daily paper, would be a lesson in caution. The youth picked up who proved to be an escaped inmate of a home for feeble-minded, later broke into a house and seized a young woman with a threat to kill her, could have proven less merciful with the man who gave him the lift. The young fellow who, picked up by a driver, shot him in the chest to get the keys to the car and to rob his benefactor. You may say these cases are exceptions and perhaps they are. Yet there are many others like them happening all the time. Many a deserving chap will be passed by due to these cases of assault. It may look unfriendly to pass by a hitch-hiker when you have room in your car for him—but stop at your own risk and remember "it might happen to you."

SEE BETTER

We can remember when a youngster with glasses was a rather unusual sight. It was not for these young to be encumbered with spectacles but for the old who had seen too much for too many years! Boys and girls hated to wear them and thought they looked "sissy." A girl couldn't picture a beauty in glasses. Grown-ups were apt to say glasses were a "graft" and "why didn't they have to wear them in my day." But today parents are more enlightened regarding the care of the eyes and due to glasses many a dull child in school has been able to get good marks. The headaches and squinting are relieved when the eyes are taken care of properly. Often it is only during early years that a child must wear glasses, that they can be discarded when the nerves are strengthened and ready for service. You see many children in glasses today and think only that parents are careful. Some youngsters have been known to want glasses because their best friend wears them! School-time means more strain on eyes, and eyes are valuable members.

—o—

YOU SPELL IT

There is many a man who shies at spelling the most ordinary words and who belivies it is better to say it than write it, for maybe you couldn't read it if he wrote it! We have learned there are many distinguished statesmen and famous writers who were poor spellers. So most of us can appreciate the partial contents of a 500-word letter from a man seeking a job as relief inspector in a Canadian province. One of the clearest paragraphs reads: "Gentlemen alderman I leve to you if you will give to me some position for me as inspector lelief then you can see who save the money for the city I know lots of cases is nobody do anything.'5'

Even with a good English course the writer might not have made himself any clearer, for despite the construction we are sort of able to figure out the meaning and it causes us to wonder if maybe the writer isn't smarter than he spells. Some of us are always going to have to stop and think—does the e follow the i or the i the e.

THE OLD FISHING HOLE

While a constantly increasing number of anglers are turning to flyfishing, bait casting, and artificial lure fishing for the game fish, we still have a large group of anglers who derive great pleasure in still-fishing for popular pan fish such as the crappie or newlight, sunfish, bream, carp, white perch and catfish. No finer cross-section of fishing can be obtained than this balanced interest which exists for the various forms of angling. Still-fishing is, after all, the most elemental type of fishing, and it offers opportunity for restful recreation not excelled by any other method.

The most important angle to still-fishing has been neglected. That is its appeal to the beginner in fishing, its appeal particularly to our sportsmen and sportswomen of tomorrow, the boys and girls who today find healthful recreation along the banks of our ponds, lakes and streams. For this group with perhaps a few exceptions, the appeal of fishing with a can of worms, an old can or cut pole and other equipment to match serves as an opening wedge to the splendid sport that they may find in later years. We must not lose sight of the fact that first of all, interest must be awakened in fishing for the boy or girl. Later in life, or course, that interest will probably expand to include fly fishing and other more intricate types of angling. Still-fishing, then, must be reckoned on this score alone a vital part of modern angling.

It must not be supposed, however, that this type of angling requires no skill. To the contrary, some of our most skillful anglers today are still-fishermen, that is if we taken into consideration their knowledge of stream conditions and of the habits of the fish they angle for.

"Each man to his own way of fishing" seems to be an accepted creed with anglers, a creed that tends to develop fellowship of the highest caracter.

In the large group of still-fishermen are many fine sportsmen. With the cooperation of our still-fishermen and other groups indulging in the various forms of angling, with the Division of Game and Fish, Kentucky is certain to achieve in the years to come the better fishing which all fishermen desire most.

KNOW YOUR BIRDS

The following related incident will show that all sportsmen should "know their birds before they shoot."

"What are you shooting boys?"

"Birds."

"But what kind of birds?"

"Oh, I dunno; just birds!"

This conversation took place the other day when a warden on patrol duty drew up along side of several boys walking down a country road. They were armed with BB air rifles, .22 calibre rifles and a .410 guage shotgun.

It was a typical incident. An incident that portrayed the lack of knowledge or desire to understand what winged wildlife of Kentucky is or is not classified under the State Code as game, non-game or predatory birds.

A few days later another warden accosted a hunter who had just shot a red-shouldered hawk. The hunter earnestly believed he had killed a dangerous predator. As do many sportsmen, he believed that all hawks are predators.

They are not! The red-shouldered hawk, along with the barn owl is accepted as one of the farmer's best friends.

Similar instances are found almost daily and by wardens thruout Kentucky.

The Division of Game Fish Law Code does not protect or limit in any way the taking of the Cooper's hawk, sharp-shinned hawk, the crow, the starling or the English sparrow, or the great horned owl. However, it is unlawful to take other than the above and other than the game birds, for which there is an open season, any wild bird, in the limits of this State. It is also unlawful to take the nests or eggs of any wild birds within the limits of this State.

Birds which can be hunted during open season are: Quail or Bob White, Mourning Doves, Woodcock, Ducks and Geese. There is no open season on Snipe, Roughed Grouse, Wild Turkey, Ring Necked Pheasant and Hungarian Patridge. REVERENCE FOR GOD

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:7; Matthew 5:33-37; 12:33-37.

GOLDEN TEXT—Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.—Matthew 6:9.

Character reveals itself through the words and deeds of a man. He may try to conceal his real spiritual condition and may assume an outward appearance of piety but he need not say many words, nor meet many of life's problems, before his true condition is revealed.

Our lesson for today touches primarily on the matter of the words of men, presenting first God's command that in speaking we are to show reverence for His name, and then leading up to the expression of that reverence in abstinence from swearing and from idle talk.

I. Reverence Commanded (Exod. 20:7).

The forbidden thing is the taking of the name of the Lord "in vain." Our use of the word "vain" carries the meaning of "useless, without purpose or meaning." This is part of what is in mind in this commandment, for the name of Jehovah is sacred and is to be reverenced as standing for the eternal God. It is never to be used carelessly, or for a frivolous purpose. All too often we tell jokes or stories which have no real purpose or meaning except to elicit a laugh and in them we use the name of God. We all need to exercise care at that point.

The Hebrew word translated "vain" has the additional meaning of "evil" and "falsehood." Men are so bold that they may even use the name of God to support themselves in a lie. God hears and will in no wise hold them guiltless.

II. Swearing Forbidden (Matt. 5:33-37).

The Sermon on the Mount (so-called), from which this portion of Scripture is taken, is difficult to interpret to the satisfaction of all. Some disregard its evident application to the kingdom and, attempting to apply it in the midst of an ungodly generation, fall into such inconsistency that they abandon the effort and regard the teaching of the passage as impossible idealism. Others, who rightly interpret the passage as presenting the laws and principles of life in the kingdom of God when it shall be fully set up on earth with Jesus as King, fail to make any application of those principles to the life of those who are now living in this world—though not of it—but rather have their citizenship in heaven. This is also an unfortunate error.

We who follow the Lord Jesus are not to swear by either things sacred or things that might be called secular. Perhaps He has in mind that our lives should be so true that men will not need to have any kind of an oath to be assured of our sincerity and honesty. Some believe that all oaths even in court are forbidden, while others, with due respect for the feelings of those who hold this view, regard the taking of oaths in official matters as not being in mind. All would agree that the careless and almost sacrilegious use of God's name in administering oaths would be taking His name in vain.

Swearing is also entirely beyond the pale with Christian men and women. It is all too common with both men and women. A great church has organized a "Holy Name Society" to keep its members from using the name of the Lord in profanity. What a telling comment on the times in which we live!

III Judgment Assured (Matt. 12:33-37).

Jesus had cast out a demon who had possessed a man and made him blind and dumb. The Pharisees could not deny the miracle but attributed it to the power of Beelzebub, prince of the demons. Jesus closed their mouths by pointing out that Satan did not work against himself, and went on to speak solemn words regarding their and our responsibility for what we say.

A day of judgment is coming, when we shall answer for the idle and wicked words which we speak. While we would not bring condemnation upon those who indulge in the innocent pleasantries of life by making too severe an application of these words, neither should we destroy their evident import by failing to apply them to our daily conversation. One need but listen to the casual small talk of men and women in public places to realize that we need to give attention to the matter of elevating not only the conversation of others but our own as well to a nobler and more helpful level. Surely Christians should speak for the glory of God on every occasion and in each circumstance of life.

The way to accomplish this worthy purpose, and the only way, is to have the heart and life filled with the good treasure of God's Word, for verily out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. What do your words and mire indicate to others regarding what is in your hearts?

Sew a brass or bone ring into each corner and run through these rings a yard of ½-inch ribbon. Tie into bow. The larger laundry bag is made of a yard of material and two yards of ribbon. These are easily packed if travel enters in. Nice gift for college students.

Less successful men used nearly 10 bushels of corn or its equivalent and 4½ pounds of tankage to make a hundredweight. The more successful farmers raised a 200-pound hog in 228 days, while it required 312 days in the other group.

Gayety Theater News

Saturday—"Gangs of New York" Sun. and Mon.—"Always Goodbye" Wed. and Thursday, Oct. 19 and 20 —"Having Wonderful Time"

Ann Dvorak, who appears next Saturday in the feminine lead of the Republic Picture, "Gangs of New York," at the Gayety, is one of Hollywood's outstanding landscape architects.

Miss Dvorak has recently completed the entire landscaping of her spacious San Fernando Valley rancho, 18 miles northwest of Hollywood.

Gardens, trees, paths, and fences have all been planned and supervised by the popular actress. Her husband, Leslie Fenton, famous writer and motion picture producer, has kept his hands entirely clean of the job, but admits that he is more than proud of the way Ann handled it.

In "Gangs of New York," Miss Dvorak is seen in the role of a New York girl who attempts to free her brother from the coils of gangdom. How she and her brother aid Charles Bickford, star of the picture, in wiping out an entire gang of racketeers, is depicted in the film.

James Cruze directed "Gangs of New York" from a screen play by Sam Fuller, Charles Francis Royal and Wellyn Totman.

The picture is suggested by the famous book of the same name "The Gangs of New York," which was written by Herbert Asbury.

Foot Test

By N. Tulch at People's Foot Comfort Shoe Store, Covington

Usually the first sign of foot trouble is the running over of the heels of shoes.

In a strong healthy human foot the 26 bones are held together to form a substantial support for the weight of the body and they are held together in place by strong ligaments, tendons, and muscles. These bones are so arranged that they form four separate and natural arches.

The heel bone and ankle bone lean out of position more or less in almost every kind of foot trouble. The cause, is that ligaments, muscles and tendons which hold the heel bone and ankle bone in place, become weakened, and are not strong enough to hold those bones in their normal position.

Backache, headache and many body ills may be traced to feet. Even symptoms like those of rheumatism and arthritis now are being banished with proper shoes. Also nervous indigestion, sleepless nights, etc., are sometimes traceable to foot troubles. If you suffer with foot ills of any kind, come for a free analysis of your feet. No obligation at all. We'll be glad to help you and you'll walk in Health with Happy Feet.

IT MAY MEAN EYESTRAIN— CAUSED BY POOR LIGHTING

Two out of ten children in our public schools suffer from defective eyesight.

If your child holds his book closer than 14 inches from his eyes or if he habitually squints while studying, the chances are it is due to eyestrain caused by poor lighting. Protect his eyes and the eyes of the rest of your family by Light Conditioning your home. Have enough light and light that is free from glare and harsh contrasts.

The panel at the left shows three good ways to obtain the right kind of light for safe seeing. We shall be glad to make additional suggestions, free of charge, upon request.
